LAUNDRY UNION WORKERS SUE TO OUST OFFICIALS

Seek Accounting of Huge Dues Fund.

William J. Donovan, who was questioned and released in the unsolved bat slaying of an independent laundry driver in 1938, was sued for an accounting of $1,100,000 union funds yesterday.

The plaintiffs in the suit are rebellious members of Donovan's own union, local 46 of the Laundry Workers Internation, of which Donovan is the secretary and treasurer. He also is president of the International union. The suit calls Donovan "a hoodlum and labor racketeer" and charges that he has "diverted large sums to his own uses."

Link Him to Gambling Resort.

The suit, drawn by Attorney Ben Meyers, was filed in Superior court. It related that Donovan was formerly interested in the Bon Air Country club, "a notorious resort where William [Billy] Skidmore and Big Bill Johnson and the gambling syndicate of which they were the heads held their meetings and where gambling flourished."

Donovan was one of those arrested and questioned when Lloyd Rourke, an independent laundry driver, was beaten to death with a baseball bat near a south side hotel against which a strike of laundry workers had been called. He denied knowledge of the killing and was released. [See page 10 for further details of Donovan's rise to union power.]

No Accounting of Funds.

The bill asserted that the 14,000 members, whose dues of 40 cents a week amount to $320,000 a year, have never been permitted to elect officers, and never have had any accounting of the vast sums which passed thru the hands of Donovan.

Officers of the local, aside from Donovan, are Sam Deahl, president; Charles Lindgren, vice president, and Helen Joss, recording secretary. The eight complainants from the rank and file declared that during a strike in 1934, when the union was much smaller, Deahl and Lindgren appeared at a meeting and by the simple process of calling themselves officers became officers, named Helen Joss to her position and obtained an international charter.

Holds All Are Ineligible.

It was charged that Donovan, as a result of conspiracy, was brought into the organization and immediately became boss. Thereafter by terroristic tactics, it was said, he kept the place. The claim was advanced that none of the officers was ever a laundry worker and therefore none was eligible to hold office under the by-laws.

Union members were forced to pay initiation fees of $1 to $5 and Donovan, after collecting these, arbitrarily raised the dues from 35 cents to 40 cents a week. The total collected in his régime, it was asserted, was $1,169,000, and Donovan was quoted as saying that he had only $50,000 in the treasury in August.

He was charged with wastage of funds by his own trips to Arizona and elsewhere by plane and train; by paying the expenses of his family and friends out of the hard wrung dues; by making a loan of $14,000 from the local to the international, which was "the same as if he took money out of one of his pockets and placed it in another of his pockets." None of these expenditures was authorized by the union.

No Financial Reports Made.

Altho the by-laws require a monthly report of finances, none was ever made, it was averred. The complainants asked the court to impound the union books, to appoint a receiver, hold a court supervised election and enjoin the four officers from collecting dues or handling union affairs.

Attention was called to the fact that the Chicago Federation of Labor has adopted the policy of active aid in ousting hoodlum labor leaders and Donovan was designated as one of the "rascals" who should be cast out.

It was alleged that the officers had threatened to expel any members who dared question their administration, and that they had kept the terms of union contracts secret.

The case was set for a hearing Monday before Judge Peter Schwaba. Attorney Meyers said that while only eight members were named as plaintiffs, many others were interested, and that the entire rank and file would be welcome as associates in driving out Donovan and his minions.

NAZI SIEGE GUNS BOMBARD CITY 12 MILES AWAY

BY DONALD DAY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH THE FINNISH FORCES ON THE KARELIAN ISTHMUS, Sept. 5.—Great fires were raging tonight in Leningrad, Russia's second largest city. Flames could be seen from the new positions the Finnish army has occupied opposite the soviet frontier.

Heavy German artillery, stationed within 12 miles of Leningrad, began its first actual bombardment of Red army positions on the outskirts of the metropolis early today. The distant rumble of German siege guns 40 miles to the southeast was heard by the Finnish forces.

As soon as the German bombardment began Leningrad's big guns sent shells screaming into territory which the Finns recaptured from the Russians.

Refugees Tell of Chaos.

A communique issued by the Finnish government said every one capable of bearing arms was being enlisted in the defense of Leningrad. The communique told of chaos and hunger within the city. It was based on eyewitness reports of Finnish inhabitants of Ingria, the territory northwest of Leningrad. These inhabitants, known as Ingrians, managed to escape to Finland via the Finnish gulf and Lake Ladoga. The communique:

"Official war correspondents report that according to the account of Ingrian eyewitnesses a large number of people have fled from the district around Leningrad to the city itself.

"Those who have not gone there of their own free will have been forced to abandon their homes and proceed to the city. All public buildings and storehouses and in general all buildings have been put into use for billeting. Even then room has not been found for all.

Unable to Find Shelter.

"People who have been unable to find shelter walk thru the streets. Innumerable persons spend nights in parks, under trees and bushes, wrapped only in their clothing. The suburbs of Leningrad, too, are crowded with so many people that hundreds spend their time in the fields.

"Traffic in the Leningrad area is in a state of confusion. An Ingrian locomotive engineer who left Leningrad Sept. 1 related that railway traffic had ceased then, all railways leading out of the city being either in enemy hands or so badly damaged they could not be repaired for traffic.

"Motor traffic is entirely haphazard and unorganized. Thus for instance it no longer was possible to transport inhabitants from the suburbs and rural districts into the city even tho they had been ordered to proceed there. They have been told to make their way thru the woods as the roads are under aircraft attack and artillery fire.

Bread No Longer for Sale.

"It is becoming wholly impossible to procure food. Bread is no longer on sale in the shops. People eat what they have stored at home, if anything. Those who arrived from the surrounding country have only the scanty parcels of food they may have brought with them. Sickness already is becoming rampant because of poor food and inadequate shelter.

"Children in particular are exposed to chills, being compelled to sleep out in the open in the present damp autumn weather. Stomach disease also has caused great havoc among children.

"For instance, in Tipuna suburb, thru which refugees who have arrived in Finland had to pass, hundreds of children have died in the vicinity of the railway stations.

Not Enough Weapons.

"Marshal Voroshilov's proclamation in which he declared that if Leningrad is compelled to surrender the city will be blown up has been distributed to the population.

"Every one capable of bearing arms is being enrolled in forces defending the city, altho there is no time to give them any training or even uniforms. There are not nearly enough arms to go around.

"Many buildings have been destroyed in the outskirts. There are also big fires in the city, the glow from which can be seen from the Finnish frontier. The big metropolis goes to its doom. The terrible bolshevist leaders seem to desire this."

Senate Votes 13½ Billion in Taxes

REPORTING THE INCIDENT

Record High Bill Must Get O. K. of House

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 5.—The largest tax bill in American history—expected to yield 13½ billions of dollars—was passed by the senate tonight and sent to the house for approval. The vote was 67 to 5.

A conflict with members of the house is expected to ensue over the senate's lowering of personal income tax exemptions for married persons from $2,000 to $1,500 and for single persons from $800 to $750. But eventual triumph of senate conferees has been predicted.

The bill gained senate passage after certain controversial items had been eliminated by administration sponsors which might have halted passage until next week.

New Taxes Probable.

Fresh taxes advocated by several senators were promised early hearings. The senate was reminded frequently that 10 years ago the citizens were being assessed only a billion and a half in taxes in comparison with the additional 4 billions piled upon the tax load of 9½ billions today.

The biggest obstacle to early senate approval of the bill was removed when an agreement was reached to eliminate the so-called community income tax prohibition from the measure. Eight states have community property laws which permit married persons to effect substantial tax savings in comparison with married persons in other states. The senate finance committee had recommended a method placing taxpayers in these states on a parity with other states.

Long Argument Averted.

Senators from these eight states were prepared to argue long and fiercely against this provision. One of them, Senator Tom Connally [D., Tex.], appeared to be starting a filibuster when Senator Walter F. George [D., Ga.], chairman of the finance committee, gave in. He would agree to elimination of the obnoxious amendment, he said. Most senators gave sighs of relief and the amendment was knocked out.

Senators Robert M. La Follette [Prog., Wis.] and John A. Danaher [R., Conn.] led a fight to eliminate the proposed $5 a year tax on the use of automobiles which will raise 160 millions of new revenue. Their efforts led to the closest vote of the day but they were defeated, 35 to 32.

La Follette attacked the tax as unjust and inequitable because the owner of a $100 "jalopy" would be taxed at the same rate as the owner of a $3,000 town car.

Fears Precedent Established.

The principle of such a tax, Danaher chimed in, would lead to taxes on any kind of durable goods. He contended it was an invasion of state's rights to invoke such a tax. Next year, he declared, there might be a $25 tax on all automobiles and this precedent would lead to taxes

TAFT MAPS U. S. UNITY COURSE; RAPS PRESIDENT

Decries New Grants of Power.

BY WALTER TROHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 5.—Senator Robert A. Taft [R., O.] tonight offered President Roosevelt an eight point program as "America's road to unity and peace, and permanence of our democracy."

Senator R. A. Taft.

In a radio address the Ohio senator charged that America is not united in an hour of international crisis and placed the blame for the lack of unity on the secretiveness and dictator aims of the chief executive.

He emphasized that the country is disunited for the reason that the majority of the people are opposed to the President's foreign policy, as it implies intervention in the war. He charged that the President is no longer taking the people into his confidence and is intolerant of those who do not agree with him.

Cites Opposition to War.

In the exposition of his program Taft presented what he believes the position of the Republican party should be on foreign policy and domestic issues. In this he was seen as answering Wendell Willkie, Republican candidate for President of last November, who told interviewers during the week that he is about to start a purge of the noninterventionists in the party.

Taft did not mention Willkie, who has actively aligned himself with war monger groups since his defeat, by name, altho he disowned Willkie interventionism. He made it clear that the vast majority of the people, including the great majority of Republicans, are against entry into the war.

Details of Taft's Program.

The eight point program, by which Taft said Mr. Roosevelt can secure unified opinion in America if he is "really interested" in securing it, follows:

"First, let Mr. Roosevelt and his administration take the country into their confidence and state in clear terms what policy he wishes the country to adopt. Treat us like Americans and not like Russian peasants.

"Second, encourage the press to perform its traditional job of keeping the public informed and checking the abuses of government.

"Third, let all legislation dealing with national defense be limited solely to the definite purposes of national defense and not include all kinds of power which may easily be used to carry out New Deal economic objectives.

"Fourth, let the President turn from the Hopkinses and the Hendersons and the Ickeses in whom congress and the public have no confidence, to administrators chosen for their ability, regardless of their politics, ideologies, or devotion to New Dealism.

Calls for Consultations.

"Fifth, let the President consult with those who disagree with him instead of denouncing them and discourage intolerance against those who disagree with his policies, as well as against those who support them.

"Sixth, let Mr. Roosevelt publicly assure the country that he has made no secret commitments with Churchill or Stalin and that he will follow the letter of the constitution by submitting any proposed understanding immediately to congress for approval.

"Seventh, let Mr. Roosevelt again restate for the mothers and fathers and draftees of America his preelection pledge that no American boys will be sent to fight in foreign lands outside of the Americas.

"Eighth, let Mr. Roosevelt unite the country on a policy agreed to by both political parties and 80 per cent of the people, an impregnable defense and all material aid to Eng-

Sound Comes to Life in FM Wonder Show

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

The wonders of the new broadcasting technic called frequency modulation [FM] were demonstrated for the first time yesterday before a Chicago audience. W-G-N, whose new FM station will make its debut later this month, presented the demonstration before 500 men and women of the radio industry in the ballroom of the Chicago Towers.

In the FM show piano music was transmitted with a fidelity so complete that the audience could not tell the difference between it and music actually played on the studio platform. Sound effects were sent by standard radio and then by FM. The astonished audience cheered, for in FM there is no distortion, no static, no interference.

Hear Full Range of Sound.

Before the demonstration, Carl J. Meyers, chief engineer of W-G-N, gave the technical story of FM. Henry Weber, musical director, told what FM means to music, how it transmits the full range of sound.

Then William A. Bacher, program and production chief, took charge of the demonstration. In W-G-N's main studio sound technicians executed effects on command of Bacher relayed by Lou Jackobson stationed in the studio. These were produced first on a standard radio, then on FM in the Towers ballroom.

Bacher called for the pounding of nails, sawing of wood, the clank of chains, the sound of a telephone bell, the tinkle of water and ice in a glass. All came thru with astonishing fidelity on FM. When Bacher put the radio crew to frying eggs and bacon over at the studio one could almost smell the aroma.

Musical Instruments Heard.

Then came a demonstration of musical instruments. The difference in the sound of Chinese gong, Hawaiian guitar, banjo with its fluid afterglow, when played on the two receivers, was readily appreciated.

The sensation of the show was a musical stunt in which two pianists participated. Playing Paderewski's "Minuet" in the W-G-N studio the first pianist was heard thru an FM receiver. The second pianist played the same melody at a piano before the audience in the Towers ballroom. At intervals the radio was turned off and the pianist in the ballroom played; then it was switched back on and only the radio piano notes were heard. The audience could not tell the difference! This routine was repeated with equal success by two violinists.

How FM snuffs out interference was demonstrated, too. When a vacuum cleaner was turned on or made lightning introduced, the standard receiver became noisy. On the F-M set the music continued clear as a bell.

MONT TENNES' WILL GIVES HIS 5 MILLION ESTATE TO FAMILY

Mont J. Tennes, legendary Chicago figure whose name was linked with gambling, police chiefs, and fabulous wealth in the early part of the century, left an estate estimated at more than 5 million dollars, it was disclosed yesterday with the filing of his will in Probate court.

Tennes died Aug. 7 at the age of 67. In recent years he had been head of the real estate firm of M. J. Tennes & Sons, and chairman of the Shafer Roller Bearing company. He lived quietly at 2340 Lake View avenue. From 1905 to 1927 he owned the General News bureau, which supplied horse race results to bookmakers in Chicago and most of the nation.

The will provides a life income of $2,000 monthly for his widow, Ida, and life incomes of $700 a month for Tennes' four children. Any grandchildren are to receive $200 a month, or $400 a month in the event of the deaths of the parents. When the last grandchild reaches the age of 40 the estate is to be divided equally among the heirs.

The will also provides for an annual expenditure of $10,000 for the upkeep of a "character home" for boys, to be known as Camp Honor. The will states Tennes intended to found the home during his lifetime.

ED CAV'ANAUGH GETS SHINER BUT, FOILS A BANDIT

Eddie Cavanaugh, veteran radio star, put up a successful battle last night against a Negro who tried to rob him as he was putting his car in the garage in the rear of his home at 7746 Luella avenue.

The robber was driven away empty handed. Cavanaugh did not escape unscathed. "He got a beautiful shiner," reported Cavanaugh's wife, Fannie.

Sabath Utters a Declaration: He Knows Best

"I will take your wishes into consideration, but I must decide on conditions as I see them and as the evidence shows. I feel I am better informed on these questions than the average man who takes his information from the newspapers and societies."

These words were spoken by Congressman Adolph J. Sabath [5th] between pipe puffs yesterday. Sabath, who is known to his colleagues as "Half a Congressman" Sabath because his district is one of the tiniest in the United States, was addressing delegations from two patriotic organizations, America First and We the Mothers Mobilize for America.

Ask a Question.

This is "call on your congressman week," and they had asked Sabath, follower of the New Deal and supporter of its rearmament and lend-lease bills: "Would you vote to approve issues of foreign policy even tho your constituents declared their opposition in letters and cards mailed to you?"

Sabath's plea that he was better informed than they, was all the delegates got in reply.

Sabath refused to tell why he voted for the draft extension, or whether he approved the President's "making a treaty with a foreign power."

Mrs. Van Huning, leader of the delegation, asked why "we are fighting for democracy abroad when there is so little democracy here," citing Sabath's tiny district as an example.

"Getting Some Return."

Sabath denied that he favored the United States "fighting for England," and said we were getting some return for lend-lease funds. He didn't say what. Asked why butter was being sent to England while many Americans are eating substitutes, he denied that such was the case.

An America First delegation also called on Congressman Anton F. Maciejewski [6th], also an ardent New Dealer, who insisted he was doing all in his power to prevent war.

Maciejewski assured his callers that he would vote against giving any funds to Russia, but refused to pledge himself to a vote against sending American military forces abroad. That, he said, would depend upon circumstances.

BRITISH PLAN DRIVE TO SAVE WINTER FUEL; REDUCE TRAIN TRAVEL

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 5.—A reminder of the lengthening blackout hours and the approaching chill of winter, with attendant hardships and difficulties, was contained in two news items tonight.

Coal reserves are less for this winter than they were a year ago. Sir Andrew Duncan, president of the board of trade; David Grenfell, minister of mines, Gilbert Szlumper, traffic coördinator, and 12 divisional fuel officers today discussed a proposed campaign to economize on coal, coke, gas, electricity, fuel oil, and paraffin. Owners of large houses will be asked "to put their libraries and drawing rooms under dust sheets and to sit in one living room."

All railway lines will reduce traffic beginning Oct. 6. Many night trains will be discontinued because of blackout difficulties. It also was suggested that the working hours of clerical and stenograhpic staffs be staggered to reduce working hours during the dark months and the early release of workers who travel long distances to relieve transportation. The London bus service already has introduced a winter schedule.

Fights Thru Artillery and Tank Resistance.

BERLIN, Sept. 5 (AP).—German siege guns are shelling Leningrad and Nazi armored columns are blasting closer to the great Russian city thru fierce tank and artillery resistance, the Germans said tonight.

German artillery also is shelling Schluesselburg, 25 miles to the east on the shore of Lake Ladoga, and the railway which connects it with Leningrad, a German spokesman said.

This indicated that Leningrad was cut off from all road and rail communication with the rest of Russia.

Shell "Military Objects."

Altho the spokesman asserted that only "military facilities" were being shelled, other sources have indicated that if Leningrad failed to yield it would be subjected to the same crushing fire that gave Warsaw days and nights of terror two years ago.

There were no authentic reports on the exact location of the lines.

Pressing down from the north, the Finns were said to be approaching Terijoki and Koukkala, some 18 miles northwest of Leningrad. Occupation of the towns would put them within artillery range of the Russian naval base and fortress on the island of Kronstadt, which defends the sea approach to Leningrad.

Hitler's Announcement.

"The encirclement of Leningrad is progressing.

"The city itself already is under fire of heavy German artillery.

"Estonia has been freed of the enemy."

The high command statement that Estonia had been mopped up indicated that German forces in the north were now free to devote their whole attention to Leningrad, the main objective. The Estonian islands of Dagoe and Oesel, where Russians were still holding out, presented a problem to German air and naval units.

Capture 30,000 Russians.

In the middle sector facing Moscow, where the Rusians have made strong counterattacks, DNB, German official news agency, claimed that between Aug. 25 and Sept. 4 two German army corps took over 30,000 prisoners and captured or destroyed 160 tanks. The news agency gave no specific indication of the scene of these operations. In addition, the Russians were said to have lost more than 200 guns and several hundred vehicles of all types.

Vague dispatches from other sections of the eastern front reported that an army corps in the middle sector had taken 17,300 prisoners and destroyed or captured 121 tanks, including 30 of the heaviest type.

Another army corps in the course of two weeks was credited with 13,700 prisoners, 26 tanks, and 115 cannon.

TRIBUNE STAND AGAINST WAR HIT BY YOUNG REDS

THE TRIBUNE was attacked for its anti-war stand last night by speakers at a communist meeting held in the hall at 1016 North Dearborn street. The meeting was sponsored by the midwest district of the Young Communist league.

"We have to find out what can be done to change the isolationist midwest to an understanding of internationalism," said Alfred Wagner, chairman of the regular communist party in Illinois. Predicting United States' entry in the war, Wagner added, "The people are being fooled by THE TRIBUNE, the America First committee, Hoover, and Lindbergh."

Jack Kling, secretary of the midwest district, said, "Certain elements are trying to give the impression that the people of the midwest are not loyal to the government. This is just nonsense in the minds of the men behind THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE."

POISON KILLS BROKER.

Milton P. Falk, 54 years old, 647 East 83d place, an insurance broker, was found dead yesterday in a room in the Southmoor hotel, 6646 Stony Island avenue. Police said death was caused by poison supposedly self administered.

FEAR CIVIL STRIFE AFTER 5TH PARIS ACT OF VIOLENCE

Communist Who Quit Party Is Slain.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VICHY, France, Sept. 5.—France tonight feared a possible outbreak of civil strife following another assassination in Paris. The new victim was Marcel Gitton, 38 year old former militant communist who abandoned his party when the war started and joined Jacques Doriot's Popular party. He was the fifth victim of violence in Paris within three weeks.

Marcel Gitton.

Gitton had left the city hall in the Lilas quarter of Paris, where he was employed in the mayor's office, last night on his way home when his assailant rode up behind him, fired several shots, and fled. Except for a cartridge case there was no trace of the assassin. Police feared Gitton may have been a victim of his former communist comrades after they found several threatening letters in his rooms.

Gitton was elected to the chamber of deputies from the Seine district in 1936, during the Popular Front régime, with communist support. At the beginning of the war he was among those who refused to sign the communists' famous letter protesting France's declaration of war and with nine other deputies he quit the party and joined Doriot's extreme rightist organization.

Step Up Fight Against Reds.

His assassination came on the eve of the departure from Versailles of the second contingent of French volunteers to fight bolshevism. The attack moved the Petit Parisien to brand the shootings as "terroristic attempts to sabotage the work of national reconstruction."

With the return from Paris today of Interior Minister Pierre Pucheu, the campaign against communists and terrorists in both the occupied and unoccupied zones took on a new vigor. In Paris Pucheu put into effect in the occupied zone several of his drastic new decrees against disorders and dissidents.

From Marseilles it was announced that 174 traffickers in counterfeit bread tickets have been arrested. At Dijon the special military court trying communists condemned a young man to death and sentenced three men to from three to seven years' imprisonment, while the Poitiers military court sentenced a communist to three years.

Sentences Passed on 8.

At Lyons the anti-communist court sentenced eight Grenoble men to from 4 to 10 years' imprisonment. Trial of 24 communists began at Toulouse.

LENINGRAD ARMY HURLS BACK FOES, MOSCOW CLAIMS

Reds Counter-Attack Thru Artillery Fire.

MOSCOW, Sept. 6 [Saturday] (AP).—The Red army and people's battalions are counterattacking thru a storm of artillery fire before Leningrad under Marshal Klementi Voroshilov's orders to save the city or die, Russian dispatches said today.

Today's communique said fighting raged along the entire front. War dispatches reported pitched battles on the approaches of Leningrad, Kiev, and Odessa, and claimed gradual destruction of a large German force which crossed to the east bank of the lower Dnieper river.

The Russians said they had thrown back the invaders almost a mile in the battle for Leningrad, retaking four villages by charging thru murderous artillery barrages.

List German Losses.

Incomplete reports assembled while the battle still roared described the German losses as an artillery battalion, a heavy battery, 26 anti-tank guns, and a mine throwing battery.

It was claimed that 100 German planes had been shot down in making an unsuccessful attack, presumably about the soviet Baltic naval base of Kronstadt near Leningrad.

Two German held airdromes west of Lake Ilmen on the Leningrad front were smashed by soviet attacks and 74 German planes were destroyed.

While the soviet command itself merely reported a continuation of heavy action on every front, more detailed Russian advices pictured Kiev, the Ukrainian capital, and Odessa on the Black sea as being steadily strengthened to hold on to the end.

Heavy Rumanian Losses.

At Odessa, where the Red army garrison is supported by sailors from the soviet Black sea fleet and by a civilian population of 500,000 sworn to hold the city "to the last drop of blood," the Nazis' Rumanian allies were described as "falling by the thousands."

Kiev's people, said the communist newspaper Pravda, took an oath to die rather than give up.

A fourth great battle was raging on the lower Dnieper, where a large force of Germans crossed the broad stream and captured village "O," and then tried to push forward across another river to cut the Russians off in the rear.

Instead, the Germans were trapped by an encirclement maneuver. Artillery broke up attempts of the Nazis to reinforce their troops both by land and by air, and then soviet tanks began charges into the isolated mass. This battle was continuing after the crushing of two German battalions.

JAPAN URGED TO KEEP CALM, HAVE FAITH IN ITS ARMY AND NAVY

BY KIMPEI SHERA.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, Sept. 5.—The Japanese people were told today by Commander Toshiji Ueda, navy representative on the board of information, not to be misled or disturbed by various false rumors, but to serve the state by minding their own business and having full confidence in the actual power of the fighting services.

Pointing out that Japan's losses were incomparably smaller than those of China, Ueda declared that this country was winning the war in China in an imposing manner.

"The Japanese people should be united, prepared with immutable determination, unafraid and undisturbed, to push the establishment of the east Asia common prosperity sphere," he said.

The cabinet today approved a traffic mobilization plan designed to place transportation and communications on a wartime footing. It is expected to result in further restrictions on private use.

CLAIMS OFFICERS GETTING BETTER LIQUOR THAN MEN

Washington, D. C., Sept. 5 [Special].—Representative Thad Wasielewski [D., Wis.] today served formal notice that he isn't going to stand for enlisted men in the navy getting worse liquor than officers. He wrote to Secretary of the Navy Knox saying enlisted men are barred from the only hotel in Iceland licensed to sell beer and liquor.

Wasielewski further pointed out that enlisted men are barred "in order to have more elbow room for the officers, who monopolize the place.

OBJECT TO REDS WITHIN 90 MILES OF IRAN CAPITAL

Approve British-Russian Peace Otherwise.

BY SAM BREWER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TEHERAN, Iran, Sept. 4 [Delayed].—Officials of Iran [Persia] have approved all British-Russian occupation terms except one, diplomats reported here today. In their lone dissent they asked that Russian troops be moved farther away from Teheran, the capital. The Iranian answer was submitted Monday night.

The nearest Russians are at Kazvin, 90 miles northwest of Teheran, but they also occupy the entire Caspian sea coast and, in general, the Iranians would like to have them a little farther from the capital, as their present positions block important roads. In particular, the Iranians are trying to avoid anything that would provide a pretext for the soviets to occupy Teheran.

Germans Getting "Cocky."

What to do with the 800 Germans now sheltered in the legation here is the problem of most interest to the foreigners. Altho they were in a state of panic a few days ago, the Germans now are getting cocky as it becomes evident that the capital is not being occupied.

When I arrived Monday there was a line of employés of German firms at the postoffice sending telegrams to branch offices ordering them to destroy their correspondence and to come to the home offices, saying they still were safe.

By Tuesday their spirits had perked up so much that German Minister Von Ettel coolly remarked of the apparent Nazi defeat here, "The last word has not been said yet."

The Germans cannot leave the country without passing thru either British territory or the Russian occupied zone of Iran. Women and children may get safe conduct from the British, but there also are 640 German men here.

Reciprocal Freedom Sought.

There is even talk of extending safe conduct privileges to the men, but British circles do not expect that this will be done unless Britons bottled up in Denmark and Switzerland are similarly freed.

The Germans are camping among the trees in the spacious gardens of their summer legation outside the city, but are by no means prisoners. The Italians are similarly quartered on the grounds of their legation, apparently terrified, altho their presence has been ignored and all the discussion has been of the Germans.

British Disperse Guerrillas.

SIMLA, India, Sept. 5 (AP).—British troops in the Kermanshah area in southern Iran have dispersed "some bands of soldiers led by rebel officers" and the situation within the country is quiet, an official announcement said today.

FINNS CAPTURE BOOTY VALUED AT MILLIONS ON KARELIAN ISTHMUS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ON THE KARELIAN ISTHMUS FRONT, Finland, Sept. 5.—Russian war material valued at millions of dollars has fallen into the hands of the Finns in five sectors along this front, it was revealed today.

A count of the heavy equipment among the victor's booty showed 143 six inch guns, 42 field guns, 35 anti-tank guns, 12 anti-aircraft guns, 15 four barrel anti-aircraft machine guns, and 405 automobiles. There were also 1,450 horses.

In addition, hundreds of machine guns of various calibre, mine throwers and other infantry weapons are being gathered up from the battlefields. Much of the material was captured in one sector where the Russians lost wagons, tractors, automobiles, gun carriers, tanks and other vehicles when the Finns overwhelmed a five mile long column.

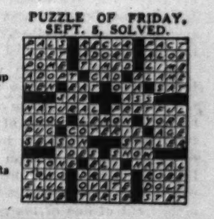
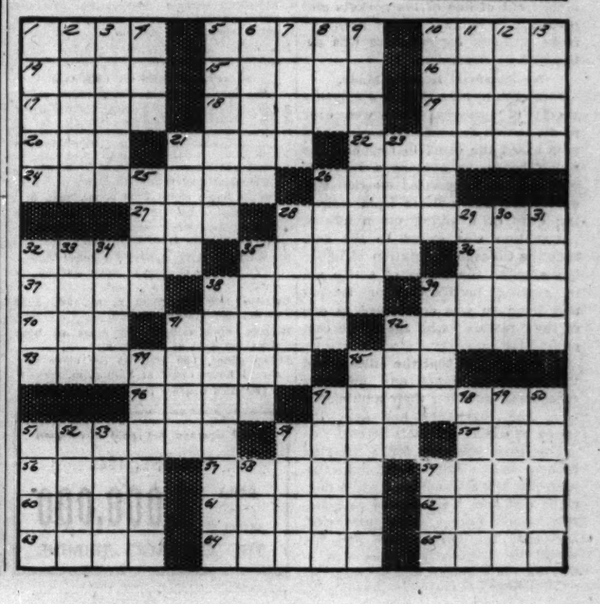
PUZZLE OF FRIDAY, SEPT. 5, SOLVED.





CONGRESS COLD TO ROOSEVELT'S U-BOAT 'INCIDENT'

Calm Despite Efforts to Magnify Its Meaning.

BY CHESLY MANLY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 5.—Congress remained impassive today after President Roosevelt's denunciation at his press conference of the reported submarine attacks on an American destroyer.

Notwithstanding the President's announcement that American naval units are searching the waters of the North Atlantic for the submarine and will "eliminate" it if possible, not a member of congress suggested going to war with Germany.

The so-called shooting incident was not mentioned on the senate floor. The house was not in session today.

Mistaken for British.

Most members of congress, including many supporters of the administration's war policies, maintained that the submarine probably mistook the destroyer for one of its British sister ships.

Members pointed out that the Greer is of the same design and silhouette as the 50 destroyers which the President traded to Great Britain in his deal for naval and air base sites on British possessions in the Atlantic.

At his press conference, the President said the U. S. S. Greer, bound for Iceland with mail for the American occupation force, was attacked by a submarine yesterday morning—not once but several times—and that the action occurred definitely on the American side of the Atlantic. It was most fortunate, the President said, that the destroyer was not hit by one of the torpedoes fired by the submarine.

Alone When Attacked.

Asked whether the dropping of depth bombs by the destroyer was in accord with American policy, he retorted: "What would you do if somebody fired a torpedo at you?"

Mr. Roosevelt said the destroyer was alone at the time of the attack. It was daylight, he said, and the vessel was clearly distinguishable by its identification number and the American flag. Asked whether there was any fog, the President replied that visibility was good.

Dispatches from Reykjavik, Iceland, disclosed that British aircraft supported the Greer in its brush with the submarine, doing reconnaissance work for the American craft.

When asked whether he would compare the incident to "shooting warfare," the President dismissed the question as hypothetical.

Blockade Not Recognized.

Reminded that a naval spokesman had estimated that the attack occurred about 150 miles west of Iceland and asked whether that would be definitely on the American side of the ocean, the President said he could not give the exact location.

Asked whether it would be possible for a destroyer to be on the American side of the ocean and still in the blockade zone proclaimed by Adolf Hitler, the President said this government had not been notified of any such blockade zone. It would not be recognized anyway, he said, because a blockade to be legal must be effective.

The President answered "no" when asked whether there had been any change in the orders of naval units operating in the Atlantic as a result of the submarine attack.

Vandenberg Awaits Facts.

Typical of the noninterventionist comment on the incident was that of Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg [R., Mich.], who said:

"A correct assessment of the incident depends entirely upon the facts, which are not yet available and which are not contributed by the President's press chat. I think the country will wish to withhold its own judgment and will wish its officials to withhold their judgments until the conclusive factors are fully disclosed and authenticated. I am quite sure we are not going to war over one loose and anonymous torpedo. But I fully recognize that even the information presently available demonstrates that we are constantly being drawn closer to the fatality which we ought to be able to avoid."

Among those who expressed doubt that the submarine deliberately attacked an American warship were such ardent supporters of the administration's foreign policy as Senator Elbert D. Thomas [D., Utah], a member of the foreign relations committee, and Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney [D., Wyo.].

Senator Wayland Brooks [R., Ill.] said the incident "should not be sufficient to cause a war, but it is indicative of what will happen if the President keeps on sending American troops into the war zones. Of course, when we send troops overseas we have to supply them. We cannot desert American men."

7 AXIS SHIPS CLAIMED SUNK OR DAMAGED IN MEDITERRANEAN RAIDS

LONDON, Sept. 5 (AP).—Seven axis ships, including two warships and a big Italian liner which may have been carrying troops to North Africa, have been sunk or damaged in a series of British successes in the Mediterranean, the admiralty announced today.

The liner was torpedoed "and almost certainly sunk," the admiralty said, while in the other attacks, apparently all in the past few days, three ships were declared to have been sunk and three more damaged, two severely. One of the damaged vessels was reported as a 10,000 ton cruiser.

Suez Area Raided.

CAIRO, Egypt, Sept. 5 (AP).—The Suez canal area was raided again last night by planes which dropped high explosive and incendiary bombs, killing two civilians and injuring three, a communique said today. Air alarms were sounded over a great part of northern Egypt, including Cairo.

[Germany claimed an 8,000 ton British ship was sunk in an air raid on the Gulf of Suez Wednesday night.]

Italy Claims Air Victory.

ROME, Sept. 5 (AP).—The Italians reported smashing Fascist air victories today as a result of violent clashes over the Mediterranean. Forty British planes were declared downed, 22 yesterday over Malta and between that island and Sicily, and 18 Wednesday over Sidi Barrani, British North African base in Egypt. The high command said Italian loses totaled six planes.

GERMAN PLANES RAID SCOTLAND; BOMBER CRASHES

LONDON, Sept. 5 (AP).—Several German planes attacking eastern Scotland today inflicted a small number of casualties and some damage, and one of the bombers crashed, killing its crew of four, the air ministry said. A report from one village said a Nazi bomber machine gunned the streets where children were playing but that none was injured. The RAF said a factory at La Pallice, France, was bombed by the British.

Calls Raid "Ineffective."

BERLIN, Sept. 5 (AP).—An overnight Russian air raid on Berlin during which one soviet bomber was destroyed by anti-aircraft was characterized by the high command today as ineffective. The plane was described as a twin engined Martin [possibly a Russian copy of the American Martin bomber].

[The Russians said they set off explosions and fires in Berlin with explosive and incendiary bombs, and acknowledged loss of one plane.]

DNB, official German news agency, reported that 13 persons were killed and 85 injured in Rotterdam yesterday by a bombing from the substratosphere. A number of buildings were demolished. The German air force was credited with sinking a 3,000 ton merchantman and an outpost boat between Britain and Ireland last night.

BRITISH SAY SHIP LOSSES IN AUGUST 'AS LOW 'AS JULY

LONDON, Sept. 5 (AP).—British officials said today that the rate of British shipping losses in August was "no less satisfactory" than that for July, altho there appeared to be as many submarines in operation as before.

[No figures have been announced for either month. However, first Lord of the Admiralty A. V. Alexander has stated that the July losses were the lowest in more than a year, and has ascribed this to joint action of convoys, planes, and north Atlantic patrols. The inference would place July and August losses somewhere under 300,000 tons each.]

BRITISH CONFUSED ON U. S. REACTION TO SHIP ATTACK

Press Opinion Conflicts on War Entry Effect.

BY LARRY RUE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 6 [Saturday].—The London press today speculated on the prospects of American entry into the war as a result of Thursday morning's attack by an unidentified submarine on the United States destroyer Greer. The possibility that Britain might gain an active ally in the fight against Germany was given prominence in yesterday's evening press, but editorials in this morning's papers showed a conflict of opinion.

The Daily Herald, labor organ, denounces optimism, excitement, and comparisons between the Lusitania and the Greer as "nonsense."

"American Will Is Not Ready."

While admitting that "several of President Roosevelt's advisers perhaps are in a mood to fight at our side," it points out that "they and the President are dedicated to interpreting the American will. The American will is not ready for war."

On the other hand, the Daily Mail declares that "For the first time since the war began Germany has made a challenge direct to the United States." As a result of the attack on the Greer, the Mail contends, "a shooting war has been brought appreciably nearer" for America.

If Berlin accepts the responsibility for the attack on the American destroyer, the Daily Telegraph contends, "a direct challenge will be thrown down to Roosevelt's delimitation of the American side of the ocean. The consequences of the elimination of the attacker, if achieved, cannot be less important."

Cite Mackenzie King's Plea.

The Telegraph also suggests that the Greer incident "may serve to drive home to public opinion in the United States the significance of W. L. Mackenzie King's admonitions" on the "interdependence" of free nations.

[The Canadian premier, speaking Thursday in London, urged the United States to declare at once that it would stand beside Britain against Nazi Germany as Britain has pledged to stand beside the United States in case of war with Japan. Prime Minister Winston Churchill, who enunciated Britain's far eastern pledge on Aug. 24, concurred in Mackenzie King's appeal.]

A possible Washington tieup with Mackenzie King's speech was seen by the News Chronicle. "It is hard to believe," it states, "that before hurling a friendly bomb at our American cousins that Mackenzie King did not seek advice from Washington."

The evening papers reported the attack on the Greer under front page banner headlines. All admitted it was unlikely that the attack was intended as a deliberate provocation, but editorially they echoed Mackenzie King's appeal that now is the time for America to get into the war.

"Today the German torpedo puts the case with inescapable force," said Minister of Supply Lord Beaverbrook's Evening Standard. "Challenge or no challenge, the deed was done on a sea which America can allow no other powers but Britain and herself to rule."

No Sign It Was Nazi—Berlin.

BERLIN, Sept. 5 (AP).—A German spokesman took the view today that the submarine attack on the United States destroyer Greer was just what advocates of American intervention in the war had been wanting.

"What interested us particularly," he said, "was the Reuters [British news agency] report that 'the long-awaited incident has occurred.' Elaboration on that remark is hardly necessary."

[Reuters said in a Washington dispatch that "it is felt this probably is only the first of an inevitable series of such incidents. One man declared it was high time there was an incident to get the United States in the war." These were the only sentences in the Reuters report as distributed in London which compared with the German quotation of Reuters.]

The German spokesman insisted there was no reason to believe that the unidentified submarine which made the unsuccessful attack in the Atlantic was a German U-boat.

Dienst Aus Deutschland, a commentary service with close foreign office relations, declared some interventionists were pumping up the story to make it "the long-yearned-for incident in the Atlantic."

'ARMY ORDERS SUPPLIES FOR ICY CAMPAIGN

Washington, D. C., Sept. 5 (AP).—The army today ordered extensive supplies of equipment for operations in cold climates. Contracts awarded by the war department called for 1,200 snowshoes, 35,000 snowshoe bindings, 39,000 ski bindings, 136,000 arctic socks, 15,000 ski type trousers, 160,000 parkas, 68,900 pounds of ski wax, and 1,350,000 overcoats.

Bernt Balchen, the well known antarctic flyer, has been appointed a captain in the specialist reserve of the army air force, the war department announced today.

The department emphasized that Balchen has had considerable experience in flying over ice and snow, and indicated that he would advise on air operations in cold regions. The army has air forces now in Alaska and Iceland. Balchen was a pilot on antarctic flights of Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd.

TAFT DRAFTS U. S. PLAN FOR UNITY; RAPS ROOSEVELT

Decries Grants of Power, Drive Towards War.

Points to Wisconsin Election.

Taft offered the President as concrete evidence of national disunity the vote of 203 to 202 in the house on the question of draft extension. He said the interventionists attributed it to politics, to the Republicans and even to German propaganda.

The interventionists ignored, he said, the obvious reason that "a majority of the people were opposed to this extention and the congressmen voted as their constituents wished them to vote, except where they were subject to heavy pressure from the administration." Without the pressure, he said, the bill would have been overwhelmingly defeated.

Taft pointed to the recent election in Wisconsin as a straw in the wind. In the congressional bi-election in Wisconsin a Republican, Lawrence H. Smith, running on the issue of opposition to the President's foreign policy, defeated a former Progressive, Thomas R. Amlie, running as a Democrat on the issue of 100 per cent support for the President by nearly two to one.

Blames Roosevelt's Policies.

"The disunity in the United States springs from the policies of Franklin D. Roosevelt himself," Taft said. "In the first place his methods and his policies have become secretive and dictatorial. He no longer takes the people or the press into his confidence and the result is that even his own followers disagree as to what his real intentions are.

"In the second place, the defense policies are being used to advance New Deal economic theories under the guise of defense necessities, and only New Dealers are appointed to positions of economic power.

"Thirdly, the President is utterly intolerant of those who disagree with him and encourages intolerance from his supporters. Above all, he insists on pursuing a policy of active intervention in the European war without any apparent intention of consulting congress or the people until we are hopelessly involved. In short, the President has no desire to secure unity unless it is 100 per cent unity with his individual views. While he persists in these policies there is no hope for national unity.

Strikes at Secretiveness.

In discussing the President's secretiveness, Taft pointed to the recent sea conference with Prime Minister Winston Churchill of Britain as the most striking example. He said that the President slipped away from the American press but Churchill carried British writers with him. The American people were dependent on British writers for news about their own President, Taft declared.

"If he is not frank with the press, if he enjoys fooling the correspondents and springing surprises on them, then he is treating the people as no President has the right to treat them," Taft said. "The American press has been a free press. It is the principal characteristic of Americanism. Its great power has been used with discretion and judgment. It cannot be whittled down by presidential restrictions and pressure without endangering democracy itself.

Press Freedom Omitted.

"Mr. Roosevelt continually denies that he seeks censorship, but he repeatedly shows his irritation with the free press, originally with the editors, and now more and more with the correspondents. Without rebuke he permits Mr. Ickes to blackguard the press, and constant proposals from inner New Deal circles indicate a desire to find some means of bringing pressure to bear on newspaper editors to make them behave. The eight point declaration [Churchill and Roosevelt issued an eight point statement after their conference] significantly omitted any reference to that particular freedom known as freedom of the press."

OFFICIALS RAID PRO-NAZI PAPER IN BUENOS AIRES

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, Sept. 5 (AP).—Police today seized the original copies of articles published in the pro-Nazi newspaper El Pampero ridiculing the congressional investigation of anti-Argentine activities.

The raid was made on order of Federal Judge Miguel Jantus, before whom the paper has been charged with contempt of congressional authority.

One article taken to Judge Jantus bore the headline "Argentine Branch of the Dies Committee Reports on Its Failure." This was comment on the report of a chamber of deputies committee alleging that a vast Nazi organization is operated here.

President Leaves Capital for His Hyde Park Home

Washington, D. C., Sept. 5 (AP).—President Roosevelt tonight left by special train for his home at Hyde Park, N. Y., where he will spend the week-end with his mother, Mrs. Sara Delano Roosevelt. The President has not seen his mother, who will be 87 years old Sept. 21, since she left several weeks ago for her summer home at Campobello, N. B.

Views Questioned

SENATOR BROOKS WARNS OF MORE CURBS ON TRADE

White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., Sept. 5 (AP).—Priorities, price fixing "and other machinations in the name of defense will do more harm to our system than any tyrant," Senator Wayland Brooks [R., Ill.] told the International Association of Insurance counsel today.

Senator Brooks, speaking at the final session of the annual meeting, asserted that the United States is heading for all-out control of business by the government and asked:

"Can this country be the world's arsenal? Can it be the world's treasury and still have its backlog of credit and free enterprise and our own democratic system?"

"Our destiny," he said, "does not include policing of the vicious greed and bitter hatred of the world. We must help those fighting to preserve our own ideals; but let us not send men—send materials, but no men."

In speaking against assistance for Russia, Brooks said:

"Russia's—and Stalin's—ideology is rigidly opposed to ours. It will not be to our advantage to help him perpetuate his kind of government."

BARES INDIRECT LEASE-LEND AID TO FREE FRENCH

Washington, D. C., Sept. 5 (AP).—Secretary of State Cordell Hull indicated today that the United States, at least indirectly, is aiding the Free French cause thru lease-lend shipments to the British.

President Roosevelt, when asked at his press conference whether direct aid was being extended the Free French, referred the question to the state department.

To the same inquiry, Hull later replied that the United States had the most friendly relations in every way with the Free French government, and that he understood Free French forces were being supplied primarily by the British. Hull added that he assumed this systematic aid would continue.

In San Diego Wednesday, Commander George Cabanier said he had been appointed by Gen. Charles De Gaulle, leader of the Free French, to organize defenses of islands in the Tahiti, New Hebrides, and New Caledonia groups. Cabanier said he expects to receive American lease-lend equipment thru Britain.

DRIVER ROBBED OF $100.

LEGION'S ORDER WILL BE OBEYED, CANTY PROMISES

Says He's Depending on Hodes' Pledge.

BY THOMAS MORROW.

Arthur B. Canty, newly chosen head of the Cook county Legion, explained yesterday that he had ordered participation of his organization in Chicago Defense day next Wednesday on a promise given by Barnet Hodes, executive vice chairman of the Chicago Commission on National Defense.

Hodes assured him, Canty said, that there would be nothing political in the Defense day exercises. Canty, reversing his previous stand, asserted that he would follow to the letter instructions passed on to him by the Cook county council of the Legion. This resolution directed him to determine whether the meeting is purely a patriotic demonstration.

Form Letters Draw Censure.

"If there is evidence that this meeting is a controversial and political matter," said Canty, "the Legion will withdraw."

He explained that he had drawn some censure because he had sent out form letters asking participation of Legion posts in Defense day. His critics held that the action exceeded the Legion resolution and declared that a thoro investigation should have preceded the letters.

"My investigation was as thoro as possible because of the shortness of time," Canty said. "I spoke to Hodes the day following the Legion resolution and received his assurance that there is nothing political in the meeting. I shall sit in on the defense council meeting when it is called."

Hodes explained that the meeting had been proclaimed by Mayor Kelly, that the council had given its unanimous indorsement.

How About That Promise?

"What do you mean when you give your assurance that the Defense day will not be a political meeting?" Hodes was asked.

"La Guardia [Fiorfello La Guardia, head of civilian defense and violent interventionist] is coming here to speak," Hodes said. "I assume that he is going to speak on civilian defense."

"Do you know what is in the speech?"

"How can I say what will be in his speech," Hodes answered.

He said that he did not know when a copy of the La Guardia speech would be available.

Canty, who originally had denied that he had been instructed to determine whether the Defense Day rally was truly patriotic, said yesterday that whole thing was a misunderstanding. His action in asking post participation had drawn a warning from Legion leaders not to exceed authority granted in the resolution.

A school board engineer custodian, Canty complained that he did not like being called a pay roller. He said that he had entered school board service after a competitive examination in 1921 and is a civil service employé. He denied that he had been approached by any one concerning Legion participation in Defense day.

James B. McCahey, president of the school board, was asked if he knew of Canty's decision to enroll the Legion in Defense day.

"No," McCahey answered, "I've been out of the city and haven't read anything about the affair. Canty has been employed for 20 years and is a civil service employé. I have nothing to do with his Legion activities—that is his own business."

Pleads for Curb

Mr. and Mrs. I. Arthur Kramer during funeral services for one of their daughters yesterday.

Hempstead, N. Y., Sept. 5 (AP).—Mrs. I. Arthur Kramer, mother of 3 year old Georgene, one of three children fatally burned Tuesday when an army pursuit plane crashed near their home, wrote Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt today asking her to use her influence in barring planes from over congested areas.

"In this great country of ours there is room for practice fields. Keep the planes from our children—get adequately trained pilots." she wrote in the letter which also criticized the army's attitude toward the accident.

As Mrs. Kramer penned her letter, Mitchel field officials issued a statement absolving Second Lieutenant Roy W. Scott from blame for the accident. The statement emphasized the flight was one of thousands made from the field and that accidents were rare.

THREE SOLDIERS DIE IN TWO ARMY FIELD ACCIDENTS

With the 6th Army Corps in the Field, Sept. 5 (AP).—Three New York soldiers were killed early today in two separate accidents incident to maneuvers of the 6th army corps near the Massachusetts-New Hampshire border. Dead were Paul F. Charette, 22, and Philip N. Mara, 24, both of Syracuse, and Thomas J. Dominico, 23, of Brooklyn, all privates.

Charette and Dominico were killed when a six ton armored scout car overturned near Henniker, N. H. Lieut. Fred S. Platt, commander of D troop, 101st cavalry, to which the pair was attached, said the vehicle was proceeding at moderate speed.

Mara died while he was asleep beneath a truck. The driver of the heavy car moved it, not knowing Mara was underneath. Mara was attached to battery B, 102d separate battalion of coast artillery.

Ex-Convict Fined $100 for Molesting Two Girls

Judge Stephen Adamowski in Domestic Relations court yesterday fined Leslie T. Kearney $50 on each of two charges of misconduct for molesting two 14 year old girls in Lincoln park last Wednesday. Kearney, who said he lived at 1203 North Wells street, has spent 22 of his 48 years in prison. He was unable to pay the fines and must serve them out in the Bridewell.

URGE DICKSTEIN TO LEARN WHAT IS PATRIOTISM

Anti-War Group Lauds America First.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Representative Samuel Dickstein [D., N. Y.] was asked formally last night to study the meaning of Americanism before seeking a "fantastic" congressional investigation of the America First committee as a subversive, un-American agency.

More than 1,000 members of the Citizens Keep America Out of War committee adopted the resolution unanimously at a regular meeting of the committee in the La Salle hotel. Dickstein had asked Congressman Martin Dies for such an investigation.

Similar approval was given to a resolution condemning a meeting called for next Wednesday night in the Coliseum "which has spuriously been characterized a gathering for the promotion of the spirit of national defense." Mayor La Guardia of New York City, and Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd have been announced as speakers for the Coliseum meeting.

"To Beat War Drums."

"It has been reliably reported to us that the real and genuine purpose of the meeting is not to be the promotion or fostering of national defense but 'to beat the war drums' and stir up the emotions, creating a war spirit," the adopted resolution declared. "We condemn the meeting as a part of the civil war waged by an alien minority against the 80 per cent of the American people who are against getting into the overseas war."

The resolution directed to Representative Dickstein recalled the New York congressman's advocacy of an investigation of the America First committee, and reminded that all America First meetings are open to the public. America First constantly advocates respect for the constitution of the United States and the administrative laws of the country, the resolution stated.

On the other hand, the resolution declared that Representative Dickstein "has not advocated investigation of communism, Nazism, Fascism, British imperialism or Union Now."

Should Learn Americanism.

It asked that the New York congressman "use his efforts in seeking out the foremost subversive groups before attacking a purely American patriotic organization which is determined to keep us out of war and free from foreign alliances."

"Representative Dickstein should fully acquaint himself first with Americanism and then compare this with the isms previously mentioned," the resolution continued, adding that "America First is to our mind the largest representative patriotic American organization which promotes only true Americanism."

George H. Cless Jr. of Glens Falls, N. Y., former secretary of the New York Chamber of Commerce, pleaded for the repeal of the lease-lend act. His appeal was supported by unanimous adoption of a resolution demanding the repeal of that legislation.

GOV. HEIL'S WAR FACTORY HUMS WITH U. S. ORDERS

Contracts Worth Millions Given His Firm.

BY THORNTON SMITH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 5.—The Heil corporation of Milwaukee, of which Governor Julius Heil of Wisconsin is president, is busy with millions of dollars of war orders. In anticipation of armament contracts and to make space for those it already had, the corporation a year ago took over and enlarged the plant of the Beaver Manufacturing company here. The Heil corporation is booming.

Governor Heil's outspoken support of the Roosevelt war program makes it inevitable if he runs for reelection next year it will be as a champion of the interventionists and that he will have two fights on his hands.

He will be opposed in the primary probably by Frank B. Keefe of Oshkosh, congressman from the Sixth district, an outspoken foe of the war party, and if Heil should win the primary he will have to battle another strong anti-intervenionist in the election, probably Philip LaFollette as a Progressive Republican under the Progressive designation.

State Faces Split on War.

The campaign like the recent election in the First congressional district is shaping up to divide the state on the war issue, with Heil in support of the President. Voters in the first district clearly expressed their stand against America's entrance in the European war by electing Lawrence H. Smith, Republican anti-interventionist candidate, 2 to 1 over Thomas R. Amlie, Democratic supporter of the President.

Heil, who has been twice elected Republican governor, has repeatedly declared that patriotism requires backing the President. His direction of the recent Republican convention at Baraboo which smothered discussion of foreign affairs and prevented the adoption of a resolution indorsing Wisconsin congressmen who opposed the New Deal, definitely identified him as an unquestioned champion of the President.

Fears Disloyalty Charge.

Heil is German born, brought to the United States as a child. In his previous campaigns he was elected chiefly on his story of the love for America by the poor German peasant boy who got rich in this country. He likes to tell of his early poverty and of his present affluence. His friends say that in the present war bitterness he leans backward to support the President because he fears his German name and his German birth would bring a suggestion that he has a divided loyalty to America.

Those who feel less friendly toward him discount this explanation of his proadministration position and point to the boom his private business is enjoying as a result of the rearmament program.

Business Amounts to Millions.

It is not easy to tell the exact amount of war business the Heil corporation has but the amount is in the millions. The war department confirmed that the corporation had received orders for $5,363,489 in army contracts up to last May 29. The company also has one navy contract for $103,970 for portable gasoline pumping units and drum suction hoses to go with them. The navy last year also awarded the company a contract for $84,000 for steel bodies for dump trucks.

A special local review of Wisconsin industry's mobilization for defense, based on private records of orders awarded up to Jan. 19, 1941, said the Heil corporation's orders amounted to 7 million dollars. The army orders are for oil servicing tracks, semi-tank trailers, refueling units and trailer dollies.

INVENTOR SEIZED; ACCUSED AS SPY FOR 21 COUNTRIES

New York, Sept. 5 (AP).—Federal agents today announced the arrest of a Wurtsboro, N. Y. inventor whose 4,000 acre estate, they said, apparently was guarded with an elaborate electric eye warning system, and over whose laboratory six chained police dogs stood watch.

The man, Philip L. E. Del Fungo Giera, 69 years old, was freed in $4,000 bail on a federal complaint accusing him of obtaining $10,000 from an unidentified New Yorker while impersonating a United States army reserve officer.

Assistant United States Attorney Raymond Ickes told United States Commissioner Isaac Platt that Giera had represented some 21 countries in espionage activities.

Federal agents also announced the arrest of Mrs. Helen Pauline Mayer, 25 years old, on espionage charges, the second woman accused of being involved in a spy ring allegedly operated by Kurt Frederick Ludwig, who was arrested recently in the state of Washington. She was held in $10,000 bail.

ARMY STRENGTH IS REPORTED AS OVER 1½ MILLIONS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 5.—The strength of the army of the United States today was estimated by the war department at 1,580,775 officers and enlisted men. The breakdown is as follows:

OFFICERS.
Regular army	15,040
National Guard	22,300
Reserve officers	68,235
Total	105,675
ENLISTED MEN.
Regular army, three year	501,000
Reserves and one year	17,500
National Guard	256,600
Conscripts	700,000
Total	1,475,100
TOTAL COMBINED STRENGTH.
Regular army	533,540
National Guard	278,900
Reserve officers	68,335
Conscripts	700,000
Total	1,580,775

The total represents an increase of about 100,000 officers and men over estimates of a month ago.

REVEALS HITLER AS MASTER MIND OF GERMAN BLITZ

French Campaign Mapped by Him in Obscurity.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 5.—Adolf Hitler is acclaimed the master mind of the German military machine in an article in the current issue of the quasi-official military publication, The Field Artillery Journal.

Col. C. H. Lanza.

In the article, "An Amateur's First Attempt at Strategy," Col. Conrad H. Lanza, outstanding military authority of the field artillery, makes it clear that Hitler is not a tool of the German general staff, but the architect of the conquest of France, which "unfortunately for many countries was a masterpiece."

Col. Lanza criticizes the general staffs of democracies for not taking Hitler and blitzkrieg warfare seriously. He writes that they have been slow to realize, over a period of years, what the Germans have been doing. He expresses a hope that the general staffs "will profit from the lesson so disastrously imposed" by Hitler.

Traces Plan to 1932.

In tracing the authorship of the plan for the conquest of France, Col. Lanza wrote:

"The plan has a long record. It first came to light during the summer of 1932. At this time General Ritter von Epps, German army retired, living in Bavaria, appeared at the war department in Berlin. He submitted a plan for an attack on France by going around to the north of Liege, thru Dutch territory, and to the south of Namur, thru Belgian territory.

"Von Epps explained that he had worked out his plan in conjunction with Adolf Hitler, at that time a rising politician also living in Bavaria, but without official position."

Col. Lanza emphasizes that even two years later, in 1934, when Hitler became chancellor, the democracies did not take him seriously, being accustomed to portray him as Charlie Chaplin in the latter's well known comic rôle.

Hitler's Book Ridiculed.

Hitler's book, in which he expresses his views and aims, was dismissed as full of half-baked ideas. There was no fear of Hitler—only wonder how the German people could stomach him.

In continuing his tracing of the history of the plan, Col. Lanza said:

"Von Epp's idea was that the Von Schlieffen plan used in 1914 was a good plan, but that it failed to accomplish the results expected due to the delay caused by the resistance of the fortress of Liege, thru which ran the main roads and railroads absolutely needed for communications and supplies.

"Since 1919 Namur had been converted into a permanent first class fortress, and the entire area between Liege and Namur had been organized into a vast strong point. If Liege alone had in 1914 defeated the Von Schlieffen plan, the new fortifications were more likely to do so.

Terrain Believed Impregnable.

"In the Von Epps plan Germany would defeat the combined armies of France, Belgium, and the Netherlands by going around the fortified areas on both flanks. This would be done on the north by passing thru Holland, thru which had been supposed to be an impracticable terrain of rivers, canals, and inundations.

"On the south the movement would be thru Ardennes, also heretofore supposed to be impassable for large bodies of troops, on account of mountains, forests, and few roads. . . . He estimated that only 42 days would be required to completely defeat the combined armies of France and the low countries.

"Von Epps had no connection with the German general staff. He was not even on active duty. Nevertheless, his plan was accepted for consideration."

Germans Study Ground.

A German general officer was detailed to make a reconnaissance of the ground and spent the entire autumn of 1932 at the task, Col. Lanza reports. This German was impressed by the plan, which at length was submitted by a section of the general staff to the chief of staff, with the suggestion that it be approved and adopted. Nothing further was done about the plan until late the following year.

"On Jan. 30, 1933, Hitler became chancellor of Germany," Col. Lanza's story continues. "For some months he got no action on the Von Epps plan. During the summer he relieved the minister of war and the chief of staff.

"In their place he appointed, respectively, Gen. Von Blomberg and Gen. Von Fritsch. Their first official action was to approve the Von Epps plan."

Build Own Fortifications.

The two generals ordered necessary preliminary work to be carried out, regardless of foreign observation or opinions, and within a short time Germans began military works to oppose Holland and Belgium. According to Col. Lanza, the French and British general staffs were aware of what was going on, had knowledge of the main features of the plan and did nothing.

Col. Lanza reports that in May, 1940, Hitler revealed himself as the author of the plan, a revelation which passed unnoticed and ignored.

"His 1940 statement that he was the author of the plan for the campaign may be correct. In 1932 Hitler had no reputation as a strategist. He might have thought it desirable to obtain the signature of Gen. Von Epps, personally known to him, to his plan, in order to induce the war department to give it consideration.

"There does not seem to be any good reason why Von Epps should have mentioned Hitler as a collaborator, if he had not in fact been so. . . . It seems obvious that Hitler planned long ahead. He waited for the proper time."

James McVittie (left), potentate of Medinah temple, greeting Judge Dewey Myers, potentate of Murat temple, Indianapolis, Ind., when the latter and his delegation arrived in Chicago yesterday.

The Shriners' Illinois-Wisconsin ceremonial will open today with a colorful parade in Michigan avenue at 2 p. m. Brass bands, oriental bands, patrols, singing units and nearly 5,000 Shriners in uniform will be in the procession.

Units in the parade will form at Balbo drive and march to the Medinah temple, Wabash avenue and Ohio street, where the ceremonial will be held. The Shriners will represent temples in 10 cities.

A reviewing stand will be erected at the Chicago Towers club where the parade will be reviewed by Gov. Green, Gov. Julius Heil of Wisconsin, Senator Wayland Brooks, and Mayor Kelly.

SHOOTS AT MARK THEN KILLS WIFE, POLICE CHARGE

Watsonville, Cal., Sept. 5 (AP).—An army sergeant, held on a charge of murdering his 19 year old wife, engaged in target practice just before he put five bullets into her body, Police Chief Matt Graves said today.

Mrs. Melda Wood, bride of a year, was killed yesterday at the home of friends. Sergt. Charles Wood, 28, surrendered at police headquarters a few minutes later.

The Woods lived at Fort Ord, to which the sergeant returned Wednesday night after having been absent on maneuvers. They quarreled and the young wife came here to stay with friends. Yesterday morning, Chief Graves said, Sergt. Wood borrowed a revolver and headed for Watsonville. En route he purchased cartridges and stopped for target practice. In Watsonville, Graves said, Wood took a cab to the house where Mrs. Wood was visiting, shot her to death, and walked out to the waiting cab, and rode to the police station. Police said Wood told them: "My wife was running around with other men."

BRITAIN TO HIRE AMERICANS FOR TECHNICAL JOBS

U. S. to Help Get Skilled Men to Go Overseas.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 5 (AP).—Great Britain, it was disclosed tonight, is about to undertake, with the help of the United States government, a campaign to employ thousands of American technicians for service in England repairing equipment used by the British armed forces.

Paul V. McNutt, federal security administrator, announced the prospective campaign and said the 1,500 federal-state employment offices would assist in it.

The British Civilian Technical corps hopes, he said, to employ several thousand men, between 18 and 50 years of age, who are skilled as radio and automobile mechanics, electrical wiremen, instrument repairers, metal workers, and in other technical occupations.

[Recruiting of men to send overseas would come at a time when there is an increasing demand in the United States for skilled men because of armament production demands.]

Important Step, McNutt Says.

"Recruitment of American workers for service with this noncombatant defense group in England is an important step in the administration's program for increasing United States-British coöperation," McNutt declared. "The Civilian Technical corps is a nonmilitary group of skilled craftsmen organized to maintain and repair radio location apparatus, communication systems, and other vital technical equipment used by the naval, military, and air forces."

Arrangements with the British government, he said, provide for the return to this country of American members of the Civilian Technical corps at any time they are needed.

Selective service headquarters was reported to have authorized local draft boards to grant deferments to men joining the British CTC. McNutt emphasized, however, that the employment services would not accept applications from men who were urgently needed in key jobs in American industries.

Salaries $24 to $38.

The British government will provide transportation to and from that country for Americans joining the CTC, the announcement said, and will furnish free board, lodging, uniforms, and medical care in addition to salaries ranging from $24 to $38 a week. The regular term of service will be for three years or the duration of the war, whichever is shorter.

Federal-state employment offices thruout the country will interview applicants and refer likely prospects to CTC headquarters in New York. Applicants must pass an examination and a physical test.

FINDS 'SHAMEFUL' LACK OF GEAR IN 4TH ARMORED DIV.

[Copyright: 1941: By the New York Times.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 5—A "deplorable and shameful" lack of equipment in the armored divisions was reported here today by Representative Albert L. Freeland [R., N. J.] on his return from training service with the 4th armored division at Pine Camp, N. Y.

Vreeland said his unit was equipped with about 20 per cent of its stipulated weapons. These, he added, were excellent, but he emphasized that the division to which he was attached had only 50 M-3 light tanks instead of its quota of 274.

"The division should have 108 medium tanks," he added. "It has none. The division likewise has not a single 37 millimeter anti-tank weapon and is forced to utilize 1896 vintage artillery as anti-tank weapons."

LONELY CASTLE BUILT BY DODGE TO BE WRECKED

Mansion of 110 Rooms Cost 3 Million.

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 5 (AP).—John F. Dodge's castle, which cost nearly $3,000,000 but hardly knew the warmth of family life, started toward oblivion today.

Wreckers received a permit to tear down the fabulous building which the multi-millionaire automobile manufacturer had intended would rival the home of any of the world's wealthiest princes.

The great house on Lake Shore drive, with 110 rooms and 24 baths, was still uncompleted when Dodge died in 1920, and the family left it untenanted, none to admire its marble interior trim and lavish adornments which Dodge had scoured the world to obtain.

He even brought 110 stone cutters from Scotland to help build the house because of their work on Andrew Carnegie's Skibo.

Girls' Camp on Porch.

From time to time, portions of the estate were put to use. A florist once rented the spacious greenhouses. At another time, a summer girls' camp was operated in the screened porch area of the house.

But, as years passed, the underbrush grew and the huge structure, which contained an acre of floor space, gradually became hidden from passersby. Small children, when they could elude watchmen, liked to peer thru the windows for a "ghost."

Monument of an era when wealth poured upon automobile pioneers, the Dodge castle contained a swimming pool and ballroom in the basement. On the main floor was an expansive reception room in which could be erected a modern bungalow.

Place Fails to Sell.

A representative of the Dodge estate said the castle was being torn down at the request of Dodge's widow, Mrs. Matilda R. Wilson. It has been for sale for several years.

The estate representative said that with the home torn down and the land cleared the property would be more marketable. Dodge's widow lives on her estate in Rochester, Mich. Other members of the family live elsewhere.

SON OF AMERICA FIRST LEADER TO FLY FOR CANADA

OTTAWA, Ont., Sept. 5 [Special].—Representative J. L. Johns [R., Wis.] of Appleton, a leader of the America First committee, believes in personal freedom of choice, it was revealed today when it was announced that his son, Pat Johns, joined the royal Canadian air force last week as a second class aircraftsman.

In view of his father's position Pat Johns at first was refused enlistment in Canada. He sought to get to England to enlist there. When he found that he could not get a sailing berth he returned to Ottawa and was accepted in the air force. Now he says "my father has wished me the best of luck, and says he hopes that I will do a fine job."

The son is as strong in his belief that America should take an active part in the war as his father is of the contrary opinion.

WIFE IS INDICTED IN KNIFE SLAYING OF ARMY MAJOR

Dissenting Juror Causes Commotion in Court.

Los Angeles, Cal., Sept. 5 [Special].—After a wrangle among its 17 members, the county grand jury today voted a murder indictment against Mrs. Marie M. Tucker in the death of her husband, Maj. George A. Tucker of Fort MacArthur. She has three sons.

One dissenting juror declared that the demon rum, which figured in the stabbing case, should have been indicted instead—and given "99 years in the penitentiary.

After she had been arraigned before Superior Judge Benjamin Scheinman, in whose court the juror's outburst occurred, Mrs. Tucker was remanded to jail without bail to await arraignment next Friday.

Stabbing Follows Party.

Mrs. Tucker is accused of stabbing her husband with a razor edged carving knife in their San Pedro home following a cocktail party on the army reservation the night of July 1. Maj. Tucker died 10 days later in Letterman hospital in San Francisco. Army authorities regarded the fatality as an accident.

Recently Los Angeles police reopened the case and exhumed the body. Several witnesses were interviewed and the matter was taken to the district attorney's office. Mrs. Tucker was arrested on a complaint of suspicion of murder. The case went to the grand jury yesterday.

After the jurors had filed into Judge Scheinman's court and their decision had been announced, Juror Charles Pierce interrupted the proceedings. Addressing the court he asked:

"Your honor, isn't there some way we can indict liquor and sentence it to the state penitentiary for 99 years?"

Judge Scheinman gazed intently at Pierce for several moments, but did not reply. The arraignment then was completed.

Signs of Stormy Session.

Pierce's outburst bore out indications that the true bill was decided upon by a majority of the jurors only after heated debate last night and this morning. This was further supported by the fact that several jurors loitered outside the courtroom after the indictment was voted and engaged in heated discussion.

To Mrs. Tucker, however, the indictment seemed a relief from the tension under which she had labored since her arrest. Clad in black, Mrs. Tucker appeared pale but composed and chatted with her cousin, Leonard M. Kerns, and his wife.

In a deathbed statement in Letterman hospital Maj. Tucker absolved his wife of blame and said he stabbed himself accidentally while preparing a midnight snack.

The prosecution said Mrs. Tucker admitted there had been much drinking on the evening of the tragedy, that she told detectives she "might have" done the stabbing, but "doesn't remember wielding the knife during any family quarrel."

The fact that the knife was found in the back of a cabinet drawer, and the nature of the major's three way wound will figure in the hearing, it was indicated.

REJECT BLANKET CHARGE AGAINST STATE WORKERS

Specific Counts Demanded by Trial Board.

BY HAL FOUST.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., Sept. 5.—A civil service trial board, consisting of two Republicans and one Democrat, ruled this afternoon that state department heads must be specific in their charges against civil service employés accused of political activities.

The ruling was made as trials started in Gov. Dwight H. Green's announced purge of pay rollers guilty of violating the civil service laws by performing as cogs in the former statehouse machine. On the docket today were 13 respondents in a list that the governor said will grow to approximately 4,000 to face charges.

Demands Specific Charges.

The 13 were called to trial under a mimeographed charge that listed 17 offenses including bribery of voters, buying drinks for voters, soliciting campaign funds, soliciting votes by mail, and displaying Democratic campaign windshield stickers. Assistant Attorney General William S. Wilson argued, unsuccessfully, that proof on any one of the charges was adequate for dismissal of the employé.

"My client cannot prepare her defense without knowing what charge is going to be prosecuted against her," Attorney Frank Pfeifer of Springfield argued in behalf of Miss Thelma Simmering of Greensview, a suspended assistant stenographer in the health department. "She is entitled to a bill of particulars and I move for a continuance until the specific charges are on file."

The trial board sustained this argument and announced that this ruling will be followed hereafter. The members are Ernest Hoover, Democratic civil service commissioner; Ray Kinzie, a Republican civil service supervisor, and Miss Mary Humphrey, Springfield social service worker, who is a Republican.

Three Witnesses Testify.

For the wholesale hearings that are impending, a multitude of trial boards are to be appointed for quick adjudication. These boards hear evidence and recommend a decision to the commission.

Before the Simmering case was called three witnesses testified against Miss Edna Bonwell and Miss Bernice Herreid, suspended public health nurses, that they carried "Hershey for Governor" stickers on their automobiles during the primary campaign last year.

ESQUIRE CLUB AND CLUB E-8 LOSE LICENSES

The Illinois liquor control commission yesterday revoked the license of the Club E-8, also known as the Club Elgin, on the charge that it was operated as an immoral resort. The club is located across the street from the Willow Springs county highway police station.

Joe Esposito, a commission agent, described a raid which the commission made at the club Aug. 22, and told of seeing girls dancing in the darkened rear room and boys who "looked like minors" playing dice games.

The club's attorney, John O. C. Fitzgerald, said he will file a petition in Circuit court to compel the commission to show cause why the license was revoked.

Clayton F. Smith, county board president and also county liquor control commission, announced he had revoked the license of the Esquire club tavern, on Waukegan road north of Winnetka road, because of gambling. The state commission took similar action recently, but a petition for rehearing is still pending. Employés of the club were fined on gambling charges recently after a raid by county highway police.

HIGH SCHOOL STUDENT ADMITS RAPE INTENT IN PLIERS ASSAULT

James Hill.

James Hill, 16 years old, 7421 Wentworth avenue, pupil and athlete at the Tilden Technical High school, admitted to Assistant State's Attorney Samuel Papanek yesterday that he intended to rape Mrs. Rita Harsh, 40, when he attacked her in her home at 7552 Eggleston avenue last Wednesday.

After taking a formal statement from Hill, the prosecutor returned him to the custody of the Juvenile court where he faces trial Sept. 23. Papanek said that when Mrs. Harsh, who is recovering in the Englewood hospital, is able to testify the case will be taken before the grand jury.

Hill, who is over six feet tall and weighs 180 pounds, beat Mrs. Harsh with a pair of pliers after gaining admittance to the home on the pretext of leaving a message for her daughter, Janice, 17. He previously maintained he had beaten her because she had been talking about him.

4 LANE HIGHWAY TO ST. LOUIS ON GREEN PROGRAM

Plan to Widen 250 Miles of 66.

BY PERCY WOOD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Belleville, Ill., Sept. 5 [Special].—Gov. Dwight H. Green's administration hopes to be able to pave highway 66—the 300 mile direct route between Chicago and St. Louis—and make it a four lane route for its entire length, Walter A. Rosenfield, director of public works, said tonight. The heavily used road can be regarded as a defense project, Rosenfield said.

If the 20 million dollar project is approved by the federal government, which would pay half its cost, construction could start next spring, Rosenfield said. About 50 miles of the route already has four lane pavement, and the first section to be improved might well be that south from Springfield, the director explained.

The four lane sections include the 40 mile stretch from Joliet to Chicago and a 10 mile section north of Springfield. The 250 miles of new road, it is said, probably would parallel the present route for most of its distance.

Green Pledges Tax Relief.

Traveling along the Illinois bank of the Mississippi river today, Gov. Green told his audiences that the state government which he heads will do all it can to lessen the tax burden which will follow the national armament effort.

"It behooves all of us in public office to bear that thought in mind," the governor said at Alton, where he addressed a civic luncheon group. "The legislature has contributed by saving tax payers 20 million dollars during the session which closed July 1, and by refusing to approve another 70 million dollars of requested appropriations. The state government took a 65 million dollar cut thru reduction of the sales tax to 2 cents, which was only partially made up for by replacement levies.

Cites Balanced Budget.

"Some say that an economy administration is not a popular one, but that will be my aim while I am in Springfield, or until you people tell me you want something other than that.

Green's day began at Pere Marquette State park on the banks of the Illinois river. On the way to Alton he traveled a part of the distance over the 15 mile McAdams Memorial parkway, now under construction, and named for the late John D. McAdams, Alton publisher.

TWO DIE IN PLANE CRASH.

Stamford, Tex., Sept. 5 (AP).—Instructor L. C. Cearley, 25 years old, of Arlington, Tex., and Aviation Cadet Stanley A. Siegel, 21, of Chapel Hill, N. C., were killed today in an army basic flight training plane which crashed half a mile south of here. It was the first accident since the base was opened March 2.

CHARGES UNION USES COERCION TO FIGHT SUIT

A charge that members of local 710 of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters coerced other members to abandon a suit asking an accounting of an estimated $1,000,000 in union funds was made yesterday by Attorney William B. Esterman, counsel for the plaintiffs in the action. The charge was denied by Abraham Brussell, attorney for the union, and Master in Chancery Otto Rentner of the Circuit court, who is hearing the suit, sustained Brussell's objection.

The witness on the stand at the time was Carl Zaper, 30 years old, 648 Grace street, a union member.

He was one of the 91 unionists who joined last April in the suit, which also asks that local 710 be placed in receivership. Since then Zaper and some 20 other union members have signed a petition stating they were withdrawing from the suit and would allow the union to keep 25 per cent of funds due the men under a strike settlement.

The dispute which is the basis of the suit was started last December when teamsters employed by the American Carloading corporation, 4956 South Kedzie avenue, struck for $20,000 in overtime and back pay. The strike ended in three days when the corporation agreed to pay.

The unionists charged the local attempted to collect 25 per cent of the pay settlement.

John T. O'Brien, secretary-treasurer of the union, said yesterday that the local has a standing rule that expenses of claims on behalf of a comparatively few members should be paid by those members. The union's expenses in the pay negotiations amounted to more than $5,000, he said.

'PORKY' DILLON OUSTED BY CANDY WORKERS' UNION

Members of local 351, Bakery and Confectionery Workers' International union [AFL] at a meeting in the Midwest Athletic club last night unanimously accepted the resignation of Frank [Porky] Dillon as secretary-treasurer and business agent. His resignation was forced after discovery that he is an ex-convict.

To start the slate clean, all other officers also resigned, and a special election to fill their positions along with Dillon's was immediately held. They had only six weeks remaining in office. Only two of the officers sought reëlection, according to James Cross, international organizer.

Nicholas Dzaman was chosen to succeed Dillon. The others elected are Matthew Dunn, president; Anthony Pogano, vice president; Miss Clara Breske, recording secretary.

Free Speech and Discussion.

The Union, we intend to keep. . . . Its Constitution and laws made in pursuance thereof must and shall remain, "the supreme law of the land." . . . No law is stronger than is the public sentiment where it is to be enforced. Free speech and discussion and immunity from whip and tar and feathers, seem implied by the guarantee to each state of "a republican form of government."

Crittenden Letter, Dec, 22, 1859.

THE GREER INCIDENT.

A lot of people in Washington gave every evidence of being delighted at the news that the American destroyer, Greer, while en route to Iceland, had been attacked by a submarine. Those who are trying to get America into the war rejoiced, more or less openly, that an incident had occurred which could be seized upon to project us into the fighting.

They had been disappointed in the sinking of the Robin Moor. There was little popular excitement over this incident and what little there was disappeared when the Americans who had been aboard were rescued and it became known that the vessel was carrying contraband to a belligerent. There was disappointment, again, when the St. Clair arrived safely in Vladivostok a few days ago with its load of aviation gasoline for the Russians.

Mr. Roosevelt says he hates war and he has pledged himself not to send soldiers, sailors, or marines to fight overseas; but many months ago he was reporting the presence of submarines off the Florida coast, he sent the marines to Iceland in the zone of war, he dispatched an inflammatory message to congress at the time of the Robin Moor sinking, and in his press conference yesterday he breathed fire.

Provocative words and acts have followed each other in rapid succession. We have needled Germany by occupying Iceland in combination with the British. If the Germans attack Iceland to get at the British forces there, Americans are going to get hurt. At the same time we have been needling Japan by sending gasoline to Siberia. It is highly improbable that the gasoline will be of much service to the soviets in their war on Germany. A supply line which crosses 5,000 miles of ocean and depends upon another 5,000 miles of inefficient communist railroading isn't of much military significance. It is difficult to avoid the conclusion that the tankers were sent on their way in the hope that the Japanese would create an incident.

The behavior of official Washington is not that of men who are seeking to keep a promise to avoid war. Their conduct is that of men who are desperately eager to get into war; who want a war so badly that they will create provocative situations everywhere and anywhere in the hope that at least one of the prospective enemies will strike back and thus provide an occasion for war. The behavior of our administration indicates it would rather have two wars on opposite sides of the world than no war.

Mr. Roosevelt and the bellicose old men who surround him would much prefer that the onus of firing the first shot be on the other fellow. They think that would save Mr. Roosevelt from the odium of having broken his word to the American people. For their purposes the sinking of the Greer or the seizure of one of the tankers would have been serviceable.

ARE THERE ANY SHORTAGES?

On Tuesday two of the administration's alleged shortages were proved to be fakes. J. J. Pelley, president of the American Association of Railroads, declared before a senate investigating committee that there is plenty of gasoline in the country, and plenty of transportation facilities to move it where it is needed. And the committee on commercial research of the American Iron and Steel institute reported its findings that the steel mills of the country can make more steel than will be needed for all civilian industries after taking out the requirements for defense and for exports.

Alleging that there is not gasoline to supply the demand in the east, the national administration restricted the hours of purchase and the amount each gasoline station could sell. And Washington has put into effect a control of every pound of steel made because it is said that there is not nearly enough to go around. It now develops that there is plenty of oil and a surplus of steel.

Mr. Pelley said there were 20,000 idle tank cars suitable for moving oil. He asserted that these cars had considerably greater carrying capacity than did the 50 oil carrying boats which had been turned over to the British. The roads stand ready to cut freight rates on oil shipments of substantial size. Altho all of this carrying capacity is available to meet any shortage, the spokesman for the railroads said that the deputy oil administrator, who slapped the restrictions on oil consumption, has never asked for any information about what the roads could do to obviate a shortage.

The study released by the iron and steel institute showed that the steel making capacity exceeds by about five per cent the combined steel needs for armaments, civilian industries, and export. What is perhaps the highest authority on steel supply states that there isn't any shortage. And if there isn't any shortage, Washington was not justified in withdrawing steel from all who aren't able to get an okay from Washington.

The revelation that there is an abundance of gasoline and steel, altho the government has insisted there are shortages, brings the whole priority business under suspicion. It suggests that the public is entitled to answers to a number of questions.

Do the army and navy have need for all the raw materials they are buying or, as has been charged, are both services, independent of OPM, piling up stores in anticipation of a great expansion in the size of armed forces?

Is it true that a prominent member of the defense organization, doubting the need for the withholding of supplies from consumers, has urged that a ceiling be placed on the share of the supplies of certain raw materials the armed services may have?

Are industries being deprived of materials, as has been suggested by an OPM executive, to force factories to shut down so that they will hustle for defense orders to open up with?

And to what extent are the shortages being simulated as a psychological maneuver to bring home to the people the privations of a war?

SPEECHES IN LONDON.

The prime minister of Canada, Mr. W. L. Mackenzie King, speaking in London on Thursday, asked the United States government to make a declaration regarding Germany parallel to Mr. Churchill's declaration regarding Japan.

It is not easy to see just what that parallel would be. Mr. Churchill had said, in effect, that if Japan moves against British colonial possessions or the islands belonging to Britain's ally, Holland, in the far east, the United States could count upon British support in repelling the attack. If the Japanese try to take British Singapore, the British will help the United States to defend it. The declaration was remarkable for its assumption that the United States was interested in maintaining the British empire in Asia. The offer of British help in this enterprise was scarcely astonishing.

There is no parallel to this situation in Europe. What Mr. Mackenzie King must have intended to say was that he hoped for a declaration of full partnership by the United States in the present war against Germany. Mr. King was followed by Mr. Churchill, who said that the Canadian premier had expressed his thought tho he [Mr. Churchill] would have hesitated to state the position in such pointed terms.

The speeches have been read in this country with the greatest interest, but also with some lack of understanding. Germany is now engaged in a bitter and exhausting war with Russia. The British are appealing to the United States for military support, but at the same time are doing little to take advantage of Germany's preoccupation on the eastern front. If Mr. King and Mr. Churchill are asking for American soldiers to fight in Europe, Americans will wonder why the British are not there already.

FOREIGNERS WHO SMEAR AMERICANS.

Mayor La Guardia's political organization, the American Labor party, advertised a war whoop meeting at Coney Island with a poster picturing a Nazi snake bearing the names of former President Hoover, Col. Lindbergh, and Senator Wheeler.

The Brooklyn America First committee has called this libelous attack to the attention of Mayor La Guardia, with the demand that he repudiate the act of his followers. The American Labor party has a well recognized communist wing, and the character of its present interest in the "Smash Hitler" movement may be gathered from the fact that the principal speaker billed for the meeting was Congressman Marcantonio of New York. Before the attack on Russia transformed the European war, in the eyes of the comrades, from an imperialist quarrel to a holy crusade, Marcantonio opposed in congress not only aid to Britain, but American defense as well.

Another attack on Col. Lindbergh came recently from Peter Fraser, prime minister of New Zealand, the totalitarian member of the British commonwealth of nations. Unlike Sir Josiah Wedgwood, Mr. Fraser had the courtesy to address his remarks nominally to fellow British subjects rather than his American hosts, but this did not alter the fact that he was an impudent foreigner attacking an American citizen for a stand taken on a question of American policy on which Americans alone have any right to speak.

Furthermore, Mr. Fraser is hardly a convincing exponent of the four freedoms or the Churchill-Roosevelt war aims. He governs the totalitarian member of the British commonwealth of nations. New Zealand anticipated and outstripped the New Deal in destroying the economic freedom of its people. Among the institutions administered by his government is a press censorship that does not confine itself to the control of military information, but endeavors also to stifle any criticism of the government's crackpot economics.

Others who have sought to smear Col. Lindbergh, Senator Wheeler, and other American patriots working to save this nation from a bloody and needless war have been, technically, American citizens. But people who associate themselves with foreigners and with foreign controlled subversive organizations to attack American citizens can make no claim to American patriotism for themselves. They are foreign agents, and in time will be generally recognized as such.

ON BEAUTIFUL TRUCK DRIVERS.

[Baltimore Evening Sun.]

By now you're probably familiar with our quixotic campaign for logic in the selection of the people who "reign over" the nation's agricultural fêtes and industrial pageants. For example, it is customary to have as "queen" of the Apple Blossom festival a pretty girl—instead of a "king": a man who has distinguished himself as a pomologist, which one might logically expect. Up in Michigan recently the thing was reduced to utter absurdity when the peach festival committee nominated a young woman who not only knows nothing about growing peaches but who actually is allergic to peaches—she can't get near them without breaking out with the hives.

Well, in view of this prevailing custom of selecting a pretty girl as Queen Soandso or Miss Whatever, we received an agreeable shock yesterday to learn that the California truck drivers have actually nominated a truck driver as Mr. California of 1941. That's progress, we thought, nodding approvingly. But on reaching the second paragraph of the news dispatch [from Santa Monica] we learn that this selection was made "on the basis of muscular symmetry and development, carriage, and general appearance." What do symmetry, carriage, etc., have to do with truck driving?

Nevertheless, we still stick to our statement that the California truck drivers have made progress. For at least they didn't select a pretty girl this year; and who knows?—next year they may even select a truck driver not on the basis of beauty but on the basis of ability to drive a truck.

CANDID CAMERA SHOTS.

One day we read a two column blast on the sports page, stating that the Cubs are a pitiful baseball team and will rapidly become more incompetent.

The next day we read another two column blast on another sports page, telling what a rip-roaring, steam-rolling baseball team the Cardinals are, and how they will rapidly become more devastating.

Then the Cubs met the Cardinals in a "crucial" double header and flattened them in both games.

Shall we say, "That's baseball," or give the old saw a new twist and say, "That's experts"?

We trust that when the Bicycle Racing Stars of the 19th Century hold their reunion, a few words will be said in memory of Rubberneck Point. This was a slang term for the stretch of lawn in front of the refectory in Washington park, near the Garfield boulevard entrance. Hundreds, maybe thousands, of cyclists would halt there to rest and enjoy the scenery, and in the long summer twilights the place was a sight to behold.

The rendezvous got its name because the lolling sportsmen were supposed to gather there to gaze at the cycling girls in bloomers who wheeled past. Rubberneck Point is almost forgotten, but its tradition should be preserved as a companion piece in Chicago's folklore to Peacock Alley.

The Lincoln park repairs, now well advanced into their third year, have acquired a rival for the dawdling record in the redecoration of the Tavern club's dining rooms. This work started in early June and is still leaning on its plastering brushes. The members have begun to call it their favorite WPA project.

A SIMPLE SOUL.

Long, long ago I found by test,
The simple things of life are best.
And so, my harp, whene'er it sings
(Since then) has sung of simple things.
Of bird and bee, of field and wood,
Of joy that comes from being good,
Of little cottage in the dell,
Of frocks so cheap that still look well,
Of little, daily tasks and joys,
Of raising little girls and boys. . . .
And now, if magic lamp I found
With generous genie lurking 'round,
Who'd fetch for me, if I should wish,
A castle in the hills, a dish
Of nightingale tongues or some such fare,
Some furs and gems for me to wear,
A car, a yacht, as quick as wink. . . .
Would I turn 'em down?
Well, whadda you think?

TO A POTTERY ELEPHANT.

Small replica of one whose untamed feet
Have trampled jungle wastes, you stand so still Upon my table while I feel the beat
Of luring tomtoms, swaying to their will
Dark, sultry forms; while I can hear wild rage
In trumpeting that shakes a tropic night.
Bright ornament that knows no captive cage,
No safari pack bears, nor alien sight
Of popcorn munching crowds disturbs; within
Your gaudy howdah just a bit of life
You hold, a tiny plant. Thus may I win
The peace that follows years of futile strife,
When I, like you, can keep the vagrant spring
Within my heart, a green and growing thing.

When America Was Anti-Bathtub.

When bathtubs were introduced into the United States in 1840 or shortly thereafter, they were regarded as a menace to health and the water supply. Virginia taxed owners of tubs $30 a year. Boston had a law in force from 1842 to 1865 which forbade bathing in tubs without the advice of a physician. Providence, Hartford, and Wilmington increased the water tax on buildings that had bathtubs. In Philadelphia a proposed law, forbidding bathing between Nov. 1 and March 15, failed to pass by a margin of two votes.

Even in the defense industries they have their little jokes, however grim. Recently a nearby plant shipped its first gun. NERVE FATIGUE FROM TOO LITTLE VITAMIN B.

STARVATION may mean simply too little nourishment of the right sort. But it may also indicate that the digestive tract cannot absorb the material which is delivered to it. The same rules apply to vitamins, particularly B. Altho we may be including adequate quantities in the diet, the blood stream may be unable to take up the elements because something has gone wrong with the bowel.

As we know, the lining of a large portion of the alimentary canal constitutes a vast absorbing surface. There are literally millions of receptacles for the grasping of food. Once a particle has been seized, it is dispatched to the circulation, altho it may make a temporary stop in the liver.

Especially among those who have passed middle life, attention must be directed toward the efficiency of digestion. Many an individual will remark, "I eat huge meals and cannot gain an ounce." In such a situation, the physician will investigate the secretions and make certain that the output from the gastric glands, the liver, and the pancreas is sufficient.

Assuming that vitamins are found in the diet in normal amounts—what then? If symptoms of deficiency appear, the power of the small bowel to take up dissolved nutriment has been destroyed. If edibles cannot be assimilated, vitamins share the same fate. Thus it is that many a person will find himself with numerous complaints due perhaps to a scarcity of B complex.

At times he will observe a mild sense of nausea, constipation, abdominal cramps, and frequent attacks of heartburn. In addition, the skin may be dry and scaly. He may tire easily and his friends may note that he is more irritable—more subject to depression than usual. Now, these manifestations may be traced directly to a shortage of some one of the B fractions. As we know, this substance plays an important part in the economy of the body.

There is every reason to believe that many of us may drop in appetite, and hence in well being, whenever the powers of assimilation decrease. This explains why some of our oldsters eat voraciously, twice as much as at the age of 40, and yet they do not seem to gain. Perhaps it is nature's way of providing a surplus of essentials, because only a portion is taken up and utilized by the cells.

Of course, we cannot expect that a normal balance of these accessories [vitamins] will cure diabetes, cataracts, arthritis, or high blood pressure. They will not, but they may place the system in far better fighting trim so that life will be more comfortable—with fewer aches and pains. In some cases, it may be necessary to administer some one of these compounds by injection into the muscles. As a rule, however, generous doses will be well borne if given in capsule form.

Strange to relate, many of the evidences of this type of deficiency [B] will simulate a neurosis, or what is commonly called "nervous exhaustion." The desire to eat, which follows the ensuing pickup in energy, is striking. The trouble may have come on originally because meat, potatoes, bread, and gravy constituted the bulk of the menus. Sometimes we get out of the habit of using fruits, whole grain cereals, dairy products, and meats in proper proportion. Failure to do so may lead, after a time, to an obvious lack of B.

E. N. writes: Is a floating kidney dangerous? What is the treatment?

REPLY.

The kidneys are held in place by large pads of fat. They have no other anchorage. If this material absorbs because of loss of weight or disease, the organs may wander away. There will be no symptoms unless the ureter, the tube leading to the bladder, becomes twisted or kinked. On the other hand, some will complain of a dragging sensation, which is uncomfortable.

NOT TRUE.

E. M. writes: Many victims of tuberculosis believe that the sputum they raise is part of the lungs. Just what is this substance?

REPLY.

Sputum is saliva mixed with mucus from the mouth and nose, and pusilke material from the lungs and bronchial tubes. It does not contain fragments of the organs.

FORGET THE FEAR COMPLEX!

Coloma, Mich., Sept. 4.—Let us stop dramatizing Hitler and quoting Hitler's threats. Quit proclaiming our fear of him. Instead let us proclaim the greater Americas—our genius, our speed, our unity of purpose for defense. Don't constantly shout what terrible condition we are coming to.

Let's forget even Hitler's name for a while and let's quit taking from our own people milk and other necessities to give to people who, in many instances, are enjoying the things we are doing without.

Let's dramatize America. Who's afraid of the big bad wolf? Not our people.

ABOUT MILK.

Chicago, Sept. 3.—Today milk was delivered to the children in the public school and altho the price increase in the city has not yet gone into effect the youngsters were charged 4 cents for the half pint. This compared to the 1 cent last year is a considerable increase, but no one is going to get rich on what the school children will drink this season. But what gets me is charging these school children the increased rate before it is effective. Could it be because a different company has the contract?

Mother of Four.

Chicago, Sept. 4.—Beginning Saturday, the price of milk will be raised 2 cents a quart. Shall we try raising our children on soda pop? It comes in different colors and is very reasonable. Would it make our children healthy citizens? We shall have soda pop on our breakfast cereal, and when thirsty will drink soda pop [untaxed?] instead of milk, as we have been doing.

FOR "HIS BOY" IN ICELAND.

Charleston, Ill., Sept. 3.—Orr's cartoon, "The Free Foursome," this morning is the best I ever saw, even tho I have been reading and seeing cartoons for more than 50 years and have hundreds of them in my library scrapbooks and otherwise.

I want one copy for "my boy" in the United States marines in Iceland—almost, if not, in "foreign wars," and one copy for my home here in Charleston. I believe the public would welcome an annual publication in book form containing all of The Tribune's cartoons, in size suitable for framing. One cartoon would be worth the price of the annual book. Miles A. Tipsword.

Galesburg, Ill., Sept. 4.—The "Free Foursome" cartoon by Orr should result in nation-wide comment and should be posted on every billboard in the United States.

STARS IN THEIR COURSES.

Glen Rock, N. J., Aug. 29.—Suntime, 1:45 a. m.—stars and thin veils of gossamer clouds. The stillness of eternal glory. Suddenly fiery signals from red Mars to red Aldebaran in high east; Castor signaling silver flashes to Pollux in northeast; and Orion, expansive monarch of all, led by mighty Betelgeuse and Rigel, shouldering his heavy belt above the horizon in the east.

Time was ready to record a celestial event on the dial of eternity. The Hyades and the seven clustered Pleiades riding high east. Suddenly the great jeweled Jupiter, shepherding his silver satellites, hurls a dazzling, challenging meteor at ringed Saturn, mother of nebulous veils. The sparkling meteor dashes down at Jupiter's gathered children.

Man at most has but a meteor's short orbit, but these great worlds which have always been and will always be, sing out in the Creator's praise: "For Thine is the kingdom, the power, and the glory, forever and ever, Amen."

Names that are singing symphonies from age to age: Capella and Cassiopia in the zenith; flashing Sirius, inseparable comrade of Orion. Happy it is that ancient nations named these stars with the immutable poetry of the gods; otherwise their glory would be ruined with the quarreling names of picayune politicians and plunderers—whoever was up for one short night, short as a meteor's fall!

A SOLDIER IN THE SOUTH.

Eglin Field, Fla., Sept. 3.—Congratulations on your editorial, "Northern Camps for Northern Boys." I, like thousands of other northern boys down in southern camps, appreciate that some one realizes the situation we're in.

In regard to the morale of the army here, I can truthfully say that it is very low. Nobody knows what it is to be here in the swamplands, day in and day out. All one does is work during the day, eat, and then retire, simply because there is absolutely no place to go. We are miles from town and that town has a population of only 2,500. The damp climate is unbearable; mosquito infested. J. S.

ABOUT THE GIVE-AWAY LAW.

Libertyville, Ill., Sept. 2.—I learned with pleasure today of Congressman Stephen A. Day's resolution to repeal the "lease-lend" [spend-lend-giveaway] law. I hope The Tribune will give widest publicity to this repeal resolution so that we now almost helpless Americans can spend for our own defense and not for foreigners who do not give a damn for us except to use us and get all they can out of us.

Cannot the help of the courts be invoked also to stop the Reconstruction Finance corporation from loaning money to Russia "on its promissory note"?

Commuter.

NO JUGO-SLAV LIBERTY.

New York, Sept. 3.—I have read with surprise the proclamation by your governor of "Jugo-Slav Liberty day," Sept. 6. And Gov. Lehman says the celebration embraces "a prayer that liberty will soon be restored to that people."

The Jugo-Slav people have never had liberty. The liberty that was promised them when President Wilson became the supporter of a new Serb-Croat-Slovene state in 1917 was never given to the Jugo-Slav people, not even to the Serbs. The Jugo-Slav people were sold out to a bloody dynasty, descendants of bandits and murderers—Karageorge . . . Black George.

Liberty was certainly not given to the Montenegrin people who were the first of the allies to rush to the rescue of Serbia with their entire army, headed by the heroic King Nicholas, when Serbia was assaulted by Hapsburg Austria.

The American people have not in the last 25 years interested themselves in the liberties of the Jugo-Slav peoples altho those peoples cried out to heaven in Montenegro, Croatia, Slovenia, Macedonia, and Dalmatia! The American people quite forgot the statement of the late President Wilson in his 14 points: "Montenegro will be restored!"

Luigi Criscuolo,
Former Delegate of Montenegro.

Chicago, Sept. 1.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. Is a will made out in Chicago by a Chicago resident probated in Cook county Probate court [2] regardless of the location of the property involved therein?

3. Who can legally enter said house between the time of the owner's death and final court proceedings? The property is in Wisconsin.

4. Regarding said property, whose signature is necessary on a quit claim deed? G. S.

1. In general the principal probate should be where the testator resided at the time of his death.

2. If there is real estate in another jurisdiction ancillary proceedings may be necessary as to it.

3. The heirs or beneficiaries under the will.

4. If the will gives the property to a named beneficiary then it seems probable that a purchaser would insist on probate and a conveyance from such beneficiary.

LADY CHAMPION TURNS A STAG INTO SURPRISE

Drives 650 Miles to Old Cyclists' Reunion.

BY WILLIAM THOMPSON.

A smiling matron of 64 yesterday turned the stag reunion of the Bicycle Racing Stars of the 19th century into a mixed party. The reunion met in the Sportsman's Golf club near Northbrook.

Mrs. Tillie Shoberg, who as Tillie Anderson was world's champion woman cyclist in 1895, arrived at the party unheralded. No reservation had been made for her at dinner. In fact, no one knew her when she strode across the clubhouse lawn, two hours late for the afternoon of reminiscing. Characteristically, Tillie drove the 650 miles from Minnesota with only gasoline stops to see the buddies of her racing days.

Maiden Name Known to All.

But Mrs. Shoberg had only to mention her maiden name to gain the attention of the 75 old time cyclists assembled. A hush fell over the old-timers as, one by one, they stepped forward to shake her hand and tell her how well she looked "after all these years."

When Tillie arrived Ald. James Bowler [25th] was all set to tell of his six day bike riding days. [He was one of the fastest.] J. P. "Pye" Bliss, 1401 East 57th street, world's champion at the mile in 1893, 1894, and 1895, had been demonstrating his technique. Frank Wing of Ottawa, Ill., was exhibiting perhaps the most complete set of scrapbooks on old time bike riding in existence. Edward Kreutzinger, 4877 North Hermitage avenue, was showing his collection of 450 bicycle name plates. But that was before Tillie came.

She told of winning 123 races out of 129 in 1895, her big year. She boasted of having done the half-mile in 52 seconds. [The best Pye Bliss ever did was 1:47 for the mile.] But what thrilled Tillie most was the realization that she was one of few at the reunion who had kept her figure.

Stays Near Racing Weight.

"I am only four pounds heavier than I was when racing," she bragged. "In all these years I have kept within five pounds of my racing weight, which was 135."

Mrs. Shoberg came to the United States from Sweden at the age of 14. At 16, she had saved enough money working as a seamstress to buy her first bicycle. She was 18 years old when the League of American Wheelmen recognized her as the best woman cyclist in the world. She later took part in six day bike races for women, a sport from which women have been barred for more than 40 years.

Some of the famous cyclists present at the reunion were Arthur G. Gardiner, 67 years old, of Spring Grove, Ill., world's champion in 1898; Gideon Hayes of Boston, 78 years old, who is recognized as the only man living who raced a high wheel bicycle as early as 1878; Walter C. Sanger of Milwaukee, 68 years old, world's champion in 1893, and the team of Ald. Bowler and John T. Fisher, 4700 Kenwood avenue, which rode in the six day bike races in Madison Square Garden, New York City, as early as 1902.

Award Presented

J. N. Armstrong of the Western Union Telegraph company, presenting $500 to Policeman Robert Hayes after the latter killed a hold-up man.

An armed robber who was shot and killed when he fled after robbing a Western Union telegraph branch office at 5238 Blackstone avenue Thursday night was identified yesterday as the man who two hours earlier had obtained $211 in a robbery of the Randolph street ticket office of the South Shore Line.

The slain robber was identified as Arthur Durk, 21 years old, a steel worker. Ray W. Downey, of East Chicago, Ind., ticket office cashier, identified Durk in the county morgue. Durk was killed by Policeman Robert Hayes of the Hyde Park station in an exchange of shots after being summoned by a messenger.

J. N. Armstrong, superintendent of Western Union, gave a check for $500 to Hayes yesterday.

"A Debt Is Paid"

SYNOPSIS.

Kathleen Murray inherits an income and a home in California and goes there to live. She and Hugo Lang, whose play is being produced by the local summer theater, fall in love, but Hugo wants to wait to marry until he has made more money. Carol Keyes is backing his play and insists that she and Maurice Reed play the lead rôles in spite of their mediocre ability. Ellen Mount, Hugo's foster mother, Jeanie Payson, and Toby Allerton have minor rôles. Jeanie asks Hugo to take her for a drive one evening as she has something to tell him. The next morning she is found dead and Hugo trailed to a deserted cabin. He refuses to talk and is tried and sentenced to life imprisonment for Jeanie's murder. Kathleen, still believing him innocent, hires Detective Bill Greer, and with Toby's aid they uncover evidence which makes them feel sure some one else was the murderer. A memorandum in Jeanie's handwriting shows she and some man had a joint bank account. A money box with only Jeanie's finger prints on it is found under the floor of the cabin in which Hugo was hiding. Altho Maurice and Carol elope the Monday after the murder, Toby finds that Jeanie and Maurice had gone on a day's trip together, strongly suggestive of a romance, a short time before the elopement. Greer notices that Maurice's and Ellen Mount's cars are almost identical and because of this he goes about tracing their lives. He uncovers evidence proving that Maurice is the son of Ellen, who had been given in adoption in infancy, and that he and Jeanie had been married secretly, but that Maurice had fallen in love with rich Carol Keyes in the meantime and wanted to marry her. Jeanie, finding she is going to have a child, refuses to give Maurice up. They argue and he kills her. Hugo accepts the blame rather than have the scandal of Maurice's birth hurt Ellen Mount. He feels he owes his foster mother a great debt as she once gave up a chance to play on Broadway to care for Hugo. But when Ellen finds out the real story she insists on Hugo's freedom.

INSTALMENT XLVIII.

CONFESSION.

Kathleen knew it would not be appreciated if she kissed Mrs. Mount. She said with all the nonchalance she could command: "Thanks! But a thing like that would carry more weight if you said it yourself."

Mrs. Mount handed her the empty glass. "O. K. I will—if you get him back in time. You'll have to light fires under a few swivel chairs. Officials don't jump unless you warm their backsides."

Kathleen realized later with a small, cold shock that in this characteristic fashion, Mrs. Mount had casually referred to her rapidly approaching death. She was walking up the stairs at Lake's End when it hit her. She stood still as if she had been struck over the heart. Mrs. Mount was as unlike old Mrs. Murray in the flesh as any two women could possibly be, but whatever fashioned the souls beneath was of the same shining imperishable material.

Kathleen did not see Mrs. Mount alive again. She lived to say farewell to Hugo, but she was gone when the expected repudiation by the Vanderwaters of Maurice as their son, followed his sordid confession. He had guessed Jeanie kept her money hidden in the cabin, he said, and followed her there. But he insisted that the murder was on impulse, goaded by her interference with and threat of spoiling his new and much more potent love, and aided by the secrecy of their meeting and the darkness of the night offering such fortuitous opportunity. He had persuaded Jeanie to walk in the woods with him in the dark. They had returned his car and the station wagon to their hotel parking places and gone to his cabin to continue the argument about breaking off his relations with Carol.

Jeanie had come to the end of her endurance, she said, and was now going to make their marriage public even it it did mean the coup de grace to the strained relations with his "family."

Finally, being unable to come to an agreement, he had gone out with her to walk back in the dark to the hotel. As they walked out into the thick darkness the impulse came to him to silence her forever. The rain had stopped. He took her arm and turned her footsteps uphill.

He said "perhaps after all, we can get things straight. Give me just a little time to get Carol out of my system——"

She had softened and been inclined to listen, but in the forest where they found her she had become quarrelsome again. A red rage possessed him and it was all over so quickly he could hardly believe taking a life was so easy.

He went back, feeling his way along the path by the tree trunks like a man in a dream. As he got back to his cabin he felt the first heavy drops of the rain beginning again. Then it rained almost like a cloudburst and the paths in the woods were running like rivers.

He admitted he had been baffled by Hugo's peculiar behavior, but had not associated it with himself. He said he would have confessed if Hugo had been condemned to death, but Bill Greer, who insisted he made some kind of a record in cold calculating selfishness, put himself on record as seriously doubting it.

Hugo, unmoved by his prison experience, but sobered by his mother's death, was unable to discuss it. He told Kathleen he was unhurt by his ordeal, but she found him strangely changed by it. He touched things and lifted them as if he savoured the smallest pleasure. He stared at the lake and the sky with a look in his eyes that wrung her heart.

She went to him and slipped her arm thru his as he stood on her veranda, hands dug in his pockets.

"What are you looking at? Your eyes have lights in them like stars—as if you were standing here and seeing heaven."

He turned to her. "That's what I am seeing."

She felt what she had feared never to feel again, the glory and the safety, the magic and the security, the freedom and the bondage of his arms. His heart beating against her with its strong living beat. The wetness of tears on their faces. The salt of the tears on the famished warmth of their lips.

Feelings running deep and painful—yet at the same time magical and beautiful. Tightly they clung together, almost afraid to accept the stupendous fact that this was not another brief dream, but the actual stuff of daily life.

But not life as those who had not known grief were dimly aware of it—but to live gloriously. Nothing taken for granted. Life at its sharpest and keenest—there for the taking—within reach of their hands.

"Hugo, don't leave me again," Kathleen begged. "Don't go out of my sight. It isn't safe. Let's get married."

He turned her into the room behind them without speaking and drew her beside him on the gray and yellow sofa.

He put his arm around her and held her close to him and she felt him thinking of what she had said. And she thought her own thoughts. Of Mr. Moffat and the play he wanted. And the other plays he'd read. And his opinion that Hugo was going up because he wasn't just a talented young man who'd written a good play, he was a born playwright who could translate life in terms of stage and go on doing it. And she hadn't told him yet. Nobody had told him yet because too many things had been happening and this had been shelved with the things that were unimportant. But it was important. He was ready to marry and hold his own, so it was very important. But now she kept quiet about it.

"You know what I think," he said.

"I know, Hugo. But you know what I fell. At least you should know——"

"Yes, I do know. And you've as much right to have it your way as I have to be stubborn and proud. I know I can live like a man in spite of your money, so you shall have it the way you want it——"

Her tense nerves relaxed and the last of fear and agony went out of her at that moment, and she felt a glowing golden happiness like a new strength rush up in her.

Susan came to the door, but she knocked before entering.

"Miss Kathleen, that Mrs. Payson is here again, and she won't take no for an answer. She says she has a letter, and shall she take it to the police or shall she give it to Mr. Hugo?"

"O, that letter! I forgot all about it. Better ask her to come in, Susan. Take her into the dining room."

Kathleen explained to Hugo when Susan had withdrawn. "Jeanie's mother has been worrying me for money. She has a letter addressed to you from Jeanie and first she wanted me to pay for it. Shall I go, or do you feel prepared to see her?"

Hugo got up from the sofa.

"I'll come. From now on I'll attend to everything."

This is good, Kathleen thought, this is living. "She's a firecracker, Hugo. I ought to warn you."

But Mrs. Payson was in a mellow mood of meek apology.

"I'm very glad to see you again, Mr. Lang. Of course I knew it wasn't you. I always liked you."

"Thank you, Mrs. Payson," said Hugo gravely, "the loyalty of my friends gave me courage."

Kathleen saw the woman redden.

"Well, it's this letter. I told Miss Murray about it. Well, when I read about this vile fellow caught at last I thought to myself, well, there's no harm to open it. After all she was my own daughter. So here it is Mr. Lang, and I'm sure you'll know exactly what to do about it."

RARE DRUG! They found that the rich Madame Rentrew had been poisoned by a rare drug. Somebody was after her money. Was it Raoul de Chabenil, the most dangerous man in Paris? Was it Gay Ripley, lovely American cousin of the murdered woman? See if you can solve this exciting new mystery serial—"NO LIGHT CAME ON," by Alice Campbell—starting Monday in the Chicago Tribune.

RUSHES TO AVERT CHAGRIN, SHIVERS ON NORTH SHORE

Master Is Told How 33 Fur Coats Were Pawned.

Processes of law struck a rapid pace yesterday in the office of Martin Ward, referee in bankruptcy. Witnesses came and went with clocklike regularity. Referee Ward did most of the questioning to save time ordinarily lost in wrangling between lawyers.

There was reason for haste. Unless the federal District court acts with extraordinary swiftness winter will be here and 33 women from the north shore's fur coat social stratum will be embarrassed. Their coats are in hock—pledged to secure a loan of $1,700 from a Chicago pawnbroker—and it looks as if it will take a court order to get them out.

The courts became involved in the fur coat dilemma last June when the North Suburban Cleaners, Inc., 1811 Benson avenue, Evanston, was thrown into bankruptcy by its creditors. William O. Burns and Carl Pomerance, attorneys appointed by the court to act for the corporation, discovered that the former president, Bradford L. Keeler, had pawned 33 coats, 11 rugs, and a couple of muffs intrusted to him for storage.

Charge Pawning Is Illegal.

They filed a petition to recover the property, charging that Keeler had pawned it illegally. It was the hearing on this petition that was before Ward yesterday.

The most helpful witness was James M. Gannon, a truck driver for the cleaners. Acting on what he said were Keeler's orders, he delivered 15 coats to the pawn shop, North Star Loan bank, 519 North Clark street, on June 4 and received $300.

"I took them in and laid them on a table," he said. "The clerk looked them over and said they were in pretty poor condition. I was surprised because we had spent a lot of time picking out the best coats in the vaults. I told him they came from the finest homes on the north shore and he finally gave me $300."

Quote Two Explanations.

Harry Jacobs, clerk in the pawn shop, and Mrs. Eva Braverman, proprietor, said Keeler first told them the coats belonged to his wife and daughters. Later they asked how large his family was and he changed his story, telling them the coats had been left in the cleaning plant so long they had been forfeited.

Referee Ward's curiosity was piqued by the absence of Keeler. When he asked Attorney Pomerance where Keeler was, Pomerance replied that he was "fishing" somewhere.

Over the protests of Pomerance, who pleaded for an earlier date for the next hearing, Referee Ward continued the session until next Thursday. At that time, he told Pomerance, he will expect the corporation to show proof that the missing coats are owned by the women listed on the corporation records. There was a hint that the women themselves might be called in if other evidence is lacking.

ARREST BROTHER OF CALDWELL ON LARCENY CHARGE

Michael Pollack used the same "I refuse to testify" tactics as his brother, Max Caldwell, yesterday when questioned about the missing funds of the clerks' union before a mastery in chancery. Then as he left the hearing room he was served with a larceny warrant.

Michael Pollack.

Sergts. George Barnes and John O'Brien of the police labor detail took Pollack into custody on a warrant signed by Vernon Housewright, international representative of the AFL sent here to aid in straightening out the affairs of local 1248, Retail Clerks' International Protective association.

Housewright charged that an addressograph machine, lent to the local by the international and signed for by Pollack, has been missing from union headquarters since the day the Caldwell régime was thrown out and the international moved in. Pollack was released on a real estate bond of $5,000.

During the hearing before Master Daniel A. Covelli, Attorney Francis Heisler, representing the rank and file members of the union who revolted against Caldwell, told the court he can prove that the ex-bootlegger took $300 a week from the union treasury ostensibly for attorneys' fees.

Pollack, when placed on the stand, answered each of Heisler's questions with a refusal to testify on the ground that he might incriminate himself.

HOW DONOVAN, GAMBLER, TOOK UNION CONTROL

Laundry Workers' Boss Is Ex-Saloonkeeper.

Some of the mystery which has shadowed William J. Donovan as a so-called labor leader was dispelled yesterday when members of local 46 of the Laundry Workers International union sued to oust him as secretary-treasurer and to demand an accounting of $1,100,000 of funds.

Union leaders who know him well describe Donovan as a mild mannered individual and a "square gambler" who always paid his losses. They said he was undoubtedly thrust into union activities as a front for powerful interests.

Bootlegger During Prohibition.

In the prohibition era, according to the records, Donovan was a small scale bootlegger on the west side, and later was a saloonkeeper. At one time he had a managerial rôle in the Lincoln tavern and the Bon Air Country club, both gambling resorts.

About 1934 or 1935 he was eased out of the gambling business in the suburban area by the Skidmore-Johnson interests. In 1937, his acquaintances said, Donovan was selling a measuring device for coffee to restaurants. Then, because he was well liked personally, his friends put him in control of the laundry union.

Recently Donovan has been ill, and has spent much time in Palm Springs, Cal., recuperating.

Union Mentioned in Confession.

The union's subservience to the gangster element in the labor movement was mentioned in the deathbed confession of Matt Taylor, business agent for the elevator operators, which led to the exposure of George Scalise, racketeer head of the Building Service Employés International.

Later George McLane, a bartenders union chieftan, charged that Donovan was a friend of Scalise and Nitti. It is reported in labor circles that Donavan was thrust into the international presidency of the union at Denver, Colo., convention in 1939, and that among the men who helped him was Scalise. Later Donavan and Max Caldwell, deposed head of the Retail Clerks union, became friends and attended union gatherings together.

HEART ATTACK KILLS JEWELER.

JOLIET SEIZES FOUR RAPISTS; THEY CONFESS

Admit Beating Victim, 22, with a Blackjack.

Joliet police yesterday arrested four hoodlums who confessed they beat and raped a 22 year old Joliet woman and beat her escort early Monday.

State's Attorney James E. Burke of Will county announced that he would take the case before the grand jury when it reconvenes a week from Monday. He said he will ask that the gang pay the maximum penalty under the law. The trial jury may fix the punishment at life imprisonment or any number of years in prison.

The Four Prisoners.

Those held, all residents of Joliet, are James Bondarcuk, alias Bond, 19, of 615 Richmond street; Clarence Spisak, 18, of 413 North Bluff street; James Alessio, 17, of 416 Liberty street, and Curtis Binzen, 16, of 10 North Hickory street.

Police said that Bondarcuk has been arrested several times, once in connection with the hijacking of slot machines in Calumet City last February and for robbery in Danville two months ago. He said he is on probation in the latter case.

Spisak and Alessio met while they were in a Civilian Conservation corps camp. Spisak has been out of work and Alessio went to work in a brick factory a month ago. Binzen has not lived at home in several months, he said.

Police Get a Tip.

Bondarcuk was arrested first, on information obtained by Policeman Frank Skul. He confessed to Chief Nicholas J. Fornango and Capts. John Graham and Ervin Boe of the Joliet police. Arrest of the others followed.

Sheriff Joseph O'Neill, who should have assumed charge of the investigation because the crime occurred outside of the city, was not notified because of the apathy he had shown for the case.

Bondarcuk said that he and his companions started out to rob spooners along county roads. He said that he carried a toy pistol and a blackjack. Several miles from the city they saw parked near the road the car in which was the woman and her escort, Joseph Cernugel, 25, of 205 Moran street, Joliet.

Beaten with Blackjack.

They approached the car and when Cernugel protested, Bondarcuk hit him over the head with the blackjack and knocked him unconscious. The woman screamed, and Bondarcuk hit her with the blackjack. Spisak struck her with his fist and took her wrist watch.

According to their confession, the four then removed the woman's clothing and bound her escort with it. The woman was carried into a nearby field where the four raped her. Bondarcuk said that he went back to Cernugel's car and took $12 and the car keys from him.

Alessio said he disconnected the wires to the sparkplugs and broke the headlights on Cernugel's car to insure that he would not pursue them.

Binzen, the youngest, was the last to confess. The others admitted the crime with an air of boastfulness, according to the police. When confronted later with the girl and her escort, they assisted them in making an identification.

Bondarcuk said that he threw the toy pistol in the Des Plaines river after the crime.

DIES OF INJURIES IN FALL.

Miss Emma Wiederhold, 78 years old, who fell Tuesday on the porch of her home at 533 West 62d street, died yesterday in Evangelical hospital.

FLEMING, POLICE VETERAN, NAMED TO LAIRD'S POST

Capt. James J. Fleming

He succeeds Lester J. Laird, the in and out chief, who resigned after THE TRIBUNE had published Aug. 22 a photograph showing him dining in the Drake hotel with his admitted friend, William R. Skidmore, reputed gambling fixer, who is under conviction as a tax dodger.

Gets Instructions Today.

Laird quit, he said, to avoid embarrassing his boss, Sheriff O'Brien. The sheriff named Sergt. John J. Healy acting chief, and followed this with yesterday's appointment of Fleming as chief.

Capt. Fleming, who automatically retires from the Chicago police force on Monday when he reaches the compulsory retirement age of 63 years, is expected to be sworn in as highway police chief this afternoon. At that time he will confer with Sheriff O'Brien on his new duties.

Two Creditable Mentions.

Capt. Fleming joined the Chicago police department in April, 1906. He became a sergeant in 1913, a lieutenant in 1919, and a captain in 1926. In 1931 he was suspended for a technical violation of police rules in failing to see that two of his men testified in a dry case, but against that infraction is a record of 35 years of service in which he won two creditable mentions. He has been at the Gresham station since 1935, when he was assigned there to wipe out what Commissioner Allman described as "open gambling."

The new chief lives at 114 South Mayfield avenue and is the father of two policemen, James G. of the Des Plaines street station and George of the detective bureau.

FOUND DEAD IN BATHTUB.

SKIDMORE TAKES TAX CONVICTION TO HIGHER COURT

Prejudicial conduct was charged against the government yesterday in a brief filed in the United States Circuit Court of Appeals seeking to set aside the conviction of William R. Skidmore, reputed gambling front, who is under a sentence of 2½ years for income tax evasion.

The brief, filed by Attorney William Scott Stewart, complained that Skidmore was "treated as if he were a dog when he took the stand." Moreover, the brief went on, the government appealed to "passion and prejudice" in its presentation of evidence.

The brief contended that the government improperly tried to show a tieup between police and gambling, and cited the government's portrayal of alleged friendship between Skidmore and Lester Laird, former chief of the county highway police. The appeal pleaded that Skidmore is entitled to a reversal "in the name of fair play." Skidmore was tried before Federal Judge Philip L. Sullivan. He was found guilty of evading payment of $353,194 in taxes.

Rape Indictment Against Bike Bandit to Be Asked

The grand jury will be asked to indict Robert Schaffer, the 16 year old bicycle bandit, on a charge of rape and two larceny charges, Francis McCurrie, assistant state's attorney, said yesterday. Schaffer, who was arrested several days ago, has admitted raping a 13 year old girl and attempting to attack another. He has been identified in 39 robberies. He lives at 823 West 50th place.

Scientists See Help to Brain in Vitamin B-1

BY MARCIA WINN.

Evidence that vitamin B-1 may have a salutary effect on the brain was reported yesterday to the American Psychological association.

The discovery, made by Robert A. Patten, Harry W. Karn, and C. C. King of the University of Pittsburgh in a study of epileptic rats, was reported at the association's 49th annual meeting now underway at Northwestern university. From it may come a cure for human epilepsy of the most serious type.

The scientists fed varying levels of vitamin B-1 to five groups of rats. Convulsions then were induced by a high frequency whistle at a pitch so piercingly shrill that few humans can hear it.

The rats whose diet had been low in calories and vitamins were highly susceptible to the convulsions. When fed B-1 in large quantities together with calcium, phosphorus, and magnesium, they became less subject.

Lack of food and lack of vitamins, especially B-1, thus are important factors, the scientists deduced, in the cause of such convulsions.

The similarity of these convulsions in rats to human epilepsy and the human brain was established in a study reported by Donald B. Lindsley and Frank W. Finger of the Emma Pendleton Bradley home and Brown university. They studied 26 rats with a history of sound-induced seizures, charting, among other responses, their brain waves during the seizures.

No matter how low the intelligence of a child's mother or how low the occupational status of his father, the child's intelligence is not handicapped by either if placed in an adoptive home in infancy, Harold M. Skeels of the University of Iowa reports. Dr. Skeels' conclusion, based on a study of 229 children placed in foster homes in infancy, tended to disprove the school of thought which contends that such a child should be placed only in a foster home of low culture. The children studied, whose I. Q. averaged 102 when placed in the foster homes, had I. Q.'s averaging 110.3 by the age of three years.

Parents can inadvertently make sissies of their boys and tomboys of their girls by rearing them in unpleasant or unconventional environments, Leonard W. Ferguson of the University of Connecticut reported. Boys tend to become feminine and girls to become masculine, he said, if one parent is inferior to the other, if one parent is absent too much, if they are lax in religious training, niggardly with gifts, and lacking in affection toward their children.

Youthful Bridal Pair Just After Ceremony

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Only Families at Wedding of Modrea Mullen

Only members of the immediate families were present at the marriage last night of pretty, young Modrea Hoyne Mullen and William Hamilton Mitchell Jr., which took place in the Lake Forest home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Bernard Mullen. However, a large reception and dance followed at the Onwentsia club, where the young couple received the congratulations of their own friends and of their parents' friends as well.

The new Mrs. Mitchell wore her mother's lovely wedding gown of princess lace and satin, made on princess lines, with a long train of the lace and satin. Her flowing tulle veil was held to her head by a tiny round skull cap trimmed with a wreath of orange blossoms, and she carried a large, old fashioned bouquet of mixed white flowers.

The bride's headdress was copied in real flowers for her attendants, who wore the tiny skull caps well forward, and carried round bouquets to match. They were Miss Shirley Strotz, a debutante of the season, as maid of honor, and the bridegroom's subdeb sister, Ginevra Mitchell, and Subdebutante Deborah Smith as the bridesmaids.

The wedding group made a stunning picture of youth and beauty as it came down the circular staircase with its wrought iron railing and crossed the hall to the living room where the Rev. Oliver B. Brackett read the service. Candlelight cast a soft glow.

Mr. Mitchell, son of Mrs. King Mitchell and of Mr. Mitchell Sr., and his bride will be at home in Oakland, Cal., for the next two years while he attends the Boeing Aviation school.

WHITE NIGHT IN CHICAGO.

The city has died
Into a white-hot breathlessness.
The room is filled
With a cloud-haze of smoke
And sound,
To my student friends
I am explaining
The structure of Chinese music
And they smile at the thought
Of only five notes
Without semitones.

We drink iced rice wine
And I play for them
Several recordings
Of the Shu-lute.

When these friends have left,
I will tear the sweat-drenched clothes
From my steaming back
And swing from the chandelier
In a loincloth.
One more rise of the thermometer
Will send me running thru the streets
Like a dog in fever.

Yet Miss Jones sits there
In her coolest manner
Eating lichee nuts
And talking of clothes
And the numerous men
Who admire her.

September.

[By Beatrice Phelps.]

There comes an enchanted time when the summer is spent. A period of days that are delightfully different from those just past; the mornings dawn noticeably later, serene and cool, and spreading their light slowly, set the dew-wet grasses sparkling: the afternoons flooded with an amber glow are gentle, yet more exciting in their very stillness. Slight are the songs of the insects; only the cricket, fiddling sharply, disturbs the silence. Even the sky senses a change, for its pale blue cup is cloudless.

• • •

Above the gardens' bloom, the wings of butterflies are topaz flakes in the sun. The bittersweet berries brighten to orange. Yellow leaves twirl down. And on the fences, the nightshade hangs jewelled with rubies. Under the oaks where the acorns are falling, the purple grackles strut with plumage scintillating in the sunlight. A vanguard of warblers—just down from the north—plays hide and seek thru the treetops. No song quickens the woodlands, but flocks of birds have congregated there and are feeding steadily, preparing themselves for flight.

• • •

Subtle—yet prophetic—is the promise of fall that lies in the yellowing of roadside grasses and the goldenrod lifting its plumes; in the fragrance of ripening fruits and the bronzing of all foliage.

It is the summer's pause, bestowing gentle days before the autumn flames.

Baffled.

The secretary of a loop business executive answered a ring of the office telephone. "No, Mr. Ross isn't in," she said. "Who shall I say called him?"

"Mr. Onderdonk," said the voice.

The secretary asked the caller to repeat the name twice. "I'm sorry, but I can't get it," she said. "It sounds just like Onderdonk to me."

Famed Starrett Girls' School Closes Doors

The Starrett School for Girls, 4515 Drexel avenue, one time fashionable finishing school and a private elementary and high school for the last decade, will not reopen this year, it was learned yesterday. The closing, forced by a small advance registration, may be permanent unless persons interested in the school come to its aid.

The school has been operated by Mr. and Mrs. Gerard T. Smith for the last 23 years. During the depression it was taken over by the Chicago Title and Trust company under a trust agreement and since then has been rented from the company.

Mrs. Helen Ekin Starrett founded the school in Oak Park 58 years ago. It became one of the leading institutions of its kind in the middle west, attracting students from all over the country. Later it was moved to 47th street and Vincennes avenue where it was destroyed by fire. It then occupied a building at 4712 Woodlawn avenue, which also burned. A fourth location was at 4932 Lake Park avenue.

When it was taken over by the Smiths, the school was installed in the former 22 room mansion of John G. Shedd at 45th street and Drexel avenue. They purchased this building for $75,000 in 1924 and the same year bought for $85,000 the residence of "Mike" McDonald, once a leader in gambling and racing circles.

Ten years ago, to meet college entrance requirements, the school was turned from a finishing institution into a private elementary and high school.

Betrothal and Debut Parties Fill Week-End

BY JUDITH CASS.

THE number of parties—wedding receptions, debuts, and an engagement announcement celebration—on the calendar for today and tomorrow are enough to make even the most hardened partygoer a little dizzy. There even is a horse show tomorrow to interest those who like such events. It will be the 10th annual Dunham Woods show, and tonight, as usual, there will be a horse show ball at the club.

The young engaged couple who will be toasted by their friends this afternoon are Miss Ruth Elizabeth Owen, second daughter of Mrs. Donald H. McGilbney of Lake Forest, and Peter Pook, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Pook of La Grange. Mr. and Mrs. McGilbeny are giving a cocktail party this afternoon at their home for Miss Owen and her fiancé. No date for the wedding is set. Miss Owen, who made her debut last season, will attend the Chicago Art institute this winter. Mr. Pook attended the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and is in the steel business.

Reception and Dance for Miss Laura Winston.

Tonight brings what will be one of the largest debut parties of the season, a reception and dance the James Horner Winstons of Evanston are giving at the Indian Hill club for their younger daughter, Laura. Older family friends have been invited to the reception, from 9 until 11 o'clock, and the younger people have been asked for dancing and supper at 10. Miss Winston will not be going to any of the many dinner parties planned before the dance as she will have a long evening.

There will be two debut teas today, one given by the Joseph M. Cudahys in Lake Forest for their niece, Miss Leonore Cudahy; the other by Mr. and Mrs. Vernon M. Welsh of Winnetka to introduce to society their daughter, Sallie Ellen.

Mr. and Mrs. Cudahy's party will be for the family's older friends to meet the bud, who is the daughter of Edward J. Cudahy and the late Mrs. Cudahy. Miss Cudahy had a young people's party earlier this summer.

Assisting the debutante this afternoon will be eight debutantes, the Misses Annie Lawrie Ryerson, Bessie Cowles, Frances Clow, Joan Peabody, Diana Hill, Ann Carpenter, Dudley Winston, and Shirley Hopkins. Mrs. Cudahy and Miss Cudahy are disappointed that another niece and cousin, Miss Peggy Nicholson, is not here to assist, but she still is in Santa Barbara, where she spent the summer, having been detained by an injury to her knee.

Miss Welsh's House Guests to Assist at Her Tea.

The Welshes have three young house guests for over the week-end: Miss Eleanor Cochran, who has come down from Mackinac Island; Miss Virginia Hine of Milwaukee, a Vassar classmate of Miss Welsh, and Miss Frances Brown, a former Winnetkan, of Gambier, O., who attends Bryn Mawr. Also assisting this afternoon will be the Misses Cynthia Harris, Peggy and Blanche Hoyt, Betty Mercer, Anne Northrop, Barbara Pettibone, Sally Glaser, Helene Harding, Nancy Scribner, Suzanne Straub, and Laura Winston.

Following the tea Mr. and Mrs. William O. Kurtz will entertain at dinner at the Moraine-on-the-Lake for Miss Welsh, her assistants and their escorts, and then the group will go on to Miss Winston's party.

Miss Winston, who will be a sophomore at Vassar this fall, has a classmate as her house guest over the week-end, Miss Pamela Whitney, who is a Boston debutante of this season. Mrs. Herbert De Young, Miss Win-

October Bride

[Koehne Photo.]

Miss Ruth Kahle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Otto Charles Kahle of River Forest, who will be married in October to Arthur B. Carlson Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Carlson of Kenilworth. Miss Kahle attended Beloit college. Mr. Carlson is a graduate of Purdue.

North Shore Gardeners Open Dahlia Show Today

The sixth annual Lake Forest Dahlia show presented by the North Shore Dahlia society and the Lake Forest Garden club will be held today and tomorrow in the Lake Forest Day school gymnasium. Alfred Eide is chairman of the show committee which consists of Erich Muhr, Elof Clauson, Rolf Marck, Harry J. Lynch, Ralph Clausen, H. E. Underbrink, and Joe Peddle. The society was organized in 1935 by a group of gardeners interested in dahlias as cut flowers and a hobby. Judging the exhibit will be Mrs. Howard C. Phillips, Mrs. James H. Douglas, and Mrs. Charles S. DeLong.

Stern Father Loses Faith of Daughters

BY DORIS BLAKE.

Copyright: 1941: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.

Some of you fathers, when you do bear down on your daughters in the grand disciplinary manner, do it in a manner that is not conducive to either the girl's good or to your future confidential relations with her.

Bunny is 17, is told she is very pretty, but her father is so strict with her that she isn't even allowed to look out of the window for fear she is looking for boys. Bunny tells that her older sisters' lives are made miserable because of the father's watchfulness and suspicions.

"I would like to know what is on my father's mind about me. Why doesn't he trust me? I have never done a thing I couldn't tell him about, and yet he makes me feel guilty all the time. My sisters say that they are going to leave home as soon as they can. It just seems daughters have heartaches in their fathers. If they don't drink, they are terrible in some other way."

We have only this to say, you parents, that you are losing one of the most precious relationships in life when you alienate a young daughter by too rigid discipline and untoward suspicions, expressed or implied.

ston's sister, and Mrs. Albert Winston, their sister-in-law, will not be receiving tonight, but they will assist. There will be dancing on an outdoor platform and on the two inclosed porches that flank it.

Rain and Lightning Try to Mar Debut Party.

Thursday night's Lake Forest debut party was not exactly as planned by the hosts, Mr. and Mrs. Roy D. Keehn, but it was a great success nevertheless. The severe lightning and rainstorm made it necessary to hold indoors the supper-dance planned as an al fresco debut for Miss Kay Keehn. The electricity failed just before the guests began to arrive and the bud and her feminine house guests had to dress by the light of candles and photographers' flashlights. The high wind nearly tore away a huge marquee that had been erected to protect the dance floor, and swimming was not as popular as anticipated. Most of the guests had enough of a wetting as they went to the party!

Mrs. Russell Lord and the William MacLingos Jr. are giving a dinner-dance at the Onwentsia club tonight for their daughter and sister, Miss Kathleen Lord, who is taking part in the season's festivities, but who does not wish the party called a debut. Some of the young marrieds are being asked to this party, also.

Miss Sally Glaser to Make Her Debut Tomorrow.

Miss Sally Glaser, eldest daughter of the James M. R. Glasers of Glencoe, will make her debut tomorrow at the most informal sort of party, but one that is certain to make a decided hit with all of the young people who attend it. A "sportsbrunch," the party is called. The guests are asked to come to the Glaser home, Rosemor lodge, at noon and to bring tennis and bathing clothes. There will be dancing on an outdoor platform near the pool.

Miss Patty Gamble has come from St. Louis to assist her Vassar roommate, who also will have as assistants her subdeb sister, Joan, and the Misses Cynthia Harris, Katrina Nevius, Louise Konsberg, Julie Goodman, Marni Burnham, Virginia Smith, Helen Harding, and Sally Bokum.

There also are some smaller parties for the debutantes on tomorrow's calendar. The Clay Judsons are giving a buffet supper at their Lake Forest home for Miss Mary Cornelia Aldis. The former Alice Clay Judson and her bridegroom of several weeks ago, Edward L. Ryerson III., have returned from a long wedding trip to Mexico and will be among the guests.

Mrs. Wirt Morton and Mrs. Theodore S. Proxmire are giving a sports party and brunch tomorrow at the Onwentsia club for Miss Louise Strawn.

Mr. and Mrs. Vernon R. Loucks are entertaining at dinner parties tonight and tomorrow night so that their friends may hear their talented daughter, Catherine, play the piano. She is just completing a course of musical studies in Evanston, and will depart later this month to enter Mount Holyoke college, where she will continue her study of music.

Horse Show Steps Up Social Doings at Wayne.

Social doings in Wayne are stepped up to a mad pace this week-end by the horse show, the horse show ball, and attendant cocktail and dinner parties. Everything is in readiness for the show, which starts at 9:30 o'clock tomorrow, and all available parking spaces have been sold. General admission tickets will sell for 50 cents at the gate.

Reservations for dinner before tonight's ball have been made by Mr. and Mrs. Russell Doherty, Mr. and Mrs. John Shaw, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Mills, the Kenneth Hesses, the Stephen Harringtons, the Raymond O. Mitchells, Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Hopper of Grosse Pointe, Mich., Mr. and Mrs. J. McWilliams Stone, the A. Loring Rowes, Mr. and Mrs. James G. Shennan, and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Allen.

Mr. and Mrs. Doherty will give a cocktail party before the ball, and so will the Dohertys. The Mitchells will give a party tomorrow.

THRU THE LOOKING GLASS

After watching some television fore and aft of the transmitter we're firmly convinced that the ambitious mothers of the future had better beseech the good fairies to endow their daughters with no fewer than three great gifts—intelligence, a voice, and the photogenic quality. It's such an exacting medium that the future Shirleys and Gretas won't get by with much less than perfection in all three.

The radio actress doesn't need much more than the kind of a voice the part calls for. Her brain isn't overtaxed, since she can always read her lines, and the public need never know how beautiful or otherwise she really is. In the movies she must have a voice and good looks, but if she's a birdbrain who muffs her lines she's saved by the fact that they can always cut, patch, or shoot the whole thing over again and again. In television the actress works without a script, her voice must be good, and the more she has of that precious photogenic quality the better off she'll be.

We loved watching an expert give some makeups for the television subjects. It's corrective, but not in the fakey sense. Rather, its whole purpose is to give merely a better translation of the subject's natural appearance, a translation suited to the medium.

As in the movies, a burnt sienna shade of lipstick is better than red; foundation and powder are brownish, too. Eyeshadow must be applied in minute quantities—and that deftly. And freckles, plain ordinary brown freckles, DON'T show. In fact if you have a zillion of them all over your face, chances are your skin will televise nicely just as is. The make-up expert told us that if he could duplicate that freckle pigment tone in a foundation, he'd really have something for television!

Have you often wondered just how well fed your husband was on one of those fishing trips in which the whole party camps out and cooks over an open fire? Wonder no more. He eats like a king. The meal an Indian guide turns out is real competition for a housewife's talents.

I had the opportunity of eating such a meal not long ago. And O, how good those fresh caught fish tasted. Our menu consisted of fried fish, crisp bacon, pork and beans (a lifesaver on the days when the fish "just won't bite"), French fried onion rings, French fried or baked potatoes, bread and butter with jam, canned fruit and cookies or cake, all served with plenty of good, stout coffee. It's all done to a turn and puts a woman to shame with all her beautiful kitchen equipment!

The bacon is fried first and put aside to keep warm. Then into the skillet goes a quantity of fat, enough to fill the deep pan ⅔ full. When the fat is almost, but not quite, smoking hot, in go the potatoes, which, a few minutes later, come out crusty brown and mealy. The flour coated onion rings and the cleaned and floured fish then each get a turn in the skillet. Meanwhile, the water for the coffee is bubbling to a boil.

It's a meal that lacks fruits and fresh vegetables and leans heavily to the fried side, but these foods are fried properly and have absorbed very little of the cooking fat. It's all done with one skillet, a fork for turning and a thick-bladed but very sharp hunting knife for preparing the food. I'm not advancing this as an argument for throwing out all your fine thermometers and handy French fryers or your modern range. But it does show us women that we're mighty foolish to fret and stew along with the dinner when an excellent meal may be turned out so simply.

The method of cooking the fish is worth handing on, I think. The woman cook in the camp prepared fish in the same way except that her skillet was less full of fat. Here is her recipe. It may be used for any lean fish, or fillets, or steaks.

FRIED FISH.

Wash the cleaned and boned, but not skinned, fish and dry thoroly. Sprinkle well with salt and roll in flour. Have fat a half inch deep in large skillet. Have fat very hot (375 to 380 degrees). Drop in fish, skin side down, to prevent curling. Fry until lightly browned (about four or five minutes), turn and brown second side lightly. Remove from fat, drain on absorbent paper, and serve at once with the flesh side up.

Double Service Dresses Now at Peak of Season

BY REA SEEGER

Those important onepiece dresses equal to the double duty service of wear with or without benefit of colored jacket or furs for street and town are at peak interest now . . . you'll not find the varied assortment a month hence, and the smartest finds vanish like mist under the noonday sun.

Dull crêpe teamed with velvet is one of the swankiest get-togethers imaginable, especially when the velvet pipes a double peplum, outlines a chest pocket flap and makes demure turn back cuffs, and a narrow collar. Dull wool crêpe also inked in with black velvet is another winning idea.

Particularly handsome combinations of moire and velvet or velveteen make other finds ready for afternoon dress parade. Dark Victorian brown, black, and forest green are three notable color backgrounds for shining costume jewelry or precious jeweled clips and bracelets as well as fur muffs, fur hats, and gloves with fur cuffs.

All faille dresses or dresses of moire offer alternate finds for the velvets or velveteens. Three contrast colors in thin wool are splendid examples of what a good designer can wangle with materials and clash of contrast. The colors are usually in bands.

Double peplums and single circular peplums are faced back with velvet, tier skirts alternate the dull material with velvet, velveteen dramatizes a white wool blouse top, appliqued scrotie effects in dusky velvet trim blouse front, sleeves as well as skirt, in other inspired daytime dresses. There never has been a year when two materials or two or three colors have been so smoothly combined as in the clever one piece daytime dress collections now featured in every shop in town.

Clarke College Reception.

The Chicago Clarke College club will hold its annual tea and reception for freshmen students and their mothers and for 1941 graduates at 2 o'clock today at the Woman's University club, 410 South Michigan avenue. Miss Virginia Austin and Miss Ruth Donlan are co-chairmen.

GASOLINE ALLEY—THE LAST WORD

I'VE HAD A SWELL TIME SINCE YOU'VE BEEN IN DETROPOLIS, UNCLE WALT.
YOUR BOSS HANDED ME A LOT OF HOT AIR, SKEEZIX, BUT PLAY ALONG WITH HIM.
I'VE GOT ONE THING TO ASK OF YOU WHEN YOU GET HOME.
CERTAINLY. WHAT IS IT?
CALL UP NINA AT HER OFFICE AND IF SHE'S MISSING ME TOO MUCH, KIND OF CHEER HER UP.
OF COURSE, I WILL.
AND IF SHE ISN'T MISSING ME AT ALL, LET ME KNOW SO I CAN WORRY.

County Ready for Children's Aid Requests

Clayton F. Smith, president of the county board, announced yesterday that five district stations of the county bureau of public welfare will begin receiving applications Monday in preparation for the change Oct. 1 in the state system of extending aid to dependent children.

Under enabling legislation passed at the last session of the legislature, Illinois has been brought under the federal Aid to Dependent Children (ADC) system, which will enable the state to expand this type of aid fourfold.

Previously the welfare bureau has had approximately a million dollars a year to spend on relief of dependent children, of which the state advanced $300,000 and the county $700,000. Under the law which has been enacted, the state and federal governments will divide the expense of about 8 million dollars a year for the entire state, half of which will be expended in Cook county.

About 1,800 families in the county obtained assistance in the past. The larger sum will permit aid to 7,000 families.

Smith said applications of the custodians of children requiring aid should be made at the welfare bureau offices at 4238 Lincoln avenue, 609 North avenue, 2539 Archer avenue, 407 East 63d street, and 1042 Lake street, Oak Park.

The new ADC system will assume a large part of the present load of the mothers' pension fund, and the Chicago Relief commission, Smith said, and the mothers' fund will cease to exist July 1, 1942. Other dependent children who at present are receiving no assistance may obtain relief under the new system.

Those who are eligible must be under 16 years of age—or 18 if enrolled in school—whose parents or guardian is unable to provide for him. It has been estimated that about 12,000 families in Chicago can qualify under these requirements.

Sons of Revolution Plan Constitution Day Rally

The annual Constitution day luncheon rally of the Illinois Society Sons of the American Revolution will be held Wednesday, Sept. 17, at the Hotel La Salle, it was announced yesterday. Attorney Warren H. Orr, former Illinois Supreme court justice, will speak on "An Historical View of the Constitution."

Numerology
By Evelyn Holmes

Sept. 6, 1941.

Universal day—A friendly, sociable day. See friends, shop and enjoy yourself.

Names and numbers—The initials F. D. R. by which the President is often called, add to a 19, or the single digit 1. I have already given the analysis of this number in reference to President Roosevelt this week, so will call attention to his combination of 1s that conspire to give him leadership. He is in a 1-year and this month is a 1-month for him, the beginning of a new cycle for him with this month the peak of that period. The first vowel in Franklin is "a" which is a 1. His three initials add up to a 1. And now for another little straw in the wind—his birth month is a 1, January. You can see that the qualities of leadership are strongly represented in this man.

Good morning!

Dear Reader, who probably hasn't—as Dear Reviewer HADN'T—the faintest idea as to what a "flight surgeon" is, will learn the meaning of the appellation from Warner Brothers' latest service picture.

Dear Reader will also discover that there is more than one sort of "blackout"; the cause and result of "altitude sickness" and "chronic fatigue" and that a lot of very important air fighting is done in flying field laboratories.

"Dive Bomber," packaged gorgeously in technicolor, is informative, technically honest, actionful, and in several episodes almost unbearably suspenseful. It is also lengthy. (133 minutes.)

The subject matter deals with the work of men whose duty it is to keep fighting flyers flying. . . . To determine the causes of various physical and mental crackups and find means for prevention and alleviation of the same. . . . And air corps' "guinea pigs" are air corps' volunteers, who offer their splendid selves as practice material.

The film has no romance at all and not much comedy.

Mr. Flynn portrays Dr. Lee, a medical corps officer who transfers to the air branch for the purpose of doing research work. . . . He encounters active enmity on the part of his flight instructor, Joe Blake, and another ace pilot, Tim Griffin. . . . Both these men, due to a misunderstanding, blame Lee for the death of a buddy on the operation table. . . .

The situation between Lee and Blake, and their work with Dr. Lance Rogers, head of the research department, forms the plot axis. . . .

The film shall inform you as to the finale. Backgrounds are the San Diego training station.

Acting and direction are expert. But the piece is TOO LONG!

Autumn Rush of Weddings Starts Today

The Mark A. Browns' spacious home in Wilmette will be the scene of the marriage tonight of their younger daughter, Nancy Jane, to Arthur Edmund Cruttenden, son of Mrs. Arthur Thomas Cruttenden. The Rev. John Francis Plummer will perform the ceremony at 8:30 o'clock.

Mrs. William I. Landwer will attend her sister as matron of honor. Miss Barbara Bayard and Mrs. Marshall Miller will be bridesmaids. Mr. Cruttenden has asked Charles Soule and William Spinney to usher and Walter Cruttenden, his cousin, to be best man. After a short stay at Colorado Springs, Colo., the young Cruttendens will be at home in Skokie.

The bride's two aunts, Mrs. Thomas M. Roseberry and Miss Nelle Coxon, are here from Kokomo, Ind., for the wedding as are Mr. and Mrs. Paul H. Durham, Mr. and Mrs. Bennett Bobbitt, and Mr. and Mrs. Alden P. Chester. Mr. and Mrs. Earl Barnes are here from Indianapolis, Ind.

Miss Patricia Floto, who's only 17, will have two attendants even younger than herself when she is married to Reges M. Lynch at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon in St. Chrysostom's church. They are the bride's 8 year old sister, Dorothy, who will be flower girl, and the ringbearer, Peter Barrett, who is the same age. After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. John W. Floto will give a reception for their daughter at the Racquet club.

The bride's older sister, Miss Caroline, will be maid of honor, and Mrs. Nelson Thomasson III. will serve as matron of honor. The six bridesmaids are Miss Patricia Shafer, Miss Margaret Howell, Miss Evelyn Lawrence, Mrs. Frederic Countiss, Miss Patty O'Neill, and Miss Shirley Springer.

Mr. Lynch, son of V. Reges Lynch of the Ambassador hotel, will have his brother, Thomas, as best man. Ushering will be John I. Marshall Jr., De Witt Buchanan Jr., John Nacey, Michael Mueller, Ernest Byfield Jr., Kenneth Wollaeger, and Pierce Theobald. After a trip to Canada Mr. Lynch and his bride will be at home on the near north side.

Miss Muriel Beach and Craig Benson will repeat their wedding vows at 4:30 o'clock today in the chapel of the Winnetka Congregational church, the Rev. Milton Towner officiating. A reception will follow in the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Leon A. Beach of Barry avenue.

Miss Beach's four attendants will be Miss Jane Ward, the maid of honor, and Miss Barbara Burnham, Miss Sally Eastman, and Mrs. Roger Harrington. John Benson will be his brother's best man, and their cousin, Homer Benson, will usher with Magill Lynde and Jeremy Beeman.

Mr. and Mrs. Benson will reside in Fort Lauderdale, Fla. Shortly after the wedding his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thaddeus Reamy Benson, will be leaving Winnetka to make their home in Fort Lauderdale also.

A score of out-of-town relatives and friends are here for the wedding of Miss Billie Engel and Norman J. Westerhold, which will take place tonight in the First Methodist church of Evanston. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Charles Engel, who will give a reception in their home in Canterbury court, Wilmette. Miss Kathryn Westerhold, the bridegroom's sister, will be maid of honor. They are the daughter and son of Mrs. Norman Westerhold of Evanston. Miss Margaret Strale, Miss Betty Ulrich, Miss Barbara Remy, and Miss Jane Peek will be bridesmaids.

Mr. Westerhold will have Trafton Badger as best man and Frank Mueller, Lieut. Cameron Brown, Donovan Olson, John Shumway, George Derr Wolf Jr., and Robert Billings as ushers. After a trip to Sea Island, Ga., Mr. Westerhold and his bride will be at home in Evanston.

Mrs. Caswell Alan Sharpe, her daughter, Mrs. Nicolas Starosselsky, and her daughter, Miss Ann Boswell, are in Greenwich, Conn., for the marriage today of Mrs. Sharpe's granddaughter, Miss Maribelle Rodiger, and Stewart Fowler Forshay, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Forshay of Greenwich. Miss Boswell will be maid of honor at the wedding, which will take place in Christ church with a reception following at Chez Nous, the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Gregory Rodiger.

Jacket in Rope Wool

BY JEAN MACDONALD.

Large needles and heavy rope wool create this hand knitted jacket done in a cable stitch. It is easy to do and works up quickly. It may be knitted with short sleeves or long to match or contrast with a sport dress or blouse and skirt. It is suitable for co-ed or career girl. The instructions are available in 32, 34, 36, 38, and 40 inch bust measurements.

For instructions in knitting the rope wool jacket, No. 810, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 5th avenue, New York City.

According to CULBERTSON

[Copyright: 1941: By Ely Culbertson.]

In almost every situation, a player will be doing himself no injury if he takes the time to think out his proper course. Sometimes, however, any perceptible hesitation is fatal, in that it "telegraphs" the position of key cards to the other players. In the hand shown below, East made a good hold-up play, but the fact that he "went into a huddle" about it nullified any good results it might have had.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
Pass	Pass	1 spade	Pass
2 clubs	Pass	2 spades	Pass
3 hearts	Pass	3 no trump	Pass
Pass	Pass

North's three heart bid was decidedly aggressive, to put it mildly.

West opened the diamond ten. Dummy's jack was played, East covered, and declarer won with the ace. The club jack was led and passed. East started to win with his queen, then changed his mind, replaced the card in his hand and merely followed with the deuce. Declarer said "O, is that so?" and promptly abandoned the club suit! At the third trick he led a low spade toward dummy's jack. East won with the queen and returned a diamond, but the fat was in the fire. Declarer found a good break in the spade suit and rattled off four spades and the ace and king of clubs which in addition to the club trick, previously stolen, and the ace-queen of diamonds, totaled nine tricks, and contract.

East's hesitation and failure to take the club queen had really been a double error. He could have taken it and, by returning a diamond, defeated the contract, since declarer never could have made more than four club tricks, two spades, and two diamonds.

The hold-up play, however, would have been quite logical if it had been made quickly. East could not tell that West had the spade ten to help stop the suit, nor could he know the position of the heart ace. Hence, he was correct in attempting to shut out dummy's club suit. But it should not have taken him even one second to reach this decision. Had he played with normal speed, it is highly probable that declarer would have taken another club finesse rather than experiment with the broken spade suit.

Any play whose success depends on deception must be made without hesitation.

BROWNS BEAT WHITE SOX 6TH STRAIGHT, 3-1

MISSOURI STAR ADDS A 68 TO FIRST ROUND 65

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Leonard Dodson, the garrulous Missourian who opened his hand in the $11,000 Tam o' Shanter Open Golf tournament Thursday with an elegant 65, yesterday proceeded to fill it with a 68 that gave him a 36 hole total of 133, eleven under par and three shots in front of another Southwestern native—Byron Nelson of Toledo, O.

For 15 holes yesterday, the lean Dodson, who will bet you today is Sunday (and he might win the wager, at that) played flawless golf. Those in the gallery who watched him play those 15 in weather that shifted from a bleak ceiling to a sunny blue sky realized that Leonard was not fooling. Parties who know Master Dodson realized that the 29 year old from Kansas City never jests in any form of competition, whether it be a matter of winning four fairway playoffs, pitching silver dollars in a Denver locker room, or melding a hand of pinochle.

Then His Luck Breaks.

Came the 16th hole, 215 yards long and bisected by water. Leonard was then under par and en route to a 66 that would have given him a halfway total of 131, one under the superb 36 once submitted by Henry Cotton in the British Open. He attempted to play a hook against the wind before him, but it bent too quickly, with the result that he wound up against a tree, took two to get on and two to get down for a bogey five. His 18 foot try for a birdie on the 17th hopped out of the cup and he had to hole a five footer for his par on the home green.

Nelson, the Texas born winner of the 1939 National Open and victor in last year's PGA, indicated that he is not here for fresh air and sunshine by the manner in which he welded his 69, the card that left him only three strokes back of Dodson going into today's third round of 18. It so happens that a boyhood chum of Nelson, by name Benjamin Hogan, is also around and about.

Ben Finds His Stride.

Hogan, leading money winner of last year and collector of approximately $14,000 this season, made his move yesterday with the 66, six under par, and good enough to earn him a special $100 prize for the low round of the day. That four putt green on the second hole of the first round left Ben with a 73, but there was no doubt about his 66 of yesterday.

Mr. Dodson has a rough two days in front of him, with two such fellows as Nelson and Hogan on his slacks, but Leonard, we repeat, did not come here to play old maid. In fact, a Monday playoff might well be necessary if these three young men who have an intention about winning first prize of $2,000 should wind up in a dead heat.

Right back of Hogan, tied at 140, were Henry Ransom, pro at Fort Worth's Glen Garden club, where Nelson and Hogan once caddied together, and bespectacled little Al Huske of De Kalb, Ill. Henry, author of that lustrous 31 in the National Open in June, had his second straight 70, while Al, one of the Chicago district's more consistent pros, tacked a 71 onto his first round 69.

Wood Shoots 74.

Next in line, all at 141, were Jim Milward of Madison, Wis., Jimmy Turnesa of Camp Lee, Va., Ernie [Dutch] Harrison of Little Rock, Ark., and Herman Keiser of Akron, O.,

Par Is Just a Figure of Speech to Len

Leonard Dodson of Kansas City, who has his eye on first money in the $11,000 Tam o' Shanter open golf tournament, lines up a putt on the ninth green of yesterday's second round. He sank this one and a lot of others to card a 68, which gave him a 36 hole total of 133 and a three stroke lead. Herman Keiser of Akron is at the right. [TRIBUNE Photos.]

Prairie State Stakes Winds Up Washington Park Today

BY HOWARD BARRY.

Alsab, the nation's leading money winning juvenile, will meet a new challenger in the $5,000 Prairie State stakes as the Washington Park meeting comes to a conclusion this afternoon. In a series of impressive victories, Mrs. Al Sabath's smooth running colt has demonstrated his superiority over everything that has been sent against him in the Chicago area up to now. But today a fast and graceful filly, Miss Dogwood, will try to perform the task at which so many other brilliant youngsters failed.

Few concede Miss Dogwood or any of Alsab's five other rivals much of a chance, and the favorite probably will be quoted at 1 to 5 odds. At any rate, Miss Dogwood's distinguished breeding and her demonstrated speed indicated that if anything is going to beat Alsab today, she may be the one to do it.

Holds Six Furlong Record.

Miss Dogwood is a daughter of Bull Dog and the famous race mare, Myrtlewood, a daughter of Blue Larkspur. Myrtlewood holds the Arlington Park six furlong record of 1:09 2-5, which was a world mark at the time she made it. Miss Dogwood, in winning the only two starts of her career, has indicated that she has inherited the speed and class of both lines of her breeding.

Miss Dogwood, who is owned by Brownell Combs and trained by J. M. Goode, scored handily in her first start on Aug. 21. She came back as the odds-on favorite on Wednesday of last week to win a five and a half furlong allowance event in 1:05 2-5, which was only two-fifths of a second slower than the track record.

Among the horses which she beat, however, there was no Alsab. If she goes out to take the early lead today she'll have a much tougher task maintaining it for six furlongs against the colt which has swept thru six stake victories. In winning the Joliet, Primer, Mayflower, Hyde Park, Juvenile, and Washington Park Futurity, Alsab has accumulated earnings of $68,070.

Can Run Total to $72,280.

A victory in today's race, which carries a net value to winner of $4,210, would run his total to $72,280, which is not far short of the $77,275 with which Whirlaway finished his 1940 season, in which he topped the juvenile earners.

For a time it seemed possible that Alsab might have a muddy track to run on for variety, but clear sunshine and a strong wind dried the running strip so rapidly yesterday that it seemed certain that it would be in good condition by post time for today's stake event. Not that Alsab's handlers were worried about an off track. "He can run on anything," Trainer Sarge Swenke said. "He can run on cobblestones if he has to."

On Monday racing will begin at Hawthorne.

Prairie Field

A FIELD of seven, headed by Alsab, was named in the overnight entries for today's $5,000 Prairie State stakes, closing feature of the Washington Park meeting. The field, in order of post positions, follows:

Horse.	Wt.	Jockey.	Prob. odds.
Sweep Swinger	117	H. Lemmons	20-1
Quest Vive	114	W. Yarberry	25-1
Miss Dogwood	114	D. McAndrew	4-1
Suprine	109	J. George	25-1
Bolus	117	A. Snider	12-1
First of All	117	K. McCombs	10-1
Alsab	126	E. L. Vedder	1-5

PICK EVANSVILLE, CEDAR RAPIDS AS PLAYOFF HOSTS

Des Moines, Ia., Sept. 5 (AP).—Pennant winning Evansville will be host to Decatur and Cedar Rapids will entertain Springfield in the opening of the Three Eye league playoffs Sunday, President Tom Fairweather announced tonight.

Following two-game series in Evansville and Cedar Rapids the series will switch to Decatur and Springfield to determine the winners in the three out of five game series.

The site of the start of the second playoff will be decided by the position of the two clubs at the finish of the regular season. The team ranking highest in the final standings will be host for the first two games of the final playoff.

Probable Major League Pitchers in Games Today

New York, Sept. 5 (AP).—Probable pitchers in the major leagues tomorrow with won and lost records:

NATIONAL LEAGUE.

Cincinnati at St. Louis—Vander Meer [13-11] vs. White [17-4].
Chicago at Pittsburgh—Mooty [7-6] vs. Heintzelman [8-10].
Philadelphia at Boston—Pearson [4-12] vs. Tobin [12-8].

AMERICAN LEAGUE.

Boston at New York—Wilson [3-11] vs. Breuer [9-5].
St. Louis at Chicago [2]—Caster [3-6] and Muncrief [10-7] vs. Lee [18-9] and Rigney [11-11].
Cleveland at Detroit [2]—Smith [9-11] and Dean [3-5] vs. Newsom [11-17] and Rowe [6-5].
Washington at Philadelphia [2]—Leonard [15-12] and Hudson [10-12] vs. Knott [12-11] and Beckman [5-8].

Dodson had a few bad breaks yesterday and this was one of them. His drive from the 16th tee rolled up against a tree. The mishap forced him to take a 5.

This is Dodson after completing one of his powerful drives straight down the fairway.

Omaha Booed, but Ward Will Go Back for More

Spokane, Wash., Sept. 5 (AP).—Marvin [Bud] Ward, who was booed as he won the National Amateur golf tournament last week at Omaha, Neb., is going back to Omaha to play some more golf. He will stop at Omaha en route to Philadelphia to compete in the Hurst Invitational tournament Sept. 19-21 and hopes to play an exhibition match with Johnny Goodman of Omaha over the Field club course [site of the national tournament], with the proceeds to go to Father Flanagan's Boy's Town.

GIANT GAME IS NO 'WARMUP' TO CHAMPION BEARS

They Expect a Tough Battle Tomorrow.

Tomorrow's game in Wrigley field between the Chicago Bears and the New York Giants is only an exhibition, but they could advertise it for the All-Star championship and still remain in bounds.

The Bears warmed up in All-Star competition at the close of last season by whipping a picked squad from the National Football league in Los Angeles. They continued their campaign, or started a new one, by whipping the College All-Stars in Soldiers' field last week, 37 to 13. A few nights ago the Giants defeated an eastern all-star team in New York, 23 to 3.

Then They'll Go Away.

This will be the Bears' last appearance in Chicago until Oct. 12, when they will meet the Cardinals in Wrigley field. Between now and then, tho, the pro champions will be busy. After tomorrow's game they will head east for three games in five days. The first stop will be Brooklyn, where on Tuesday night in Ebbets field their opponents in an exhibition game will be the Dodgers.

Two nights later the Bears will resume their all-star competition against a picked team of New England collegians in Boston's Fenway park. On Sept. 14 they will stop in Newark to play their farm club coached by Gene Ronzani.

These warmup games are important for those Bears who aren't sure of their jobs. Five will be released between now and Sept. 28, when the champions open their league campaign in Green Bay against the Packers. One of the four centers, perhaps one guard, and three backs will go.

The Rivals May Meet Again.

The Bears and Giants do not meet during the championship season, but it is just possible they will wind up first in their respective divisions and settle the league title in Wrigley field next December. Right now, the Giants, having had a thoro overhauling, rate over Washington and Brooklyn for eastern honors.

Heretofore the exponents of stodgy football, the Giants have reformed. They hit the bullseye in the draft, all of their first seven choices reporting.

The mortality rate among football draftees this season has been high because of that other draft and the success of the Giants in landing their first seven is most unusual. These are: George Franck, Minnesota half back; Francis Reagan, Pennsylvania half back; Len Eshmont, Fordham half back; Lou DeFilippo, Fordham center; Don Vosberg, Marquette end; Len Younce, Oregon State guard, and Ben Sohn, U. S. C. guard. In addition, the Giants came up with Howie Yeager of Santa Barbara college and he has been the training camp sensation because of his speed and pass catching. Kay Eakin and Tuffy Leemans are veterans who round out a versatile and potent back field.

Christman Is In a Whirl.

The Cardinals yesterday continued their two-a-day practice schedule and again there was a new development on Paul Christman, who may yet turn out to be the most prominent fellow who never played in a pro football game. It's been "on again, off again" for the Missouri passing wizard for several weeks. Two days before his scheduled induction into the army, Christman enlisted in the naval reserve at Great Lakes, subject to call. It was believed the summons would be delayed long enough for Paul to make his pro debut, but he was called to Great Lakes yesterday and began his duties as a drill master with the rank of chief boatswain's mate.

John Kuzman, Fordham tackle, reported yesterday and took part in a hard afternoon scrimmage, the last contact work for Tuesday nights' exhibition game in Kenosha against Johnny Blood's Kenosha eleven.

All three previous editions pleased the readers so much that they were sellouts.

My Kind of a Man.

The kind of a fellow I want to know
Is a fellow who's shooting square—
Who plays his part with a steady hand
And always will play it fair.
The chap who never will trust to luck
Nor whines that he has no show;
He's the kind of a man I'd know.

The kind of a fellow I want to know
The fellow who's always clean;
Who never murmurs if things go wrong
And knows how to take each blow;
He's the kind of a man I'd know.

The kind of a fellow I want to know
He may not share in the world's applause,
Nor place on the roll of fame.
But if he is firm in the hardest test,

DEFEAT DROPS SOUTH SIDERS TO TIE FOR 2D

Auker Limits Them to Five Hits.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Luke Sewell's alert St. Louis Browns last night bowled over the White Sox for the sixth straight time, and the fifth time in eight days, when they triumphed, 3 to 1, in the final American league lamp game of the season in Comiskey park. A crowd of 22,691 watched the Sox in a reversal that tossed them back into a tie with Boston for second place in the American league.

Elden Auker, as per his custom, made most of the Sox throw away their bats. In registering his fourth victory of the season over the Chicagoans, he yielded only five hits, three of them by Luke Appling, who continued on the hitting spree which saw him make seven safe ones in last Monday's double header with the Indians, the previous engagement for the Sox.

Buck Ross Is Injured.

The Browns made only five hits off Buck Ross in 6⅔ innings before he retired with a pulled side muscle, and one, a single, off Johnny Humphries. A week earlier in St. Louis, Ross was knocked out in 2⅔ innings after the Browns had made all the runs by which they went on to win for Auker, 5 to 2. In that game, Buck walked the lead-off man in the first three innings and all scored. He had similar trouble last night. He passed two and both of them scored.

The Sox scored their run before the Browns got under way. Wright opened the second inning with one of the two hits not made by Appling, a single to center, stole second, and scored on the first of Appling's hits, a single to center. Appling opened the fifth with a single but Dario Lodigiani tapped into a double play. Luke also doubled with two out in the seventh and Lodigiani executed his second strikeout. This time he looked at the third one, whereas he had whiffed in the second.

Dickey Beats Out One.

George Dickey batted for Webb at the start of the ninth and beat out a single to Harlond Clift. This second hit by a gent other than Appling soon was wiped out. Bob Kennedy went to first to run for Dickey, but Kuhel lined to Don Heffner and Kennedy was doubled off first. Then Clift threw out Ben Chapman to end the game.

The helplessness which the Sox have shown in the presence of the Browns has developed mostly since Sewell succeeded Fred Haney. As soon as the former Sox catcher had a chance to pay attention to details after taking over the Browns, the Sox hitters began to do flipflops to the great amusement of Luke and the long suffering Brownies. Last year, when Sewell was coach of the Indians, the Indians who this season have lost 10 straight to the Sox and 16 out of 21, beat the Sox 16 out of 22. Maybe Luke knows something about our lumber swingers and should be suppressed.

They're Going Great for Luke.

The jolt last night gave the Browns a record of 9 victories in 19 games with the Sox not counting a 12 inning tie the last time they were here. Before Sewell began to tell secrets, the Sox were leading Browns, 10 victories to 3. The Browns have played .500 ball for Sewell against all competition.

Sewell's inside knowledge of Sox frailties scarcely accounted for the three runs the Browns made for their victory total last night. Clift walked at the start of the fourth, moved up on George McQuinn's infield out and scored on Walter Judnich's triple off the right field wall. Judnich then scored the winning run on Roy Cullenbine's fly to Julius Solters. The run the Brownies didn't need was scored in the fifth. Auker walked, took third on Heffner's single and scored when Clift caromed a single off Webb's glove.

Craig Wood, National Open titleholder from Mamaroneck, N. Y., who had a 71 in the first round, was out in 34, two under par, but fell into a fit of three putting and three-from-the edge on the back nine and took a 74 for a 145. Vic Ghezzi of Deal, N. J., victor in the National PGA tournament in July, settled for a 70—72—142. Johnny Bulla of Chicago, who was third to Dodson's 65 and Nelson's 67 in the first round, could do no better than a 74 for 142.

Burkemo Paces Amateurs.

Walter Burkemo, young Evanston amateur, headed all of the simon pures with a 145. The curly haired blond, who had a 71 in the first round, was out in 34, but took a 40 coming home. Art Doering of Medinah and Ken Hellemann of St. Louis followed Walter with 147s.

The low 85 scorers and ties qualified for the final 36 holes of the tournament, the richest of the year. Net proceeds of the event, which is being offered at a bargain price of $1 per day, will be divided equally between the United Service Organizations and the British War Relief society.

Seward, Foe Near Peak for Monday Fight

Billy Seward, Ingomar [Mont.], lightweight slugger, and Eddie Lander, west side boxer, will finish boxing drills this afternoon for an eight-round bout in Marigold Gardens Monday. Because Lander will be the strongest opponent he has been asked to meet, Seward has recruited Ralph Guajardo, competent Mexican welterweight, to serve as his sparmate. Guajardo is on a 15 day furlough from duty at Chanute field, Rantoul, Ill., where he is a member of the 6th squadron of the army air service. Supporting matches Monday will include a four round event between Frank Pintero, Cudahy, [Wis.], junior welterweight, and Mickey Shannon of Terre Haute, Ind.

A 10 round semi-windup bout and three six-round preliminary contests have been arranged to support a 10-rounder between Johnny Colan and Ernie Vigh in Chicago Stadium outdoor arena Wednesday, Promoter William R. Rand said yesterday. The six round encounters will bring together Leonard Bennett, Detroit welterweight, and Jackie Cooper; Joey Pirrone, Cleveland junior lightweight, and Dol Rafferty, and Savior Canadeo, former Catholic Youth organization welterweight, and George Kontopoulos. Pete Lello, Gary lightweight, and Nick Castiglione, west sider, are principals of the 10 rounder.

At a recent meeting of the Veteran Boxers Association of Illinois plans were discussed to sponsor a testimonial dinner for Jimmy Barry, one of the oldest living former world champions. . . . Tony Zale, middleweight champion, left yesterday for New York, where he faces Georgie Abrams in a 10 round overweight match next Friday. He was accompanied by Managers Art Winch and Sam Pian and Trainer Joe Niedwick. . . . At the annual convention of the National Boxing association in Winston-Salem, N. C., Tuesday, Joe Triner, outgoing president of the organization, will tell a national radio audience "what is wrong with boxing." It is understood the address, which will go on the air at 8:45 p. m., will refer to Mike Jacobs and his monopoly of the sport.

A POTPOURRI OF CALLINGS BLENDS WELL IN SOFTBALL

Match Corporation Squad Offers Proof.

BY EDWARD PRELL.

A group of fellows got together. They included two school teachers, a truck driver, a machinist, a playgrounds director, a beverage salesman, a shoe designer, a private chauffeur, a few factory workers, and —of all people—a grain broker.

These fellows will leave for Detroit Wednesday as representatives of the metropolitan district in the world's softball tournament. The Match Corporation of America squad has been the hot team in Chicago since last spring, when they won an indoor tournament in the Amphitheater. They followed this with triumphs in the Amateur Softball association and the Chicago district meets. That's a sweep of the three major events which bring together the best of the softball teams.

Have a Fine Record.

They've won 39 and lost 11 games, three of their defeats having been in a series just completed with the Arizona champions from Phoenix. And just to show that this sport of softball gets 'em from almost every walk of life, the Phoenix first baseman is state treasurer of the state of Arizona. He's Joe [Two Gun] Hunt, who sells autographed toy bats from Arizona to the world's tournament and back to build up funds for future political campaigns. It may be Gov. Hunt one of these days. He's only 31 years old.

The Matches count as their most important achievement triumphs over the Park Ridge team in two of the three big tournaments. They met five other times and on each occasion Park Ridge won. But the Matches won when the pressure was on, thereby shoving one Fats Heuel out of the limelight. Fats had been on district championship teams for seven years running as the star pitcher for the Litsingers and later Park Ridge.

Proud of Bill Bartz.

The Matches point with pride to Bill Bartz, their handsome pitcher, who lost his left hand in a Fourth of July accident 10 years ago. He's the lad who put them into the world competition. In the district semi-finals the Matches and Gilbert Tools were tied, 2 to 2, when rain stopped the game in the ninth. The next night play was resumed and Bartz kept winging away until his team won in the 13th, 3 to 2. Then, with 15 minutes rest, he came back and shut out Park Ridge with two hits, 3 to 0. Bartz is a clerk for the sponsoring firm.

The champions have some more business in their own back yard before moving on to Detroit. They opened a three game series last night for the north section championship of the Illinois State Major league by beating this same Park Ridge outfit, 4 to 1. Bartz yielded five hits and fanned seven. The matches routed Heuel in the fourth.

On Monday night they'll play Los Angeles, California champion, which is on its way to Detroit. This game will be played in Parichy stadium, Harlem avenue and Harrison street. The Match players are recruited from such west suburban communities as Maywood, Melrose Park, Berwyn, Cicero, Forest Park, and Westchester, so they have quite a following.

Softball still is a pitcher's game, tho the mound has been moved back twice from its original 35 feet. It now is 43 feet away from the plate. Good pitchers—and the Matches have two others besides Bartz—can make the 12 inch ball dip and rise just like a baseball.

Liberal Amateur Code.

Chicago is dotted with softball parks, equipped with lighting plants, and here perhaps is the big reason for the decline of amateur baseball. The players are amateurs but the A. S. A. has a liberal code, so the players do not go unrewarded for their efforts. Many of them are former college athletes and minor league baseball players.

Bob Young, third baseman, and John Tiefenthal, second baseman, are teachers and former North Central college athletes. The first baseman, John Miller, drives a truck and Frank Fencl, shortstop, is a machinist. The three Dwoinen brothers, Al, Vic, and Willie, who play the outfield, are factory men, as is Art Young, who was a baseball player with Morton Junior college and the conference's leading hitter.

Among the team's reserves, George Sluka is a playgrounds director in Berwyn, Tony Crisanti a beverage salesman, Frank Fernandez a shoe designer, Roy Green a chauffeur, and Dave Bangert a grain broker with a seat on the Chicago Board of Trade.

They hope their time off from work will be repaid with the world's title in Detroit. The tournament opens Sept. 10 and the Kodaks of Rochester, N. Y., are defending champions.

CHICAGO WOMAN PACES SHOOTING AT CAMP PERRY

Camp Perry, O., Sept. 5 (AP).—Three women battled their way among the top five in the 50 meter, 40 shot pro match with the .22 caliber rifle, most important fixture on today's national cartridge carnival calendar.

Mrs. Doris Dean, 23 year old Chicago sharpshooter just two years out of the University of Chicago, outshot the field of exactly 500 crack shots, scoring the only 400 of 400, with 22 shots in the X-ring.

Right behind was Mrs. May Kell, 51 year old Deerfield, Kas., woman, with 399 and 26 in the X-ring. J. E. Kaylor of Altoona, Pa., and Thurman Randle of Dallas, Tex., won the next two spots, while fifth place went to Miss Anna Low Ballew of Mannington, W. Va., last year's national junior queen. Kaylor, Randle, and Miss Ballew had scores of 399, but they ranked in that order in X's scored, Kaylor getting 25, Randle 24, and Miss Ballew 21.

SENATORS BUY INFIELDERS.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 5 (AP).—Purchase of Infielders Hillis Layne and Charley Letchas from Chattanooga of the Southern association was announced today by the Washington baseball club.

Pirates, Reds Break Even in Double Header

Pittsburgh, Pa., Sept. 5 (AP).—The Pirates and Reds, battling for third place, split a double header today, Cincinnati taking the first encounter, 10 to 4, with the aid of Eddie Joost's four run homer in the eighth, and Pittsburgh the second, 1 to 0, when rain and darkness caused the game to be called with the Pirates at bat in the seventh.

BERWYN LEGION NINE BLANKED BY SAN DIEGO, 8 TO 0

San Diego, Cal., Sept. 5 (AP).—San Diego blanked Berwyn, Ill., 8 to 0, tonight to win the opening game of the American Legion Junior National baseball championship series. Three Berwyn pitchers yielded only six hits, but hit a batter, tossed a wild pitch and issued 12 walks while their teammates made five errors.

Berwyn was held to three hits, Laurie Maric and Joe Vydra each getting a double, and Ray Skudrna a single. The series is three games out of five. Score:

White Sox Send Lee and Smith Against Browns

The White Sox and the Browns will play a double header in Comiskey park this afternoon. Thornton Lee will go after his 19th victory of the season in the first contest, and in the second Edgar Smith will make his second try for his 13th victory. George Caster and Bob Muncrief probably will work for the Browns.

The Browns and Sox will wind up their 1941 relations in a single game tomorrow afternoon. The Sox will set out on their final eastern jaunt late Monday afternoon. Washington will be the first stop.

Next scheduled appearance of the Sox on their home acres after tomorrow will be against the Tigers on Sept. 20.

Believe It, or Not! Cubs Bid for 5th in Row

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Jim Wilson and his Cubs, a gay outfit for the time being, what with a four game winning streak, will be in Pittsburgh today to see if the momentum picked up by knocking over the Cardinals twice on Thursday can't carry them a bit farther. A five game winning streak would be something to write home about, even tho it wouldn't increase the chances for a climb out of sixth place before the season drags to its close.

Altho the somewhat tough Pirates might do sorry things to the Cubs, either today or tomorrow, or both, Boss Wilson already has arranged his plans for the Dodgers, who will be in Chicago Tuesday and Wednesday. Having knocked the Cardinals out of first place, it would be fitting and proper for the Cubs to do the same to the present leaders. And, to make this possible, Wilson will have his two best pitchers ready—Claude Passeau and Paul Erickson.

Passeau and Erickson, having done the pitching that bumped off the Cards in the double header, ordinarily would have been excused from the two-day jump to Pittsburgh. Wilson took 'em along, however, to have them under his watchful eye for the two days. In that way, he can conduct their exercises. The only men not included in the party were Charley Root and Vern Olsen.

Jake Mooty will start today's game against the Pirates and tomorrow's job will be handed to Vallie Eaves. Ken Heintzelman will oppose Mooty today.

W-G-N to Air Running of Prairie State Today

W-G-N and the Mutual network will broadcast the running of the Prairie State stakes this afternoon from 5:05 to 5:10 o'clock. Dave King, Mutual track caller, and Guy Savage will present the description of the last feature on the Washington Park season.

Schroeder and Riggs Advance to Semi-Finals

New York, Sept. 5 (AP).—The national tennis tournament reached the semi-final stage today with Bobby Riggs of Clinton, S. C., and Ted Schroeder of Glendale, Cal., scoring impressive victories to round out the men's field, and Helen Jacobs of Berkeley, Cal., and Mrs. Sarah Palfrey Cooke of New York winning in the women's division.

Riggs, seeking the title he won in 1939 and relinquished last year to Don McNeill of Oklahoma City, got past one of the players he feared most when he beat Frankie Parker of New York, the clay court champion, 6-4, 6-3, 4-6, 6-2.

Grant Says He's Thru.

Schroeder defeated Bryan Grant in what might have been the Atlanta veteran's final appearance in the nationals. After losing the first set in a baseline duel, Schroeder beat his rival at the net, 6-8, 6-1, 6-2, 6-3. Grant was given a standing cheer by the crowd as he left the big stadium for what he swore was the last time.

Miss Jacobs, gunning for her fifth women's title at the ripe tennis age of 33, edged out Dorothy Bundy of Santa Monica, Cal., 6-3, 11-9. Mrs. Cooke qualified to meet Miss Jacobs, her old Wightman cup teammate, in tomorrow's semi-finals by scoring over Hope Knowles the unseeded Philadelphia youngster, 6-4, 7-5.

McNeill Faces Kovacs.

In the men's other semi-final tomorrow McNeill faces Frank Kovacs, the tall Californian, who has trimmed McNeill three times this summer and must be favored to do it again, even as Riggs is the choice over Schroeder.

The Cooke-Jacobs battle will share interest with the opposite duel between Pauline Betz of Los Angeles, the No. 1 seeded woman star and Margaret Osborne of San Francisco.

REFUSE MINORS VOTE IN CHOICE OF COMMISSIONER

Cincinnati, O., Sept. 5 (AP).—The plea of minor leagues for a voice in selection of future baseball commissioners was denied today at a meeting of major-minor league executive committees.

The minor leagues, represented by George W. Trautman, president of the American association, and Thammel Scott, president of the Southern association, proposed that each major league have one vote in the selection of a future commissioner to succeed K. M. Landis, and the combined minor leagues be given a third vote.

Major league executives turned down the suggestion and voted continuance of present procedure, under which each major league club has one vote, for a total of 16.

Codification of rules took up the remainder of the session and involved only minor changes designed to clarify meaning. All must be approved at the winter meetings of the major and minor leagues.

TEXAS, PELICANS OPEN NATIONAL POLO TOURNEY

New York, Sept. 5 [Special].—Texas and the Pelicans are to open Sept. 13 at the Meadow Brook club in the national open polo tournament, according to the drawing announced today.

All five entrants will see action over the week-end. Texas plays at Governor's Island in the Army Relief day game tomorrow. On Sunday the four others will engage in contests at Meadow Brook and Bostwick field.

Led by Cecil Smith, 10 goal star, Texas meets Cocie Rathborne's Pelicans in the only first round match. The first of the semi-finals comes Sunday, Sept. 14, with Stewart Iglehart, another 10 goal star, leading his Westbury team against Mike Phipps' gulf stream four. This game has been carded as a benefit for the Women's auxiliary of Nassau hospital. Iglehart also will play in the Governor's Island benefit game tomorrow.

The second semi-final is booked for Sept. 16, when Ebby Gerry's Aknusti quartet faces the winner of the Texas-Pelicans match. The final is planned for Sunday, Sept. 21. The draw for the Monty Waterbury cup, most important of the handicap events, will be made as play develops in the open. The same teams are to compete in that tournament, with the first game planned for Saturday, Sept. 20, and the final on Sunday, Sept. 28.

OPEN CAMPAIGN FOR CIVIC CENTER AT AUDITORIUM

$400,000 Sought to Take Over Building.

A campaign to obtain $400,000 to acquire the Auditorium theater as a civic cultural center and to facilitate reopening of the Auditorium hotel and office building was opened yesterday at a luncheon attended by Mayor Kelly and more than 100 civic leaders in the Stevens hotel.

Robert Hall McCormick, president of the Auditorium Music foundation, a nonprofit group chartered to take over the cultural landmark and preserve it for Chicago, disclosed that arrangements had been made to purchase 85 per cent of the property on which the buildings stand and to lease the remainder.

The estates which own the 53,000 square feet to be purchased are to receive $360,000 in 10 year bonds in payment, McCormick said, while the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance company, which owns the remainder of the property, has agreed to a long term lease at a low rental.

Need Additional $150,000.

An additional $150,000 will be required, McCormick stated, to provide heating and electric light and hydraulic power equipment. The buildings were closed July 31 because the Congress hotel, which had provided these services, could not reach an agreement to continue them.

"Conferences with the taxing authorities indicate that the public use of the property will result in a very large saving in taxes," McCormick said. "Excessive assessments of previous years can be settled on a favorable basis." Taxes due on the buildings now amount to $1,150,000.

The foundation president said the hotel and office buildings had been operated in recent years at an annual profit of from $48,000 to $58,000, and that the foundation would take them over and lease them to responsible interests, devoting the profits to operation of the theater. He added that the operation of the theater should provide substantial income for improvement of the property and for the promotion of musical, charitable, and educational events.

Project Worthy of Support.

"The Auditorium Music Foundation should add greatly to the prestige of Chicago," said Mayor Kelly, "permitting this city to take its rightful place as a center of culture and art. It is an opportunity not to be put aside, and a project worthy of the support of every one."

Mrs. Albion Headburg, a leader in the project several years ago to restore the Fine Arts building in Jackson park, now the Museum of Science and Industry, and William Dudley, secretary of the foundation, also spoke.

Checks are being accepted both by the foundation at 332 South Michigan avenue and by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE which will acknowledge and forward them. Envelopes directed to THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE should be marked "Auditorium Fund."

A feature called "Echoes from Chicago's Auditorium" was presented at the Grant park band shell last night by the Peter A. Cavallo Symphonic band. It consisted of music associated with one or another of the great personages who have contributed to the brilliance of the theater's 52 year history.

DIDN'T KNOW HE WAS ALIEN, SAYS CITY POLICEMAN

Patrolman Frank B. Marton, a homicide squad detective, told the police trial board yesterday that he was not aware until last August that he was not a citizen of the United States. He appeared before the board in answer to a charge that in 1925 when he applied for the police examination he made a false statement by saying he was born in Metucheon, N. J., in 1900, when it since has been revealed he was born in Hungary.

Marton said that his father always had told him he was born in this country and so registered him in schools. Recently, after his father's death, he found a declaration of intention to become a citizen filled out by his father many years ago, he said. He said an investigation showed no record of the paper in the naturalization office.

Marton applied for citizenship papers this year and has since been made a citizen. The case was taken under advisement.

TWO STRONG-ARM BANDITS ROB CITY VISITOR OF $965

Two strong-arm bandits robbed Charles H. Stenberg, 61 years old, a retired foundry foreman of New London, Conn., of $965 last night.

Stenberg met one of the men in the North Western depot, where he was waiting for a train to Portland, Ore. The stranger offered to show Stenberg the sights. At Monroe and La Salle streets another stranger joined them. One of them wanted to buy cigars, but he had only a $5 bill, he said. He asked Stenberg for a single.

When Stenberg took out his wallet, the two men pinned his arms. One emptied his wallet, and fled. The other man released his hold, handed Stenberg a roll of bills, and said, "We were only fooling; here's your money." He fled, too. It was a phony roll, covered with a $10 bill and five ones. From Stenberg's wallet $980 was missing.

WOODEN SOLDIERS MARCH FEATURED ON W-G-N TONIGHT

Col. McCormick Talks on Chicagoland Hour.

A new treatment of Jessel's "March of the Wooden Soldiers" will be a feature of the Chicagoland hour broadcast from 9 to 10 o'clock tonight over W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting system. This arrangement is the work of Morton Gould, conductor of the Mutual orchestra in New York City. It will be presented by Henry Weber and the W-G-N Concert orchestra.

Miss Claire, Baggiore to Sing.

Marion Claire, soprano, and Attilio Baggiore, tenor, will be the vocal soloists.

Miss Claire will sing Rachmaninoff's "O Thou Billowy Harvest Field," and "The Blue Danube Waltz" by Strauss as solos. She will join Baggiore, the chorus, and the orchestra in selections from Herbert's "Naughty Marietta," "Eileen," and "Fortune Teller."

Trendler Directs Chorus.

Grieg's "Triumphal March" from "Sigurd Jorsalfar" will be played by the orchestra. Robert Trendler will direct the chorus.

DR. N. F. BAKER, N. U. PROFESSOR OF LAW, KILLED

Car Collides with Truck in Louisiana.

Dr. Newman F. Baker, 43 years old, professor of law at Northwestern university since 1932, was killed yesterday in an automobile accident 35 miles southeast of Baton Rouge, La.

Newman F. Baker.

The car in which Dr. Baker was riding collided head-on with a truck loaded with scrap iron. His companion, Dale E. Bennett, Louisiana State university assistant law professor, was injured seriously.

On Way to Meeting.

They were headed for New Orleans to attend a meeting of the advisory committee of the Louisiana State Law institute, which is writing a revamped criminal code.

Dr. Baker lived at 519 Washington avenue, Wilmette. Surviving are his widow, Lenore, a son, William, and a daughter, Lenore. He was appointed recently to the advisory committee on new rules in criminal procedure for the United States Supreme court; he was a member of the Chicago Crime commission, and was managing director of the Journal of Criminal Law and Criminology.

Steps in Front of Car.

Harry Goldman, 65, of 5608 South Racine avenue, owner of an auto parts store at 2218 South State street, was killed when he stepped from a safety island at Cermak road and State street into the path of a car driven by John Vickers, 25, of 15134 Myrtle avenue, Harvey.

Three employés of the Kankakee Ordnance Works near Elwood were killed in a collision at U. S. route 45 and Manteno road nine miles north of Kankakee. The dead were Thomas Matheney, 28, of Pekin, driver of one car, and James Witherspoon, 24, and Burton McCubbin, 23, both of Magnolia, Ky., occupants of another car.

Mrs. Susanna Hrianka, 56 years old, 5060 29th place, Cicero, died early today in the Berwyn hospital of injuries suffered last Tuesday when she was run down by an automobile at 52d street and Ogden avenue, Cicero. The driver was John W. Egerman of Naperville.

Mrs. Rose Dankowski, 66 years old, was killed by a hit and run automobile last night near her home, Pulaski and Exchange avenues, in Calumet City.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday 631 persons had been killed in Cook county traffic since Jan. 1. Of these 437 died in Chicago, where 16,908 were injured during the same period.

REALTY DEALER SHOOTS, WOUNDS FORMER WORKER

A former real estate salesman was shot and critically wounded, and his former employer was injured last night when the two engaged in a struggle in the office of the Bissell Building company at 3558 Archer avenue.

Marion Bissell.

The man seriously hurt was Stanley Sinder, 44 years old, 2732 Pershing road, a laborer for a wrecking company who was employed by the Bissell firm until last Jan. 1. He was taken to the Bridewell hospital with three bullet wounds. Marion Bissell, 58, of 1904 West 34th place, head of the company, was shot in the left thumb.

Two women employés, Mrs. Joan Kautz, 50, of 5920 Virginia avenue, and Mrs. Mildred Burke, 36, of 9131 South Ada street, said Sinder entered the office, apparently intoxicated, and threatened to "get" Bissell. A struggle and the shooting ensued. The women said Sinder claimed that Bissell owed him $2,000 in commissions on sales made when Sinder was an employé of the real estate concern. Bissell, they said, fired all the shots with a gun kept in the office.

ARMY TRAINING PLANE CRASHES; 2 OFFICERS DIE

San Angelo, Tex., Sept. 5 (AP).—Two army officers were killed today in the crash of a basic training plane on a ranch 50 miles east of Fort Stockton.

The occupants were not identified, but at Goodfellow field here, the air corps reported two officers were missing. They are First Lieutenant Austin T. Heffelman, 25 years old, Beloit, Wis., and Second Lieutenant Allen R. Bailey, San Diego, Cal.

Plane Crash Kills Woman.

Winslow, Ariz., Sept. 5 (AP).—Mrs. Nazario Garcia, 63 years old, and Private D. D. Melton was injured when an army transport plane with four men aboard crashed into an adobe house just after taking off from the airport at dusk today.

RAILROAD WAGE DISPUTE HEADED FOR PRESIDENT

Mediation Attempt Meets Failure.

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

The railroad wage dispute involving about 1,200,000 workers yesterday was headed toward President Roosevelt for settlement. As had been indicated, the national mediation board, federal agency which for three weeks had been trying to bring about an amicable settlement, announced formally that its efforts had failed.

David J. Lewis reports failure to mediate dispute.

Establishing a basis for the proclamation of a national emergency, the 14 nonoperating unions announced at the Morrison hotel that they had set Sept. 11 for a strike and the Big Five operating brotherhoods said they would set their strike date in about three days. However, there is no likelihood of an actual strike for several months at least.

Report Rails Offer 10 Per Cent.

The five operating unions asked a flat 30 per cent increase. The 14 nonoperating unions asked increases of 30 cents an hour, with a minimum wage of 70 cents an hour, and vacations with pay. The railroads are asking for revisions of rules covering working conditions, including the so-called "featherbed rules."

It is reported unofficially that the railroads were ready to grant 10 per cent conditional increases during such time that present high revenues obtain, with the right to discuss revision when earnings declined. The unions, it is understood, refused to accept these terms, insisting on permanent increases.

Naming of a strike date empowers the President under the machinery set up under the railway labor act for handling railroad labor disputes to appoint a fact finding commission of three members. The commission in public hearings would assemble information to form a basis for making a recommendation for a settlement.

Ruling Is Not Binding.

Altho the commission's recommendation is not binding in law, the theory is that neither party to the dispute would flout public opinion by refusing to comply with it. The commission after assembling the facts has 30 days to announce its recommendation and another 30 days must elapse before the men may walk out. It is expected that the fact finding commission will hold its meetings in Chicago because of the crowded condition in Washington.

David J. Lewis, chairman of the mediation board, said at the Drake hotel that when on Thursday the board found that it could no longer be helpful, it suggested that the parties arbitrate their differences. It was indicated that the railroads were willing but the unions opposed.

"While the board regrets that it was not able to bring the parties to an agreement in mediation or to obtain an agreement to arbitrate their differences and despite the fact that an emergency threatening to interrupt railroad service may arise," Lewis said in a prepared statement, "the board is nevertheless confident that the parties to these disputes will continue to respect whatever action the government may see fit to take in its effort to assure an eventual disposition of the issues involved."

Gurley Hits Union Stand.

Fred G. Gurley, chairman of the carriers conference committee, said:

"The labor representatives in pressing their 900 million dollar wage demands apparently are seeking to reflect the present artificial and temporary situation due to defense efforts in a permanently increased wage scale."

He added that in addition to their demand for a 30 per cent wage increase, with a minimum increase of $1.80 a day, the five brotherhoods are demanding additional and unnecessary employés on Diesel engines and a revised method of compensation.

"The demands for these unnecessary men constitute a further attempt to add to the costs of the railroads and would place as many as nine enginemen on certain types of locomotives whereas two constitute the engine crew now," he said.

Defer Rules Questions.

The five brotherhoods have agreed with the railroads to mediate revision of the rules after the wage question has been settled. However, the 14 unions have refused to discuss rules further. The vacation with pay request is now before the mediation board but no decision has been reached.

Alvaney Johnston, head of the engineers, and A. F. Whitney, head of the trainmen, have been acting as spokesmen for the five brotherhoods, which have a membership of about 350,000. B. M. Jewell, head of the railway employés division of the American Federation of Labor, and George M. Harrison, head of the clerks' union, have been acting for the 14 unions, which have a membership between 850,000 and 900,000.

Braniff Airways Reports Traffic Record in August

More passenger miles were flown and more passengers were carried in August than in any other month in the 13 year history of Braniff Airways, Inc., company officials reported yesterday.

Small BUSINESS MAN'S Department

This department is prepared to help the small business man who is seeking information on priorities, substitute materials, and related subjects. Inquiries should be directed to the Small Business Man's department, Chicago Tribune, Chicago, Ill. All inquiries will be given careful attention. Letters on subjects of broad interest will be published and commented upon.

Small business men, confused and lost in the maze of priorities regulations, have made repeated requests for a primer of procedure to guide them in their efforts to procure vital materials. Altho the general theory of priorities is easily grasped, the specific applications are complex and require careful study.

However, the major problem of the small manufacturer, wholesaler, or jobber, who has no legal staff versed in the intricacies of government red tape, is where to go and what to do. The following steps are offered as a guide:

1. Exhaust every method available to obtain the needed scarce materials. Search for substitutes. Keep a record of every effort made to get materials. You will need persuasive evidence to support your contention that you cannot procure the material or that you are encountering unreasonable delay in delivery.

Record of Consumers.

2. Maintain a record of ultimate consumers of your products, determining what part goes into military requirements, what part into essential civilian needs, like power, transportation, or hospital care. In other words, be ready to demonstrate how important to preparedness and public welfare your operations are.

3. Analyze your production to determine what hardships are being experienced as the result of material shortages and what the effects will be if supplies are reduced or cut off. Be prepared to estimate how many workers will be dismissed, how many machines will be idle, how inefficiency and higher costs will result.

4. If you have military orders, ask the contracting or procurement officer of the army or navy service what preference rating can be assigned to the delivery of scarce materials. The contracting officer is authorized by the army and navy munitions board to assign automatically a rating on some 300 items contained in the priorities critical list. The ratings which can be assigned to critical materials are indicated in the official priorities directive issued by the munitions board.

Procedure Saves Time.

The automatic rating saves time and eliminates the filing of an application. This rating can be extended, with the approval of the contracting officer, to subcontractors and "subsubcontractors," whose products are needed as materials or parts.

5. If the material needed is not on the priorities critical list or is to be used in making civilian goods, apply to the priorities division of the Office of Production Management, Social Security building, Washington, D. C.

Assistance in preparing the application for a preference rating may be obtained at the regional offices of the priorities field service. In Chicago, the district office is in the Federal Reserve Bank building and the manager is Warren G. Bailey.

Form PD-1 is used in applying for a priority rating certificate on individual orders. The forms can be obtained from the field office or from this department.

Send Information in Detail.

Supply information in detail, presenting a persuasive statement of your case. Notarize it and mail the application to the priorities division in Washington. Separate applications must be made for each different kind of material required.

When the application is received by the priorities office in Washington, it is routed to the group chairman of one of the following sections: minerals and metals; chemicals; commercial aircraft; tool and equipment, and general products. The application is studied in the particular section, and the purchase and production divisions of the OPM are consulted. The decision of the group executive is made on the basis of recommendations and is routed to the central office of the priorities division. The priority certificate is issued over the signature of the director of priorities, Donald M. Nelson.

6. In addition to the individual preference rating certificates, the priorities division has developed several schemes to reduce paper work and speed the process of giving the right of way to armament and essential civilian needs. By consultation with the field office of the division, you may be able to determine whether you are eligible for preferential treatment under one of these special plans, a brief outline of which follows:

[A] Blanket rating—Known technically as the limited blanket rating order, it may be applied to one or more companies working almost wholly on armament contracts. A rating is assigned which covers all contracts and orders for certain specified scarce materials going into armaments. Blanket ratings have been given to machine tool and gauge makers; crane builders; certain producers of military air frames, engines, and propellers; railroad freight car producers; builders of ships for the Maritime commission, and makers of trucks and passenger carriers.

Single Project Ratings.

[B] Project ratings—Resemble blanket ratings, but are applied to a single project, like the construction of a power plant, dam, or munitions plant.

[C] Defense supplies rating plan was designed to permit some arms manufacturers to use "off the shelf" materials instead of waiting until they can obtain preference rating certificates. An A-10 rating is assigned to such manufacturers on that portion of materials required on their armament contracts, and they use this rating in replenishing supplies for military work.

[D] Industry-wide mandatory control is used to regulate the distribution of scarce materials. Approximately 22 materials [mostly metals but including machine tools, rubber, synthetic rubber, cork, and borax] have been subjected to this control.

Output Under Control.

In effect, the mandatory orders [usually designated by the letter M] put the entire production of certain materials under government regulation. A formula for the allocation of the materials to various types of consumers is provided in each order.

[E] Inventory control is exercised over some 13 metals and classes of metals and requires suppliers of the metals in semi-processed or premanufactured form to file a statement of compliance and requires consumers of these metals to file monthly statements of compliance with regulations forbidding speculation or accumulation of excess stocks.

Priority Ratings

The preference ratings or tags attached by the priorities division of the Office of Production Management to orders for vital materials to provide a right of way for armament and essential civilian needs are graded as follows:

MILITARY			CIVILIAN
*AA	A-1-g	A-5	*BB	B-5
A-1-a	A-1-h	A-6	B-1	B-6
A-1-b	A-1-i	A-7	B-2	B-7
A-1-c	A-1-j	A-8	B-3	B-8
A-1-d	A-2	A-9	B-4
A-1-e	A-3	A-10
A-1-f	A-4

Only 1 Atwood Director Seen in Proxy Fight

The management of Allied Mills, Inc., Chicago feed and distillery products manufacturer, will control about 80 per cent of the proxies in today's election of directors and the opposition can elect no more than one of the board's five members, it was learned last night.

A preliminary tabulation of the proxies showed 525,839 shares voted for the present management and 132,118 shares voted for the opposition. Because of the cumulative method of tabulation, which permits stockholders to give all their voting strength to a single candidate, one opposition director might be elected today. It was reported Guy Thomas would be the choice.

Opposition Led by Atwood.

The opposition, headed by Harry G. Atwood, son of the late Hinckley G. Atwood, founder and president of the company at the time of his death last June, sought representation thru election of both Thomas and Harry Atwood.

The management, in oposing the two candidates, did not question Thomas' business ability, but expressed the view that his connections with competitor companies disqualified him for a place on Allied's board. The management indicated it believed Atwood is not qualified for a place on the board.

Atwood, on the other hand, claimed several candidates of the management do not have sufficient financial interest in the company to be suitable directors.

The meeting will be at 10 a. m. today in the Board of Trade building. It originally was called for Wednesday but was recessed three times to permit a committee to complete checking of proxies.

The Securities and Exchange commission's official summary of security transactions showed H. J. Buist, executive vice president and treasurer of the company, had acquired 700 shares of Allied stock worth more than $9,000 during August. These purchases increased Buist's Allied holdings to 2,327 shares.

WURLITZER REMOVES EXECUTIVE OFFICES AND STAFF TO CHICAGO

Rudolph Wurlitzer company, manufacturers of pianos and other musical instruments, has completed removal of its executive offices to Chicago from Cincinnati, R. C. Rolfing, president, announced yesterday. The move was made, Rolfing said, "because Chicago is the logical center of the piano industry."

About 20 families were brought to Chicago from Cincinnati, where the company had had its headquarters since 1856. One of the Wurlitzer factories is at De Kalb, Ill., and that was one of the reasons for moving the offices, Rolfing said. Another, he said, was Chicago's leadership as a center of trade shows of the musical instrument industry.

Complete Plans for Great Lakes Theater-Chapel

Plans have been completed by Rapp & Rapp, Chicago architectural firm, for a $350,000 fireproof combination theater and chapel for Great Lakes Naval Training station. Commander Ralph D. Spalding, public works officer at the station, said yesterday that work would start in 10 days with completion expected about March 1.

Chicago Silk Company Cuts Staff 85 Pct.

More than 850 or 85 per cent of the employés of the Oscar Heineman corporation, Chicago's only raw silk processor, have been laid off as a result of the Office of Production Management order freezing raw silk stocks, John H. Brine, vice president, said yesterday. The company employed 1,000 persons on Oct. 2, when the order became effective.

The plant is "practically closed down," Brine said, except for the nylon and rayon departments, but officials are hopeful that they soon may put a substantial portion of the former employés back to work preparing rayon yarn for hosiery under a special process.

Little Rayon Available.

"We are hopeful of operating our equipment on rayon and other synthetics," Brine said, "but at the present time, despite the OPM order that rayon producers divert 10 per cent of their production to the hosiery industry, very little rayon suitable for manufacture of hosiery is available."

Few hosiery manufacturers have succeeded in getting allotments of rayon, Brine asserted. "We are hopeful that this is only a temporary situation and that rayon will be made available to hosiery manufacturers in a reasonable length of time," he said. "Just how quickly we can start processing of rayon depends on how soon the material is available."

The factory force has been gradually reduced since Oct. 2, the executive declared, to its present size of less than 150 persons.

Completes Yarn in Process.

This has been possible because the company was permitted to complete yarns where the processing of the raw silk was already started at the time of the freezing order.

The company formerly twisted raw silk into knitting yarns to be used in hosiery. Under the new process ready for use in the plant, rayon yarns would be processed into knitting yarns suitable for hosiery.

Brine said the company has no information on how many of the 850 discharged employés have found other jobs.

WORTHINGTON CONVERSION.

I've heard Worthington Pump has a plan for reducing the number of its preferred stocks thru conversion. What are the details?—J. T. B.

Answer: Directors of Worthington Pump and Machinery corporation have authorized a plan of recapitalization providing for conversion of outstanding class A and B preferred stocks into prior preferred and common stock. Each share of class A 7 per cent preferred would be convertible into one half share of convertible cumulative prior preferred, one half share of nonconvertible prior preferred and three shares of no par common. Each share of class B 6 per cent preferred would be exchangeable on a similar basis, except that its common stock allotment would be two and a half shares.

RAYTHEON ACTIVITY.

Raytheon Manufacturing company preferred and common generally have been on the upgrade since the first of the year. How do the latest earnings compare with a year ago?—M. M. K.

Answer: This company, which manufactures radio tubes, reported a profit of $151,156 for the fiscal year ended last May 31 compared with a loss a year ago of $60,179.

GILLETTE REDUCTION.

Did Gillette Safety Razor company make a capital change recently?—L. N. H.

Answer: Stockholders on Aug. 21 approved a plan of capital readjustment whereby the 1,998,769 common shares carried on the books at $7.50 par, or $14,990,767, would be reduced to $1 par, or $1,998,769. This effected an increase in capital surplus of $12,991,998.

NINE COMPANIES.

How many companies were involved in the incorporation of the Paraffine Companies, Inc.? What are its products?—B. E. S.

Answer: This company was incorporated in Delaware in 1917 and acquired the assets of nine companies, which were then dissolved. Products include floor coverings, building materials, and paint and varnish.

FOREIGN WRIGLEY.

Answer: The William Wrigley Jr. company reported that for the first six months of this year profit of foreign subsidiaries was $337,336. Company's total net income was $4,438,982.

OIL EXECUTIVES MAY BE CALLED IN SENATE QUIZ

Maloney Demands 'Shortage' Facts.

BY WILLIAM STRAND.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 5.—Officials of the major oil companies may be called to testify before the senate committee investigating the asserted eastern shortage of oil and gasoline. Senator Francis T. Maloney [D., Conn.], chairman, said today that altho the committee was not selected to inquire into the companies he thought it was necessary to get to the bottom of "charges that have been rumored about" in connection with the gasoline situation.

Sen. F. T. Maloney.

"There have been charges that the oil companies were reluctant to make use of the tank cars because they wished to depress rates," he said. "There have been charges centering about the proposed pipe line; charges that some interests wanted to remove certain classes of dealers; charges that we were careless in disposing of those tankers to Great Britain. For myself I want to repudiate those charges. The committee has not considered them up to now, but it may be necessary."

Told of Idle Tank Cars.

Administration officials have declared that the eastern seaboard would have to get along with less oil and gasoline because some 50 tankers formerly used in the transportation of petroleum from the southwest oil fields had been transferred to Great Britain.

The committee, however, has been told by responsible witnesses that there are an estimated 20,000 idle railroad tank cars which could have been used to replace the tankers. The witnesses were John J. Pelley, president of the American Association of Railroads, and Ralph Budd, director of transportation phases of the armament program. The committee was also told that the administration has known of the availability of the cars since December but made no previous attempts to utilize them.

Agree on Freight Rate Cut.

Following the disclosures before the committee, the petroleum industry yesterday moved rapidly to mobilize the tank cars for carrying their products to the Atlantic coast. A flat 25 per cent reduction on freight rates for gasoline and fuel oil and 50 per cent for petroleum was agreed upon at a lengthy conference between oil company and railroad representatives.

Appointment of Ralph Park Russell, superintendent of car service for the Pennsylvania railroad, as chief of the rail transportation section of the petroleum coördinator's office was announced today by Ralph K. Davies, acting coördinator.

C. F. Dowd, traffic manager for the Tidewater Associated Oil company, was pessimistic when he testified before the committee.

He emphasized that the figure of 20,000 idle tank cars was an estimate by railroad officials which had not been gone into by the oil companies. He also cautioned that the problem of loading and unloading the cars might interfere with their use.

Testimony "Disappointing."

This testimony was described as "disappointing" by Senator Maloney, who said that he had hoped to receive some assurances from the oil industry today that a solution to the problem had been found. Now, he said, he doubts the committee can conclude its hearings, adding that it may be necessary to hear from the oil company officials.

Another witness before the committee today was Leon Henderson, the administration's price czar, who recommended immediate construction of the proposed 100 million dollar pipe line system. He asserted that the pipe line would be necessary for the movement of oil in the event the nation is attacked because, he said, "you can't sink a pipe line."

Later today, it was reliably reported that the government is planning a high powered publicity campaign in favor of the pipe line and intends to send interior department press agents into the southwest to work up enthusiasm for the project.

The report was denied by the interior department which said that the lines, extending from eastern Texas to Bayonne, N. J., by way of southern Illinois, are to be built by "private capital."

Rail Loadings Set Peak for Eleven Years

Freight movement by the nation's railroads during the week ended Aug. 30 reached the highest total for any week since Nov. 2, 1930, the Association of American Railroads reported yesterday.

Revenue loadings last week totaled 912,720 cars to surpass the 908,664 cars loaded in the week ended June 28, when the 900,000 car total was exceeded for the first time since 1930.

Altho the increase over the preceding week was considered less than seasonal, shipments rose 12,970 cars, or 1.4 per cent. The gain over the corresponding week of 1940 was 143,945 cars, or 18.7 per cent, and the total exceeded that of the same week in 1939 by 196,323 cars, or 27.4 per cent.

Miscellaneous Freight Up.

A rise of 13,391 cars in miscellaneous freight loadings over the preceding week again led the advance in shipments. This class of freight includes all types of machinery, the manufacture of which has been greatly intensified under the nation's armament program. Miscellaneous freight increased 86,641 cars over the same week in 1940.

An average of 60 freight cars make up one train and the increase of 86,641 cars in miscellaneous freight over last year would be equivalent to 1,444 more trains needed to haul the increased shipments.

Less than carlot merchandise, coal, and forest products also showed gains over the preceding week, but declines in live stock and ore shipments held the total increase to less than seasonal.

Coal Shipments Gain.

Coal shipments were up 31,910 cars from last year. The rise was partly accounted for by the rush to get winter supplies which were delayed by strikes in the spring. Increases in ore and coke shipments over last year also reflect the stepped-up industrial activity under the arms program.

Further increases in total freight loadings are expected if the proposal to press into service railroad tank cars for hauling gasoline to the eastern coastline is effected.

	Wk. ended Aug. 30.	Change from Prec. wk.	Change from Yr. ago.

COURT APPROVES FINAL PAYMENT BY INSULL FIRM

Distribution of $167,819 to 17,000 holders of debentures of the bankrupt Insull Utility Investments, Inc., as a final liquidating payment was authorized yesterday by Federal Judge John P. Barnes. The payment will be $3.36 for each $1,000 debenture, and it will raise to $38.97 the total paid on each debenture in the bankruptcy proceeding.

The investors, in addition, have received $44.50 per debenture thru an equity proceeding which was instituted prior to the bankruptcy action, so that total payments from both proceedings amount to $83.47. The original claims totaled 50 million dollars. The final payment will leave $1,416 in the bankrupt estate for taxes and other expenses, Harry A. Bigelow, trustee in bankruptcy, informed the court. After the final distribution is completed, Judge Barnes is expected to enter a final decree discharging the trustee.

Adams Quits His OPM Job to Resume Colgate Office

Washington, D. C., Sept. 5 (AP).—James S. Adams resigned today as chief of the automotive branch of the Office of Production Management. He said that because of the illness of E. H. Little, president of the Colgate-Palmolive-Peet company, it was necessary that he return to his position as executive vice president of the company.

People and Events

F. M. Kelsey, general manager of the Chicago mail order plant of Sears, Roebuck & Co. for the last 12 years, has been appointed a member of the merchandising staff to develop methods for dealing with merchandise shortages created by federal priorities and rationing orders. O. S. Detweiler, operating superintendent of the Chicago mail order plant, has been named to succeed Kelsey. J. S. Landrum will succeed Detweiler.

Louis Quarles, Milwaukee attorney, has been elected to the board of directors of the Allis-Chalmers Manufacturing company, Milwaukee.

J. M. Mehl, chief of the Commodity Exchange Administration, will address a dinner meeting of the Chicago Mercantile exchange in the Palmer House next Wednesday on "The Future of Futures Trading."

Gen. Electric's Arms Output Rises Rapidly

Charles E. Wilson.

"Defense products certainly are rolling now," he said, referring to his own company, and indicated he believed all American industry was increasing its rate of armaments output.

Wilson said arms work constituted about 60 per cent of operations which, in the first nine months of this year, ran 60 to 65 per cent ahead of the like 1940 period when billings totaled $287,000,000. Billings in the first six months of 1941, he said, were $300,000,000, the rate increasing later.

$650,000,000 Sales Indicated.

Since billings in 1940 totaled $411,000,000, it was indicated they would mount to $650,000,000 for 1941. Wilson commented, "Next year we expect to increase our operations at a similarly accelerating rate."

He said earnings, however, probably would remain the same for the last two quarters of this year as they were in the first two, adding, "if we can hold our net after the tremendous increases in taxes, I think that is the best we can hope to do."

Of all the company's vast military orders, Wilson said operations were on or ahead of schedule on two-thirds and "we anticipate catching up and getting ahead" on the remaining third shortly.

New Plants Boost Output.

Speeding the rise in production rates, he said, was the beginning of operations this week at the company's airplane supercharger plant No. 2 at Everett, Mass. A third supercharger plant is being built.

A second navy turbine plant will start operations in 1942 at Erie, Pa., he said, and other new plants, already in production or building, include factories for hydraulic control and radio control at Schenectady.

The growth of operations, said Wilson, was exemplified by an increase of 50,000 employés—19,000 in 1940 and 31,000 more since Jan. 1, 1941—to constitute the present pay roll of 120,000.

Germany's Public Debt Soars in 3 Month Period

BERLIN, Sept. 5 (AP).—Germany's funded debt rose to 52,494,700,000 marks on June 30 from 47,772,300,000 marks on March 31, the finance ministry announced today. The floating debt rose from 38,227,000,000 to 45,028,500,000 marks.

FORCE BIG DRUG FIRMS TO BREAK WITH NAZI TRUST

Prevented U.S. Sales to Latin America.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 5 (AP).—Attorney General Francis Biddle announced today consent decrees under which four important American drug companies must break contracts with the German dye trust, which prevent United States firms from doing business in South America. The two decrees, based on civil action charging anti-trust law violation by restricting markets, particularly in Latin American countries, were filed with Federal District Judge Samuel Mandelbaum in New York.

The actions named Sterling Products, Inc.; Alba Pharmaceutical Company, Inc.; Bayer Company, Inc.; Winthrop Chemical company, and Albert H. Diebold and William Weiss, president and chairman, respectively, of Sterling.

Biddle Explains Decree.

"The American government's recent policy of economic pressure against axis powers," Biddle said, "affects private contractual obligations, entered into long before the war, with contracting parties who are now axis nationals. That contract has created difficult legal situations for American firms engaged in foreign trade and subject to the courts of foreign countries. The arrangement made in this case constitutes a constructive solution of this type of difficulty."

The information on which the complaints were based was developed during a general investigation of the drug industry by the justice department's anti-trust division. Charges were that, between 1920 and 1926, Winthrop Chemical and Bayer, a Sterling subsidiary, entered into long term contracts with I. G. Farbenindustrie, known as the German dye trust, and its predecessor, Friedrich Bayer of Germany, whereby Bayer's export business outside of the United States "was subject to an illegal profit sharing arrangement between I. G. Farbenindustrie and Bayer."

Certain Exports Banned.

Winthrop also entered into an agreement with I. G. Farbenindustrie, the complaints said, under which it obtained exclusive right to use in the United States the Farben patent, trademark, and secret manufacturing methods and in return refrain from exporting the product to certain foreign markets.

"Under terms of the consent decree," Biddle said, "all agreements between Sterling and its subsidiaries, on one hand, and between I. G. Farbenindustrie and its predecessors, on the other, are declared illegal and terminated." The decree further provides that Sterling and its subsidiaries shall not by agreement with any other manufacturer of drugs, including I. G. Farbenindustrie, refrain from entering into any foreign market.

"This will make the product of the American company available to the Latin American republics whose source of supply has been cut off because of war conditions."

Wholly American Company.

Biddle said that Sterling always has been "a wholly American company" and that none of the profits from the sale of Bayer aspirin in the United States has been shared with any foreign interests. He said also that there was no foreign interest in the "numerous other subsidiaries" of Sterling in the proprietary medicine field.

Justice officials said that all four companies named in the decrees have operating headquarters in New York. Sterling and Winthrop Chemical are incorporated in Delaware and Alva and Bayer in New York.

AIRCRAFT STOCKS HELP TO BOLSTER WOBBLY MARKET

Many Leaders Are Lower at Close, However.

New York, Sept. 5 (AP).—Renewed strength in aircrafts and an assortment of specialties today propped a generally shaky stock market. Altho some favorites rose fractions to 2 points or so—a number touching new highs for the year—numerous leaders declined fractions. Best advances were reduced in most cases at the close. The list got off to a hesitant start and resistance appeared when the aviations came to the fore around midday.

On the bullish side were business developments affecting individual issues and another runup in commodities which served to keep inflation temperature at least a shade above normal.

Some Factors Adverse.

Chilling market sentiment, however, was the cloudier international situation. In addition, the problem of taxes, priorities, and other controls persisted.

Aircrafts were aided by reports of a speedup in production. Entering new high ground for 1941 were Boeing, Curtiss-Wright, Lockheed, Gimbel, Laclede Gas, Cuban-American Sugar, Schenley, Ward Baking preferred, Timken-Detroit Axle, and Canada Dry.

Heavier retail spending thruout the country enabled Gimbel and Woolworth to keep a shade in advance. Rails refused to be sidetracked by the union strike vote and less than seasonal increases in last week's freight loadings.

CHICAGO LIST UNEVEN.

Prices were mixed on the Chicago Stock exchange yesterday in transactions totaling 24,000 shares. New 1941 highs were reached by Serrick Corporation, at 5½, close unchanged at 5; Crane company, at 18¾, up ⅝ to 18¾ at the close, and National Pressure Cooker, up ½ to 5¼, high and close.

Volume leaders were Curtiss-Wright, 3,100 shares, up ⅛ to 9⅞; Middle West, 2,000 shares, unchanged at 4⅜; Aviation Corporation, 950 shares, unchanged at 3⅞; Four Wheel Drive, 850 shares, unchanged at 9¼.

Garden Oddities.

September 5, 1941.

THE family sized vegetable garden at the farm presents a strange conglomeration of oddities these days. Nature seems to have gone out of her way to twist and distort some of the vegetables into unusual shapes and sizes. Along with the freaks there are varieties of the same vegetable that are so different one finds it hard to believe they are related.

The most startling contrast in size is found among the tomatoes. Mixed in among the normal tomato bushes are a few plants that must have blown in on a wayward breeze. Hanging finger. Nestled among the vines are two squash that present an odd contrast. One is a deep orange color, the normal hue, while the other is almost an albino. It is a pale, washed out pink that approaches white.

ing side by side are big red tomatoes the size of a baseball, and tiny tomatoes not much bigger than a large marble. The little, so-called "cherry tomatoes" are perfectly formed and dead ripe, a beautifully fashioned miniature of their big brothers.

Flavor Is Excellent.

The tiny tomatoes have an excellent flavor rivaling that of the larger ones, but they find their main use in decorating tables and salad dishes. The gardener was quite startled when they first appeared, but now he has become accustomed to them along with the other strange vegetables.

Among the strangely shaped vegetables is a tomato that has produced a long, pencil thick growth on one side of the fruit that makes it resemble a clenched hand with a pointmany of them have grotesque and humorous shapes.

Starters and Finishers.

The garden patch is in all stages of growth and development. The celery, young asparagus, and late planted beets are just starting into their period of rapid growth. Next to them are the sweet corn, late beans, carrots, tomatoes, squash, and cabbage, which are at the height of their productivity.

The early potatoes, okra, and swiss chard are over the hill, having served the farm tables. They now are going to seed. Thus side by side are the tender shoots of the vegetables just getting their start, the luxuriant growth of the plants that are being harvested, and the brown withered leaves and vines of the vegetables that have produced and seeded.

SEARS-ROEBUCK SALES SET PEAK BY WIDE MARGIN

Variety Stores' August Business Rises.

Sears, Roebuck & Co. reported yesterday its sales for August and for the seven months ended Aug. 31 established new records for the periods by wide margins.

August sales totaled $87,715,593, a 49.1 per cent increase over the $58,819,848 in the same month last year. Sales for the seven months were $516,083,223, a 33.2 per cent increase over the $387,569,774 in the like 1940 period.

The company's pay roll expenditures in Illinois during 1940 totaled $26,678,786, a 12 per cent increase over 1939, M. C. Penticoff, manager of Sears' Chicago group, said. It marked the eighth consecutive year Illinois pay roll expenditures have shown a marked rise. The information came from a special report in connection with the company's 55th anniversary celebration. The company's total pay roll expenditures reached a new high last year, of $110,768,000. An additional $11,018,000 was paid out in employé benefits.

Variety Stores' Sales Larger.

Two variety store chains, the W. T. Grant company and the F. W. Woolworth company, also reported gains for August and the first eight months of the year.

Woolworth's August sales totaled $30,712,784, a 14.4 per cent increase over the $26,827,808 in the same month last year. For the eight months the company's sales were $218,145,786, a 10.5 per cent increase over $197,370,184 in the first eight months of 1940.

W. T. Grant company sales for August were $10,069,364, a 15.1 per cent rise over the $8,749,937 in August, 1940. The company's sales for the eight months were $70,609,247, a 14 per cent increase over the $61,946,579.

AVERAGE PRICE OF HOGS UP 41% SINCE LAST APRIL

A strong to 10 cents higher market for hogs at the stockyards yesterday raised the average for the session 5 cents to $11 a hundred pounds, a new four year high for the month of September. The price showed an increase of 50 cents over the low day of last month and stood $3.20 or 41 per cent above the price on April 3, the day the government announced it would support prices.

After setting a 12 year peak for September on Thursday, lambs fell back 25 to 35 cents yesterday. Only 1,800 cattle arrived. They sold at steady prices.

REPUBLIC STEEL BUYS 94½ ACRES IN SOUTH CHICAGO

Republic Steel company yesterday took title to 94½ acres in South Chicago, part of which adjoins its plant at 11800 Burley avenue. According to an official of the company the property was bought for future expansion. A rumor persisted yesterday, however, that it would be the site for a large new steel mill.

The land acquired is in two parcels. In the area bounded by 118th street on the north, by the Calumet river on the west, by 122d street on the south, and by Carondolet, if extended, on the east, there are 56½ acres.

Both parcels were bought from the Calway corporation, which has owned the land for several years. According to the county records the purchase price was $109,000.

CIO BEGINS FIGHT FOR TEAMSTERS, TRUCK DRIVERS

Washington, D. C., Sept. 5 [Special].—A nation-wide campaign to organize teamsters and truck drivers into the CIO has started in Detroit, A. D. Lewis, chairman of the United Construction Workers Organizing committee, announced today. Lewis is a brother of John L. Lewis, former CIO president.

He said that the campaign had been approved by officers of the CIO United Automobile Workers in Detroit and that the auto workers would give the new drivers' unions in the Detroit area financial and other assistance. The organization drive, he said, is designed to counteract opposition to his union by the powerful AFL teamsters.

LETTERS

Miniature Fire Protectors.

Gentlemen: You might be interested in the circular letter and advertisement from London inviting us to purchase miniature fire protectors.

[C. L. Kerr, general manager of B. Herr's stores, 217-219 Greenwich High road, Greenwich, London, advertises the sale of miniature fire protectors, suitable for use as book ends, in pairs at $5 a pair. They are models of the 7 pound, 2 by 2 foot, steel protectors used in extinguishing incendiary bombs. The company manufactures the larger shield for actual use in England, but is offering only the miniature model in this country.]

For lack of this particular size in steel a great many concerns in the United States are unable to do business, and we ourselves have paid very substantial premiums and have in prospect being obliged to tie up some important work because we cant get the material.

Its' a great state of affairs when our government shuts down our own industries to send steel to England, which England in turn manufactures and sells back to us as novelties, or in any way in which they can find a market.—SETH B. ATWOOD,
Atwood Vacuum Machine company,
Rockford, Ill.

Auto Production Shrinks, but Upturn Is Expected

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 5 (AP).—Ward's Reports, Inc., today estimated this week's output of passenger cars and trucks in the United States and Canada at 32,940 units, compared with 39,965 last week and 39,665 a year ago. The decline was attributed to the Labor day holiday. Ward's said that a rapid rise in volume was indicated for next week.
